Reds Pick Spain As Fresh Soviet In Jumpy Europe

(By H. E. Knoblauch)
(By The Associated Press)

MADRID, April 20.—Communists and revolutionary socialists have united in a frank, open movement toward fulfillment of Lenin's prediction that Spain would be the second Soviet republic in Europe.

Coming out in the open as President Alcalá Zamora was dismissed, these two groups, claiming a united strength of 3,000,000, boldly announced a program which they hope will be realized "within the next five years."

Their common objective is a "Union of Iberian Soviet Republics," which would entail the following:

- (1)—Establishment of a proletarian dictatorship.
- (2)—Programs for the "extermination of all fascists."
- (3)—Confiscation and nationalization of all landed estates, banks, mines, and factories and railroads.
- (4)—Destruction of all Catholic churches, convents and schools and deportation of all members of religious orders.
- (5)—Dissolution of the Spanish civil guard of 32,000 men and officers and creating in its stead a "national workers' militia" as an adjunct to a "Spanish soviet army."
- (6)—Elimination of the Spanish Moroccan protectorate and the setting up of "indigenous republics," within the Iberian Union, of Tunis, Algeria.
- (7)—Ultimately, absorption of Portugal in the "union." Should Portugal resist "pacific absorption," the program calls for "military invasion and domination."

While the consensus is that the program seems too ambitious to be cause for much alarm, the very boldness of the would-be upsets of Spanish democracy has excited considerable apprehension in many quarters. The rightists, accepting the announced program as a serious challenge, called upon the government and the nation at large to "suffocate the red movement before it gains force."

The rightist newspapers "El Debate," "Ya" and "El Siglo Futuro" recalled the prediction attributed to Lenin at the second international communist congress in 1920: "I affirm, and history will soon bear me out, that the second European soviet republic will be Spain."

They charged that Trotsky was behind the movement which overthrew the monarchy of 1931, that he figured in the abortive left revolution of October, 1934, and that he "again is directing a red wave in Spain." The censorship permitted them to reprint, in bold-face type, an article published in "Le Matin" of Paris wherein it was stated that "two of Trotsky's trusted agents, Bela Kun and Losowski, are charged with carrying out a well-financed campaign in Spain—a campaign outlined by the communist in a special meeting held Feb. 27, immediately after the left election victory."

Impartial observers believe, however, that Spain still is predominantly conservative and would not submit to soviet rule. They are inclined to discount liberally the strength claimed by the revolutionaries and believe that should a show-down be forced, democracy would survive.

The fear engendered by the situation has, however, promoted many of Spain's best families to leave the country and others have moved nearer the frontiers.

Baldwin's Word Made Mary Webb

(By The Canadian Press)

OTTAWA, April 20.—Lady Tweedsmuir recently told an audience of University women that Mary Webb, internationally-known novelist, received her first effective publicity the day after her death from Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, who had been told of her ability by Lord Tweedsmuir.

Mr. Baldwin was asked to address a literary meeting, his remarks were later published and within a few days it was almost impossible to obtain any of her books in London. They have since gone into many editions.

Her Excellency remarked that Mary Webb had been her personal friend for several years. She had first heard of her from her own publisher to whom she had been talking of the difficulty of writers making a name while they were living. He spoke of a particularly brilliant and unrecognized author who knew and Lady Tweedsmuir wrote to Miss Webb and had successfully brought out most of her books during the war.

Other well-known women writers mentioned by Lady Tweedsmuir as personal friends were Anne Douglas Sedgwick who lived close to the Governor-General and his family in England and was according to her Excellency "like an oasis of quiet in a rushing world," and Virginia Woolf, who frequently said her friends liked her literary criticisms and only her acquaintances liked her novels. Lady Tweedsmuir remarked that she had belonged to the category of those who preferred the criticism.

Doomed Adelphi Has Open House

LONDON, April 20.—In the spring sunshine many people have been viewing the Adelphi houses before the sale. The Adelphi is to be torn down for the new bridge.

What the curious were most eager to see was the two-floor flat at No. 10 entered from Robert Street where George Bernard Shaw lived for some 20 years. The little wooden gable, with its grill of iron spikes and network on the stairs above the first landing, however, was shut as obdurate as it used to be in Shaw's time, when interviewers and American tourists knocked in vain. Mr. Shaw's Scandinavian housekeeper used to parry over the wicket and say final words as she went upstairs again.

Every room in the Adelphi has a history as well as an Adam mantelpiece and the crowd that spread over the terrace, their steps echoing through the empty rooms and passages, had a mind for both, some trying to pry off the tiles. "Rambling down in the second row of basement floors in one house I saw a door open, and an old lady came out," says a reporter.

"Who's there?" she called. "There's nothing down here," she said, "except me and my cat." She was still living in her two rooms deep down in the lower basement. One room seemed to have been the old kitchen in Garrick's rooms, with the big fireplace covering one part of the room twice as high as the other, with a window near the roof lit from a shaft.

It was a queer, romantic room, with odd shadows, and it was strange to think of that old lady down there at night with her cat and her grandfather clock in the bowels of the empty and doomed Adelphi.

DEBATING SOCIETY—A meeting of the Section A Debating Society met on Wednesday, April 15, in Room 12, P. W. C., with the president, Leslie Stewart, in the chair. The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. There being no business, the president called on Jim Burnett to open the debate. He was supported by Douglas Black and Mary MacDonald. The speakers on the con side were Frances Reeves, Esther Harper and John Kirby. The subject was "Resolved that modern social conditions make us all old fogies at forty." After the speeches a vote was taken, resulting in a victory for the con. After a few remarks by the critic, Prof. Blanchard was called upon for a few words. The meeting was then adjourned.

JUNIOR RED CROSS SOCIETY—The regular meeting of the "Smiling Helpers" Junior Red Cross Society was held on April 17th. The President, Austin MacCallum presided. Meeting opened by singing "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall." Roll call was responded to by "naming Spring flowers." The minutes of last meeting were read and approved. The various committees had very satisfactory reports. The following new committees were appointed: Health, Faith MacDonald and Lucy Carver; Service, Ian Stewart and Bryer Jones; Program, Buddy Molyneux and Olive Stewart; Water, first week Norma MacCallum and Louise MacNeil; 2nd week, Jean MacRae and Alicia Jenkins. The following program was then carried out: Opening chorus "We are a Happy Healthy Band." Reading, Bryer Jones, Reading, Lucy Carver, Reading, by Claude Wood, Chorus, "Twilight is Stealing." Reading by Ian Stewart, National Anthem. The pupils then all participated in a jolly party consisting of a grab bag, contests and games. Scout News and Notices

His Majesty King Edward VIII has graciously consented to become Patron of the Boy Scouts Association in succession to his father, the late King George V.

A new 100-acre camp site, with numerous individual troop camping spots will be the hiking and camping mecca of many of Toronto's 9,000 Scouts and Cubs this summer.

Some 1500 Boy Scouts drawn from London and the Home Counties are rehearsing for what is described as the biggest musical show ever put on at Royal Albert Hall, London. The play, "Boy Scout," depicts the Scout history of a boy seeking modern adventure, with the ghosts of explorers, adventurers, crusaders, soldiers and sailors in the background wishing him well. One scene features 1,000 "Red Indians."

A most important contribution toward solution of South Africa's difficult racial problem is credited to Lord Baden-Powell during his recent visit to Africa. This was an agreement reached, under his leadership, by which there will be three non-European self-governing Scout associations in the Union—Pathfinder, Colored and East Indian—all joined with the English-speaking section under the Union Scout Council. The basis of the agreement was adoption of the principle of the inter-relation of colour set forth by Sir Frederick Lugard in the terms: "Here, then, is the true conception of the inter-relation of colour: complete uniformity in ideals, absolute equality in the paths of knowledge and culture, equal opportunity for those who strive, equal admiration for those who achieve; in matters social and racial a separate path, each pursuing his own race purity and race pride; equality in things spiritual, across difference in the physical and material." A leading South African churchman declared the Scout Movement had given public opinion a lead on the colour question "in accordance with Christian spirit and modern progress."

That Rover Scout training had proved a valuable foundation for other students of study by theological students at Bishop's College, Lennoxville, was a tribute paid by Rev. Philip Carrington, Lord Bishop of Quebec.

A contingent of Scouts under the Headmaster of Harrow County School will represent Great Britain this summer at large Scout camp to be held near Colmar, Alsace, to celebrate the Jubilee of the Eclairiers (Scouts) Unionistes de France.

A thriving Boy Scout troop at the Canadian Academy, Kobe, Japan, counts as members boys from Canada, United States, England, Austria, Guatemala, Holland, Spain, Denmark, Iceland, Channel Islands, and a Jewish boy exiled from Germany.

The object of Scouting is to create in boyhood a warm central core of moral activity and purposefulness. It will live in this country and all countries. For these reasons I would say that the contribution Scouting is making to the education of the highest importance."—Prof. Watson Kirkconnell of Manitoba University.

Statistics show that the average age of the inmates of the penal institutions throughout the country is 19 years, and that the average education of inmates is the sixth grade in school. The above facts tell us that a few years ago these boys were of school age, and I believe to prevent crime we should study closer the conduct of our children in school today. Such organizations as the Boy Scouts, and others, do wonderful work in taking children at a dangerous age, which is about 12 years old, and keeping them busy with useful entertainment until they have reached an age where they realize their responsibilities. This is borne out by the fact that the number of boys and girls who have belonged to such organizations have been few and far between in our courts.—Chief of Police J. T. Owens, Rome, N. Y.

★ (Or Call for Them)

Congratulations to the hundreds and hundreds of our women readers who have already obtained the Wonder Package! And sincere, final warning to those who have intended to order, but "forgot!" We have mighty, mighty few Wonder Packages in stock. We have wired for more—and hope to get them soon, but we are far from sure. If you want to make sure of an immediate and unprecedented bargain—and a lifetime of embroidery enjoyment—come to our offices today—or mail in that coupon. Surely you must have seen the Wonder Package in the homes of your friends; if not, a real treat awaits you. No matter how little or how much embroidery work you have done in the past, the Wonder Package—plus the marvelous "cold transfer" process—will reawaken your interest in the art in a way you might not have thought possible. The Wonder Package, madam, is a fascinating treasure house of design!

MANY USES—AND TO BE USED OVER AND OVER

If you have not already seen the Wonder Package—or heard about the sensational "cold transfer" process, please bear this in mind:

By pressing the bowl of a tablespoon across the dampened, reverse side of the Wonder Pattern, you get clean lined, beautiful reproductions of beautiful patterns—better results than you ever got the old fashioned, hot-iron way that caused so much delay, fussing, loss of temper.

That's the "cold process" we refer to. And you will hugely enjoy its convenience.

Importantly, too, this means that you get many transfers from each pattern, as the "cold process" does not tear down the original—which is printed on heavy paper that stands long use. How different from the one-transfer pattern of hot-iron days! Thus a real economy is added to this very real convenience. Truly, there are many uses for Wonder Patterns—and they will give you a veritable lifetime of service!

Over 800 Patterns

Use this Coupon to get the Wonder Package at our offices or by mail. Get the embroidery materials you need from the merchants who advertise in this newspaper.

WOMEN CAN TELL MOODS OF MUSIC

(By The Canadian Press)

TORONTO, April 20.—"Women are especially sensitive in their responses to the moods of music and should be encouraged to take a more active role in music production, not only as singers and pianists, but also as regular members of symphony orchestras," says Leopold Slogowski, conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra directing the concert given by the world-famed organization in Varsity Arena here.

"I believe that there is a new and amazingly large field opening up for women in symphonic music, now that women have more freedom in all fields, and a few pioneers among them have demonstrated what they can do in orchestral music," he asserts.

The conductor himself so firmly believes in the interpretative abilities of women musicians that he has three in his famous Philadelphia group, the women being two harpists and a cellist. Prejudice against women in any field, Mr. Slogowski believes, is a relic of the days when women were incarcerated in seraglios, and he sees no reason why they should not now enter and distinguish themselves in the orchestral field as well. He is proud of the fact that the Philadelphia Orchestra was the first organization of its kind to enlist the services of women committees on its behalf and to a large extent these committees are responsible for its present-day success.

WE'RE FUNNY FOLK TO INDIAN PEOPLE

(By The Canadian Press)

MONTREAL, April 20.—"You may laugh at their customs, but they think ours are equally funny," Miss S. Hinman of Akita, South India, commented as she described some of the ways of the Indian people at a meeting here of the Zenana Mission.

Mrs. Hinman spoke of Infa as a topsy-turvy land where the rule of "gentlemen first" prevailed, where the more a man smacked his lips over food the more appreciation he showed, and where it was more polite to say, "How thin and scrawny you look," than "How well you look."

To be in debt was quite creditable, because it showed one was of sufficient importance to receive credit. There the groom presented the bride with her wedding garments, while the bride supplied the groom's wedding clothes.

MAN COUGHS UP PIN IN THROAT 15 YEARS

LIVINGTON, Mont., April 20.—Fifteen years after G. K. Bowering swallowed a common pin he was seized with a fit of coughing and the pin appeared, rusty but whole. When the pin became lodged Bowering's voice turned husky and remained so. Now he expects it to return to normal.

AUSTRALIAN FISH RESEARCH SUBJECTS

Possibilities of commercial fishing in Australian waters never have been thoroughly investigated, but the Federal Government has decided the subject is one worthy of close study. It has commissioned Professor Dakin, of the Sydney University, to look into fishing operations on the Pacific coast of America more particularly the types of vessels suitable for investigation work. Professor Dakin recently has been in San Francisco and Los Angeles.—Australian Press Bureau.

Titania's Fairy Palace

Titania's Fairy Palace, which was designed and built in amazing detail by Sir Neville Wilkison, has concluded a thirteen months' tour of Australia in the interest of charity. It was seen by 214,217 people who paid almost $50,000 for admission. This money will go to the Australian funds for crippled children. By exhibiting the palace in England and various parts of the world, Sir Neville has made approximately $400,000 for crippled charities.—Australian Press Bureau.
