Teddy's Trials. So many steps to be taken! So many errands to run!

Run to the market," says mother. "You go so quickly," says she,

Sister Sue hands me a letter, "Dear you will mail it I know,"

"Dearest" and "darling" and "Teddy" These are the words she will use;

So, you are mighty mistaken, Thinking that fellows have fun,

Little Children.

A dreary place would be this earth, Were there no little people in it;

No little forms like buds to grow, And make the admiring heart surrender;

The sterner souls will grow more stern, Unfeeling natures more inhuman,

Life's song, indeed, would lose its charm Were there no babies to begin it;

A Will and a Way.

Several years ago an effort was made to collect all the chimney sweepers in the city of Dublin for the purpose of education.

One little fellow was asked if he knew his letters.

"Oh, yes, sir," was the reply. "Do you spell?" "Oh, yes, sir," was again the answer.

"And who was your schoolmaster?" "Oh, I never was at school."

Here was a singular case: a boy could read and spell without a book or master, but what was the fact?

A Postscript.

Willie, aged 5, had delivered a message from his mother to a lady, but did not seem in a hurry to go.

if you gave me any I was to take it and thank you." He got the cake.

A Little Girl's Wish.

"Mayn't I be a boy?" said our Mary. The tears in her great eyes of blue,

"Tis so, I heard cousin John say 'so He's home from a great college, too,

Is there nothing you can do, my darling? What was that 'pa' said last night!

"And there is a secret, my Mary, Perhaps you may learn it some day--

The hand that is willing and loving Will do the most work on the way.

"And the work that is sweetest and dearest, The work that so many ne'er do,

Selected.
