A Romance in Real Life.

The late John S. Gittings, of Baltimore, millionaire, left by will $200,000 to his young grandson, Ernault Williams. On his 21st birthday Ernault announced to his family his engagement to Miss Mamie Hazlett, a young woman of unblemished reputation but not in society. His father, a millionaire and president of the last Maryland senate, forbade the marriage. Ernault remained steadfast, the wedding day was fixed, and the stern parent turned him out of doors. Sometime afterward Ernault went to his father's office. He had been drinking. When he had left the office he had signed a deed of trust of all his property to his father, the latter agreeing to pay him annuity of $2,000 a year. He has also been induced to write a note to Miss Hazlett breaking of the engagement and to agree to start at once for New York, where the members of the family packed him off to Europe. There he was taken in charge by a courier of his father's selection whose principal duty was to intercept all his letters except the family ones. He was told that his only chance of prolonging his life was to drink sundry German mineral waters; also that Miss Hazelett's brother had sworn to kill him at sight. But finally she wrote a letter to him which escaped the courier's vigilance. Ernault took the first steamer for America, married her within 24 hours after landing, and then brought suit against his father to get the trust deed set aside and recover his $200,000. This suit has just been decided in his favor.

Are Canned Tomatoes Poisonous?

The controversy over the Earl Canned Food bill and the illness in a Brooklyn family last week come up opportunely. Only those members of the family who had eaten canned tomatoes had symptoms of poisoning, and one in particular was so seriously ill that death was expected. Besides the symptoms of lead poisoning, caused, it is supposed, by the action of the acids of the tomatoes on the lining of the can, she had, the attending physician says, the convulsions and coma attending poisoning by muriatic acid. The chemist of the Brooklyn Board of Health, in reporting his investigation of the case, said that he thought the illness was caused by the presence of muriatic acid, or the fact that the tomatoes were unfit for use, and he is inclined to the latter belief. He was, however, unable to get any of the contents of the can from which the family supply was taken. Muriatic acid is used in a solution of zinc in the place of rosin in soldering the cap on the head of the can, and it is thought that some of it may have dripped into the can.

There was also a suspicion that the illness might have resulted from the refilling of an old can. The old tomato can and its mysterious uses have been the common stock in trade of funny poets and paragraphers, and in the metropolis particularly the can has been the proverbial food for goats, with circus poasters as delicacies. But in Brooklyn it has been asserted, since the case of poisoning, that the gathering of old cans for refilling furnishes employment for many hands. The health Commissioner found only one concern that buys old cans, and he solemnly assures a grateful public that they are used exclusively for a preparation of whitewash.—N. Y. Sun.

London Truth states:—The Crofters who emigrated last year from Lady Gordon Cathcart's estates in the Hebrides are doing so well, and the experiment has proved so entirely successful, that her ladyship has arranged to purchase 500,000 acres of land in the Turtle Mountain country of Manitoba, on which it is proposed to locate several more detachments of Crofters, who will leave for America in the course of this year.

Rev. Father Wilds' EXPERIENCE.

The Rev. Z. P. Wilds, well-known city missionary in New York, and brother of the late eminent Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:

"78 E. 54th St., New York, May 16, 1882.
MESSRS. J. C. AYER & Co., Gentlemen:

Last winter I was troubled with a most uncomfortable itching humor affecting more especially my limbs, which itched so intolerably at night, and burned so intensely, that I could scarcely bear any clothing over them. I was also a sufferer from a severe catarrh and catarrhal cough; my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in former years, I began taking it for the above-named disorders. My appetite improved almost from the first dose. After a short time the fever and itching were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My catarrh and cough were also cured by the same means, and my general health greatly improved, until it is now excellent. I feel a hundred per cent stronger, and I attribute these results to the use of the SARSAPARILLA, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised. I took it in small doses three times a day, and used, in all, less than two bottles. I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may do good.

Yours respectfully, Z. P. WILDS."

The above instance is but one of the many constantly coming to our notice, which prove the perfect adaptability of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to the cure of all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood, and a weakened vitality,
