

Kitchener Has 850-Pound Birthday Cake

This 850-pound birthday cake is the creation of three Kitchener, Ont., bakeries for the city's centennial week June 27 - July 3. The cake will provide a treat for 7,000 visitors attending festivities marking the 100th anniversary of Ontario's sixth largest city. Helen Udvari, Miss Centennial, gives her sign of approval.—(CP Photo).

length of time is very childish. Suppose every thoughtless act of yours was eternally remembered, and resented by others? Your life would be pretty miserable, wouldn't it? And there must have been many such actions in your life. Rare indeed is the person who, consciously or unconsciously, has never slighted another, never been guilty of an unkind deed or an uncharitable word. That your in-laws have only one such mark against them speaks very well for their attitude toward you, and also for your love of them. Forget the dinner.

DEAR MISS DIX: My mother doesn't like me to date, but when boys come to the house she's very pleasant to them. I'm 16 and old enough, I think, to go to dances and shows.

J. C.

ANSWER: While I agree that you're old enough for dating, I also can understand your mother's concern. It's often difficult for a parent to realize that the daughter who was yesterday only a child playing with dolls is today a young lady ready for dancing. As your mother becomes better acquainted with your friends, and realizes that your judgment in choosing companions is reliable, she'll relax the dating rules.

DEAR MISS DIX: My best girl friend and I like the same boy. I think he prefers me—or at least he says he does. Yet, when I asked him what we should do about Sandra, he said I should tell her he doesn't care too much for her.

Janice

ANSWER: It's up to the boy to keep your girl friend posted as to the state of his affections. I think he rather likes having two attractive teen-agers as rivals for his affections and, since he's much too young to be serious about either, he's doubtless willing to let the situation drift along as is. Take your cue from that and don't rush matters.

ting it down with the roller, before going on with the younger farmer to the shearing in a roadside "fold" in a pasture up at "the other farm" — a handwork still incomplete, though, to help them, the night patiently lighted odd stars.

And passing there, we with this little family drove through the glory of evening with the summer beautiful on the countryside to see two little barefoot maids, the scene mirroring for us other small ones of the lost years, sitting quietly, yet with senses alerted to catch a sign of returning parents. Some day, as we now, they will look back to remember how especially beloved them were the two for whom they waited. How good to catch the first glimpse of the returning machine! As it once was most satisfying for us and our sisters to catch the beat of horse's hooves and the sound of carriage wheels, which coming suddenly, filled an erstwhile empty world and gave us again after a short or more lengthy absence, that pair we held most dear.

Night now—and the dark. And a breath of wind at the window, bringing up to us the fragrance of garden-roses.

Until tomorrow — — — Diary
