Preview For 1967 National Heritage Camp

At the headquarters of the Girl Guides of Canada in Toronto, and at provincial Guide headquarters across the country, Guide leaders have been thinking in recent months about how the organization is going to celebrate Canada's 100th birthday in 1967.

One plan is for the national Heritage Camp, which will be held in 1967, and which is likely to be one of the most exciting and interesting camps ever held in this country.

Naturally the Heritage Camp will celebrate our Canadian heritage — our history and traditions — and by doing so, everyone taking part will learn a little more about Canada and Canadians.

However, before the big national Heritage Camp in 1967, there will be 12 provincial Heritage Camps this year, and the federal government has made a grant to the Canadian Girl Guides to assist them in carrying out this first step of their centennial project. This year, 1966, is a good year to begin the heritage project, because it's the one hundredth anniversary of another very important date in Canadian history.

HISTORIC MEETINGS

Remember 1864? That was the year of the historic meeting of the men who were to become the Fathers of Confederation.

To celebrate this anniversary, and to lay the ground for the one big national Heritage Camp in 1967, this year's 12 provincial Heritage Camps will study history and geography at the provincial level.

Sound dry? Well, it won't be. Each camp will have a special theme encouraging the girls to study the contributions of early pioneers, follow historic trails and visit historic shrines. In British Columbia it might be the famous Caribou Trail; in Manitoba Guides will learn about the Selkirk settlement and the early fur traders; in Ontario they'll study pioneer life and visit the re-created early Canadian settlement at Morrisburg known as Upper Canada Village; and in P.E.I. of course the Guides will visit the Confederation chamber.

TWELVE CAMPS

There will be twelve camps with one in each province and two other French-speaking camps, one in Ontario, the second in Quebec, with 26 girls at each camp making a total of over 300 Guides on the move. Each province chose its own representatives, and decided to which province they would go.

Here's how they'll be divided up at each camp: two Guides from each province, four from Guides Catholiques du Canada, and two Girl Scouts from the United States. As well, three provinces will have a bonus of two more Guides: two Yukon Guides are going to the Alberta camp, two from the Northwest Territories will be in Ontario, and two from the Eastern Arctic will attend the Quebec Camp.

CAMPING DATES

Each camp will run from July 8 to July 20, and all the Guides will be flying by Air Canada to their camps on exactly the same day, July 6.

In charge of the P.E.I. Heritage Camp, to be held at Brackley Beach, will be Mrs. Fernu Rogers as commandant, with Mrs. Earl Taylor (provincial camping commissioner) as assistant commandant and Mrs. Morley Wylie (Prince County camping adviser) as quartermaster. A qualified water front instructor and a camp nurse will also be on the staff.

In one sense, these will be "study" camps. But they're likely also to be the best fun the campers ever had, and will provide inspiration for Guides in every province to learn more about their own Province — and the others — in anticipation of the big celebration in 1967, and in hopes of being chosen to attend the National Heritage Camp.
