CAIRO (AP) — The Egyptian newspapers flayed Dag Hammarskjöld's suggestions for Middle East peace and stability Sunday. They said the UN chief completely ignored the real troubles besetting the Arab world.

The attack was unusual, for Hammarskjöld has been outwardly considered here a great and understanding friend of the Arabs — especially since he reported his UN observations found no massive interference by the United Arab Republic in strife-torn Lebanon.

Hammarskjöld made his appeal before the assembly Friday. It called on Arab states to reaffirm pledges of nonaggression and noninterference in each other's affairs. It also called for UN aid to improve social and economic conditions in the Arab world.

Under a red banner headline, it said the plan was to "atom bomb the mountain passes separating Iraq and Iran, thus blocking by a heavy curtain of radiation the advance of any invading Soviet troops."

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — King Hussein Sunday night accused President Nasser of serving international communism as its "first agent in the Arab world."

In a broadcast, Jordan's monarch told his people:

"Communism has made him (Nasser) a servant for its causes, has misled him and made him fill the earth with corruption and plots everywhere."

It was the strongest attack that Hussein, who last month called in British troops to help protect his country's independence and internal stability, has ever made on the president of the United Arab Republic.

U.S. Gov't Shaping Up New Policy On Mid-East

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration is shaping a new policy aimed at having the United Nations take over from individual great powers the job of making peace and keeping order in the Middle East.

The White House said Saturday President Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles are working to complete their program for Wednesday's emergency session of the UN General Assembly.

From other sources it was learned the program under consideration is to ask the UN to take over in the Middle East with full assurance of U.S. support.

James C. Hagerty White House press secretary, said Dulles will head the regular U.S. delegation. He said Eisenhower might go to New York but if he did so it would be for only a brief time.

WILL DIVIDE TASKS

Actually, the present planning is to divide up the assignment. Officials said any speech by Eisenhower would deal in general terms with the Middle East problem and probably contain some surprise plan — perhaps in the field of economic development. Dulles is certain to demand that Russia and the United Arab Republic of President Nasser stop using in the explosive area what Dulles calls indirect aggression.

In the Middle East itself the state department found one encouraging fact and one worrisome element. Each of these may have an important impact on the mood of the 81-nation General Assembly meeting in New York.

Conditions in Lebanon are so far stabilized that a start may be made shortly on withdrawal of U.S. troops sent in in mid-July. This would show to the General Assembly a willingness to get the troops out.

CONCERN OVER JORDAN

But a cause of increasing concern here is the state of affairs in nearby Jordan, which Britain undertook to protect following the coup which overthrew King Faisal in neighboring Iraq July 14. Jordan's King Hussein has little popular support.

His great supporter in earlier crises has been King Saud of Saudi Arabia. Evidence that Saudi Arabia and Nasser's U.A.R. government were negotiating to patch up their differences appeared here to weaken further Hussein's shaky regime.

U.S. officials hope it will survive as long as the British are in Jordan. They are extremely doubtful it can be preserved if and when the British leave.

Administration planning embraces a broader scope than Lebanon and Jordan, however. It includes these main projects:

1. The UN should create a Middle East commission, preferably of small nations rather than great power representatives. The commission could visit the area and come up with specific recommendations for solving basic, long-range problems.
2. A new economic plan must be provided under the UN, with contributions from the United States, other wealthy Western nations and the oil-producing countries of the Middle East.
3. Arms control, which has been proposed by Russia, is still vigorously debated within the administration. Some officials maintain the United States should take the lead in setting up principles and machinery to regulate the flow of weapons to all the Arab states and Israel. Most officials argue that control policies would be impossible to police.
4. A UN police force should be set up to give protection to all threatened countries. A start could be made by having the UN take over from U.S. troops in Lebanon and possibly from British troops in Jordan.
5. A UN watchdog commission should be created to monitor international radio broadcasts and report when one country starts agitating against the government of another. Broadcasting stations on the free world side, such as Radio Free Europe, to which the Soviets violently object, would be put under the same scrutiny as Nasser's Cairo Radio. The watchdog group would have no police powers but might focus world attention on any violent agitation.
6. Borders between the Arab states and Israel might be guaranteed by the United Nations once they were established to replace present military truce lines.

Mount Stewart Teacher Has Exceptional Record

During examination season records are being established by students and teachers across the country but one of the most noteworthy to come to light is that of the Principal of Mount Stewart, Warren McGuirk who between the years 1946-1958 had 64 students pass grade ten provincial examinations out of 66 who tried. The teacher explains that each of the two who failed had been advised against trying the exams but wanted to get the experience. This in itself would be most creditable showing but to add to his laurels as a teacher, Mr. McGuirk was successful in having ten of his 64 students win provincial scholarships.

Those who won scholarships are Pauline and Jacqueline Cumiskey in 1949; Frank Pigot, 1947; Barbara McAskill, 1951; Mae Douglas and Bruce Pigot, 1950; Ross Pigot, 1955; James Reddin, 1953; Roger Clark, 1957 and Ellen Reddin, 1958.

Warren McGuirk has finished 21 years in the teaching profession. He has a first class license. Until a year ago he taught grades 6-10 but this year will teach grades 7-10. Modest in his success, Mr. McGuirk admits that he has an intense interest in his work and takes pleasure out of seeing his students succeed.

In the summer holidays, he

UN Scientists Reject Demand To End Testing

TED ATOS, (A)ETAS/WH/ UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—United Nations scientists have rejected by a big majority a Soviet demand that they call for an immediate end to nuclear weapons tests.

They did so despite unanimous agreement that even a slow rise in world radioactivity from all sources constitutes a danger to the future of mankind.

The majority agreed that "even a slow rise in the environmental radioactivity in the world, whether from weapons tests or any other sources, might eventually cause appreciable damage to large populations before it could be definitely identified as due to irradiation."

There was no contradiction of a statement that present attempts to evaluate effects of radiation to which man is now exposed can produce only tentative estimates with wide margins of uncertainty.

9.5 APPROVAL

But a key part of the report dealing with general conclusions won approval by a vote of 9 to 5 with one abstention. The breakdown was not given.

Mr. Eaton, who is one of the chief investors in the rapidly developing mining areas of Northern Labrador and Quebec, stated that P.E.I. might well become chief source of supply for the large industrialized centres that would arise eventually in these regions.

"North of the tree line everything necessary to maintain life must be brought in," he said, adding that direct connections by sea, the island was ideally situated to become the storehouse for this vast area.

The Duke of Bedford was impressed with the thoroughness with which the Islanders cultiva-
