Junior Legionaires High-Flying

This isn't the story called "Who killed Cock Robin?" This one is named "Who's going to kill Cock Robin?" And Cock Robin are those high-riding Junior Legionaires who can be pardoned for feeling a little cocky after all their victories. They haven't been beaten this year. Seven wins and a tie is, we believe, their record. The Texaco Combines managed to hold them to a draw once, but in all other games the opposition skated off the ice on the short end of the score. Who's going to be the first to beat them?

It could happen tonight down in that little car-ferry town call ed Borden. The Nationals are steadily improving, and if they can muster all their hockey talent tonight, the Juniors may find out how it feels to taste the bitter dregs of defeat. Borden has lost the services of Charlie Sark but offsetting this for tonight, the Juniors will be short their top scoring hand, Alan Gaudet, who will be sitting out a game by order of the league executive. So, bend your bow, and aim your arrow straight. Nationals, and you may be the first to wing those high-flying Juniors and bring them back to earth.

After the new Kinsmen Juvenile Hockey League schedule is run off, we'll wager a better all-star team will emerge than was the case in other years with virtually only one team functioning all winter. Congratulations Kinsmen. And Whitmore Muttart gets the first star in the Juvenile League for turning the "hat trick" in the first game. He should be a fine prospect for the Junior Legionaires next year or the year after.

Coach Suggests Beards

If the O'Leary hockey players follow the advice of coach Ron MacArthur and grow beards for his contest, the team will look like a House of David aggregation. We saw the house of David baseball team play in Ottawa a good many years ago, and they were a very capable group of ball tossers. They had mobile lighting equipment which they set up in the Ottawa ball park. This was our first experience in watching a ball game at night. Here, in hockey, we'll have to insert a new penalty in the book of rules. Pulling beards in the corners should call for a double major at least. Don't you think so, Glen and Red?

What rejuvenates an old fellow Hockey-experience wise is like Kenny Wharram so that he suddenly is transformed into one of the super-dupers of hockey. Methinks it is partly the company he keeps — on the ice, that is. Parker MacDonald is another example. On a line with Howe, he's good when Howe is good, and just another hockey player when Howe is not delivering.

Pay As You Play Curling Popular

TORONTO (CP)—Your foursome is cleaning up every week in the office league—a pay-as-you-go operation at a nearby curling rink. The way you've been going lately, you're sure you could clobber the Richardsons in the Canadian championships.

Assuming you're really that good, you can have a shot at it—providing you live in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Alberta or Ontario.

Not long ago it was virtually impossible to slide a rock down a sheet of ice without taking out a club membership. Today the curler who pays his way into the rink is a growing force in the roaring game. But he roars louder in some parts of the country than in others.

60 IN ONTARIO

In Ontario, where some 60 leagues operate on a pay-as-you - go basis, any organized group of at least 16 members and curling regularly at a single rink may enter its championship foursome in the provincial playoffs and can be accepted by the Ontario Curling Association as a member organization.

Alberta also allows its pay-as-you-go curlers to affiliate for a fee and to participate in provincial playoffs although the province is resisting a demand by women curlers in the Calgary area for mass affiliation.

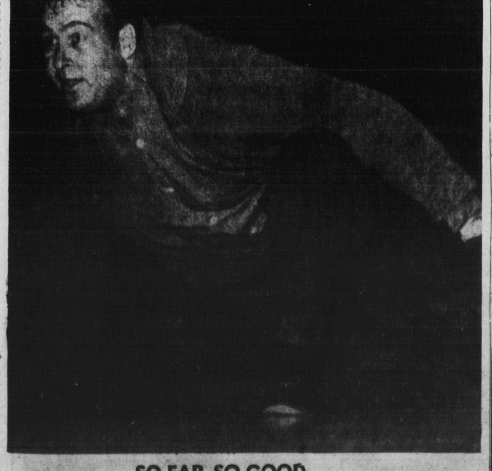
The Glencoe Club of Halifax, only pay-as-you-go operation in Nova Scotia, and the Thistle Club in Saint John, N.B., also provide facilities for outside curling leagues which may affiliate with their provincial associations.

But the visitors are not as readily accepted elsewhere.

OFFER NO SUPPORT

The Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia Curling Associations withhold recognition from curlers not members of recognized clubs. Leo Johnson, president of the Manitoba association, says non-affiliated curlers offer no financial support and are therefore ineligible to enter any association-sponsored event.

A hatfway position is taken by the Canadian branch of the Royal Caledonia Curling Club, governing body of the sport in Quebec and adjacent areas of eastern Ontario.



SO FAR, SO GOOD

Rae Gervais of Edmonton watches with obvious satisfaction as one of his rocks is on target during the Masters Curling Championship in Calgary Tuesday. He lost the match to Lyall Dagg of Vancouver during the preliminary round by a score of 9-7. The tournament ends Saturday.

Maple Leafs Clobber Habs And Tie For Second Spot

By Tom Williams

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs jumped into a second-place tie with Montreal Canadiens in the National Hockey League Wednesday night, overpowering Canadiens 6-1 before 14,036 fans.

Leafs and Canadiens each have 46 points, three behind leading Chicago Black Hawks. Leafs have played one game fewer than Montreal.

The score was tied 1-1 after a fast, close first period, then Toronto barrelled into a 4-1 lead in the second.

Frank Mahovlich led Toronto with a goal and three assists. Red Kelly scored one goal and assisted on two, with Dave Keon, Bob Pulford, Carl Brewer and rookie Jim Pappin adding the other goals.

Swift Henri Richard, the best man on the ice for Canadiens, counted their only goal to tie the score 1-1 at 13:15 of the first period.

Leafs, hitting at every opportunity, charged into the lead on Kelly's goal with the game barely five minutes old. The veteran centre backhanded a close-in shot past goaltender Charlie Hodge on a fine play by Mahovlich, who dug the puck out of the corner beside the Montreal net.

RICHARD SCORES

Canadiens seemed sparked by the deficit and took control of the game in the latter part of the first period. Richard scored on a screened shot after Harper had moved in from the point to set him up.

Mahovlich set the Montrealers back early in the second, stealing the puck from defenceman J. C. Tremblay and rambling in from the left wing to score. He lost control of the puck momentarily, but knocked down Canadiens' Jacques Laperriere to grab it again on Hodge's doorstep.

Keon banged in Harris's goalmouth pass at 11:16 and Pulford made it 4-1, deflecting Stanley's blueline shot past Hodge.

Canadiens never seemed to recover from this setback and Leafs were in control the rest of the way.
