The Peoples' Druggist

Drugs are expensive. Sometimes they are more expensive than need be. And sometimes they are not so reliable as they ought to be.

There was a time when the prices of drugs were away up—too high altogether.

That is not the case now. The Apothecaries Hall changed that some time ago.

You can get prescriptions from pure drugs at the proper prices—no fancy profits.

You can get all my reliable special remedies; they've been tried and found effective.

The price—the main thing—will be found right in every case.

OPEN LETTER NO XI

To the Hon. Donald Farquharson the "Unsound."

Sir,—You have been on another delegation to Ottawa. After ruining the country one would think you might negotiate with Ottawa by correspondence. Eight dollars a day and your travelling expenses is something which this province cannot stand much longer. We read of an un-natural leader as follows: "The tail, it seems, one day quarrelled with the head and instead of being forced always to follow insisted that it should lead in its turn. Accordingly the tail undertook the charge, and as it moved forward at all adventures it tore itself in a terrible manner; and the head, which was thus, obliged, against nature, to follow a guide that could neither see nor hear suffered likewise in its turn." If all they say is true, and it is currently believed, you were untrue both to Messrs. Peters and Warburton. You were in high dudgeon at the latter and the above described picture describes you to a T. The corruption and thievery that is rampant now, as witnessed in the Liberal practices in Ontario, where seats are stolen, ballots tampered with, reminds one of the practices in the reign of Charles the Second. There was a member of Parliament representing the borough of Hull named Andrew Mervell, a gentleman of little or no fortune; but the borough maintained him in London for the services of the public. We read that with a view to bribe him, his old school fellow, the Lord Treasurer Danby went to him in his garret. At parting the Lord Treasurer slipped into his hand an order upon the Treasury for £1,000, and then went into his chariot. Mervell looked at the paper and called for the Treasurer. "My Lord, I request another moment." They returned to the garret, and Jack, the servant boy, was called. Jack, what had I for dinner yesterday? Don't you remember, sir, you had the little shoulder of mutton that you asked me to bring from a woman in the market? Very right, what have I for dinner today? Don't you know, sir, that you made me lay up the bladebone to broil? 'Tis so very right. Go away. My Lord, do you hear that? Andrew Mervell's dinner is provided; there is your piece of paper. I want it not. I knew the sort of kindness you intended. I live here to serve my constituents. The ministry may seek men for their purpose; I am not one.

Here is an example that is worthy of imitation. It is a great pity that we had not more of Andrew Mervell's spirit and pluck. You were a Danby when you placed that cheque or paid Mr. Wise $100 for the English trip. You were a Danby in road contracts, but like Mervell, who had his dinner provided for Mr. Wise, did not con- ply with your request, and he is now looking after the interests of his constituents. He is wise to leave the sinking ship, for if there was a time requiring wisdom in the management of the affairs of this province now is the time, and the country needs the guidance of Providence.

There is a providence in the appearance of great men. They are not the product of chance. It has been said that all institutions are the projected shadow of some great man that has absorbed all the light of his time in himself. Sir John Macdonald, Alexander Mackenzie, Sir John Thompson and among the living Sir Charles Tupper are examples of great men. They throw out light, clear steady, practical light that shall travel over a century. They were and are heroes of their time—the focus where influences are gathered and from whence they shoot out. It is very wrong for a man not having the ability or talent to lead a government to be so prehensile with his appendages as to hold on to a place in a government that he is incapable to fill. Napoleon once said, "My sympathy could be retained only by proving myself a better man than any other man in the army; had I yielded to human weakness I should have lost my power." How few men consider this matter, and how important it is for a man who accepts the position of the "wise man" that he should be thoroughly educated to its requirements and exactions. No wonder you are a failure for you can never be the leader of men.

Since you usurped the functions of the head disaster has visited you. You evidently belong to the race spoken of by Jacques Cartier with a head not risen above the shoulder.

The political corruption in the times of Caesar and Pompey when men were so corrupted that tables were publicly set out upon which the candidates for offices were professedly ready to pay the people the price of their votes is not unlike many of the practices of the present corrupt age. We have men calling themselves reformers who appear now as masters of the ways that are dark, and if the church has any right to be styled the church of the Living God its pulpits should ring with the steady sound of denunciation of the practices that are now carried on by men in high places. One pulpit in Montreal has spoken. What have the pulpits of Protestant and Catholic churches in P. E. Island to say? Speak out, ye watchmen who care for men's souls, as those who must give an account. Let the pulpits of Belfast and Fort Augustus see to it that corruptors of morals and men who would bribe the electors shall receive a cold reception. Preach them down, write them down, and vote them down, is the duty of every moral reformer and lover of his country. If the people wink at these things and allow this state of affairs to continue, destruction and ruin will surely overtake us. When the campaign opens remember the noble example of Andrew Mervell. Let the corrupt Danbys perish with their tempting bribes. Providence will find a man when you open the Belfast District—the Fort Augustus District—men who will be imbued with the spirit of honesty, who will, like Andrew Mervell, so long as his dinner was provided, consider himself the servant of the people. Oh for more such men in local and federal politics,—not knighthood hunters—great men appear to come in groups—the next group will change the whole face of clay. I am anxious to hear what your mission to Ottawa has brought forth, perhaps you are contemplating a dissolution to let yourself down easy.

ESTEEMED EXCHANGES.

Halifax Herald: It is rumored and a good many believe that a general Dominion election will take place before many more months are past. If the election should not take place till after another session of parliament, the ordinary imagination fairly staggers at what Tarte's "next year" will be. If the "sixty million session" is not enough preparation for an election, what will he think enough for such an event?

London News: The people of Canada are doing a lot of quiet thinking these days over that $60,000,000 session, and there'll be a lot of sixty million dollar politicians who will get it where the collar fits election day.

No Need of Looking Shabby.

It is Quite Easy to Make Old Dresses and Suits Look Like New

Economical and smart women can make wondrous creations from seemingly useless garments. The old dress that is out of style or too faded to wear can readily be dyed with Diamond Dyes to a fashionable color, and then made over so that it will look equal to new. Suits for boys can be made from old ones discarded by the father, and a bath in Diamond Dyes will make them look as handsome as new. Dresses and cloaks for the little girls can be made with little trouble and at small expense from cast-off garments of the older folk, and when they are dyed with Diamond Dyes the new make-overs will look as though they were fresh from the dressmaker.

Diamond Dyes are made especially for home use, and it is impossible for even the most inexperienced to have ill luck or meet with disappointments. Diamond Dyes color anything from ribbons, laces and fringes to heavy suits, jackets and dresses, and always make lasting colors that even the professional dyer cannot rival.

A DIABETES CASE

Thomas Harrison, of St. Mary's Ferry, N. B., Cured of Diabetes by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

The Only Medicine That Will Cure Diabetes—Mr. Harrison Finds it—Dodd's Kidney Pills is the Name and Similar Names are Worthless Imitations.

St. Mary's Ferry, N. B., Aug 21.—Mr. Thomas Harrison, of this town, is one of the many in the province of New Brunswick who has been rescued from the clutches of Diabetes by Dodd's Kidney Pills. Diabetes has been incurable for centuries, but the becoming of this decade saw a remedy discovered and introduced that could master it. The remedy is Dodd's Kidney Pills, which will cure any disease of the kidneys whatsoever. Dodd's Kidney Pills form the original kidney cure, and the host of others now on the market are imitations.

Mr. Thomas Harrison, of St. Mary's Ferry, York County, N. B., says:

"About a year ago I began to suffer from pain in the back, accompanied by lethargy impossible to overcome. I employed a Fredericton physician who named my disease as Diabetes, but in spite of his treatment I grew worse and began to pass blood.

"About this time an anxious friend advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, and by the time I had finished the first box I passed a stone of unusual size which is now in the doctor's possession. I began to feel better at once, and you may judge of my gratitude for my escape thus promptly and safely. Having taken only three boxes, I am most happy to say that I am completely cured with no sign of any return of the trouble."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are fifty cents a box, six boxes $2.50, or will be sent on receipt of price by the Dodd's Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto.

"Let the Searchlight of Practice Illuminate the dark places of Theory"

A THOROUGHLY Progressive, Practical institution, in which young men and women are not only taught Bookkeeping (in all its applications to Commerce) both by single and double entry, but are trained how to do business by actual business transactions. These students act as buyers, sellers, traders, bankers, loan-shoers and accountants in actual business operations, and the currency issued by the College Bank, and the made-issued from the Emporium are used in bona-fide business transactions, just the same as in mercantile and banking houses. Book-keeping in itself may be learned at home, but a knowledge of how to transact business cannot be thus acquired. That our course and system of training is eminently practical write for testimonials from business men and from students who are now holding lucrative and responsible positions.

SUBJECTS:

Book-keeping by single and double entry (theoretical and practical) Actual Business Practice, Business Penmanship, Business Correspondence, Commercial Arithmetic, Commercial Law, Railroading, Steamboating, Banking (actual practice in the College Bank), Typewriting, Shorthand, and Navigation.

FACULTY:

J. B. Miller, Principal, Teacher of Book-keeping, Arithmetic, Business Practice, Business Correspondence, Typewriting and Navigation.
