Sudden Death Of Morell Man

The death occurred suddenly at the home of his son of Mr. Frank Kelly, 88, Morell, early Sunday morning. Mr. Kelly was doing the chores about the barn when he presumably suffered a heart attack. He was found later, but he had already succumbed.

The late Mr. Kelly was born in Morell, the son of the late George and Margaret Kelly. During his lifetime he operated a meat store at Morell. He is survived by his wife, (nee Viney Feehan, Mount Stewart), four sons, Somerset, Charlottetown; Frank, Antigonish; Joseph at home; Owen in Nova Scotia; five daughters, Elsie, Mrs. William Alyward, Morell; Polly, Mrs. Merced Mullin, Charlottetown; Patricia, Mrs. William Clark, Florida; Bernice in Toronto, and Catherine in Charlottetown. Also surviving are four brothers: William, Morell; Clair, Boston; Lucius in Morell and Emmanuel, Vancouver; and two sisters, Mary, Mrs. Frank Kenny, Quickside, B. C., and Josie, Mrs. Wilfred Dunphy, Morell.

Increased Gamma Globulin Supply Available In U. S.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Gamma globulin, one of the two weapons aimed at preventing polio, will be available for about 1,700,000 American children this summer—almost twice as many as last year. But it will be distributed under a different system.

The U.S. public health service is asking state health officers to use the blood-derived material in this way only: 1. For group inoculations ranging from youngsters in an apartment house where polio may have struck, up to those in a whole community where an epidemic might occur.

2. In communities already selected for trial of another possible anti-polio medicine—the vaccine sponsored by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis—gamma globulin should be employed "only where in the opinion of the state and territorial health officer it will not affect the validity of the vaccine trial."

This second requirement does not bar the use of gamma globulin for measles or infectious hepatitis, or in "unusual circumstances," officials said. Last summer, the distribution plan stipulated that the major portion of available gamma globulin was to be used in inoculating family and other close contacts of people already stricken with polio. A lesser amount of the material was used in mass inoculations of children in epidemic areas.

USE LIMITED But this summer, the health service disclosed, the plan called for restricting use of the material to "groups larger than a single family unit—such as a neighborhood, an apartment house, a housing project, a school or institution, a camp, an area or district within a community as a whole."

That same committee also reported no evidence had been demonstrated of the value of mass inoculations with gamma globulin. But the committee qualified this by saying that in most instances last summer the mass inoculations were given after the peak of the particular epidemic had passed.

Plan Speed-up In Production Of Expensive Pistol

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP)—Production of the world's most powerful and expensive pistol shortly will begin under a faster and cheaper mass production program. Carl R. Hellstrom, president of Smith and Wesson, Inc., said Monday a backlog of orders from the RCMP, the FBI and Texas Rangers made the step necessary. The new model, he said, will cost $85 instead of $110 and will not be quite as fancy as "custom made" in appearance. The pistol, a six-shot .357 cal. magnum revolver, will be called the "highway patrolman."

Lobster Trap Insurance For P. E. I. Fishermen

At noon on Friday, April 30th, when the lobster fishermen of Prince Edward Island again set out to reap their annual harvest, one of the hazards of their occupation will be lifted from their shoulders. The Federal Government, through the Fishermen's Indemnity Fund of the Department of Fisheries, has announced an insurance plan to protect the fishermen from storm losses during the fishing season.

Last year, a disastrous storm in May practically wiped out many of the fishermen. To help these men rebuild their gear, loans have been granted through the Provincial Government. The new insurance plan, announced in Ottawa on March 4th, will provide protection against these disasters in future.

The insurance plan is voluntary and is based on the payment of a premium by the fishermen. When the total gear, the fishermen are paid an indemnity in proportion to the value of his traps. The twenty per cent deductible is calculated to be the annual wear and tear on gear. The low premium rate does not permit payment of an indemnity for ordinary wear and tear. The insurance is designed to protect against abnormal storm losses.

The premium rates and indemnities payable for the various trap values are as follows: Value Premium Indemnity $1.50-2.00 .05 .90 2.01-3.00 .07 1.25 3.01-4.00 .10 1.75 4.01-5.00 .13 2.25 over 5.00 .16 2.75

This means that a fisherman operating 100 traps that fall in the $2.01-$3.00 value category would pay a premium of $28.00. If his total losses for the season from all causes were 250 traps, he would be paid an indemnity of $125 each on 170 traps—that is $21,250. Or if a fisherman were operating 150 traps with an appraised value of $3.50 each, he would pay a premium of $15.00. If his total losses for the season were 50 traps, he would be paid an indemnity of $175 each on 20 traps—that is $3,500.

During the past winter, the Plan has been in operation in Lobster Fishing District No. 5 in southwestern Nova Scotia. Over 45,000 traps were insured. Eighty-three claims totalling over $14,000 had been paid to March 31st to fishermen who had suffered heavy storm damage.

Mr. L. D. Darrach of the Department of Fisheries, Charlottetown, is the Regional Appraiser for Prince Edward Island. Booklets explaining the Plan have been distributed to the lobster fishermen. Commencing Wednesday, April 21st, a series of meetings will be held at the various fishing communities. At these meetings, fishermen will have the opportunity of discussing the provisions of the Plan thoroughly, and taking out coverage of their traps. Mr. A. J. Fraser, the Chief Appraiser for the Indemnity Fund from Halifax, is in the area to assist Mr. Darrach until the opening of the lobster season.

Carl Coffin one of the pupils attending Savage Harbour School has found a way, a unique way of solving his own transportation problem, that of getting to school. The homeward journey presents no problem to the genial Carl, for his dad, manager of the Community Potato Warehouse at Douglas picks him up on his way home in the evening. However Dad leaves early in the morning for Carl who has countless chores to attend to before setting out for a friendly game of learning. On the Coffin farm lives a beautiful chestnut mare by the name of Nell. She and Carl sort of grew up together, for although Nell was not born at her present residence she was purchased by Mr. Coffin about the time that Carl first saw the light of day. Nell is a real mare, every inch a soldier in fact she is a soldier, a British Soldier, so when school time rolls around Nell turns out for her tour of duty and with a steady and majestic bearing whisks her friend and master along the highway to the "Factory of facts". Carl dismounts, snugs up the reins and says a fond whispered adieu in Nell's ear. This is the signal for her to take off back home there to rest in the luxury of her straw-filled quarters, munching sweet alfalfa with luscious cracked grain for desert and await the return of Carl.
