LOYALTY TO GOD AND THE STATE (The London Times)

Events now taking place in eastern Europe, where the claims of religious and of political loyalty are often in sharp conflict, give a topical relevance to a re-examination of Christ's penetrating dictum, "Render unto Caesar, and to God the things that are God's."

nothing very remarkable about it, or about the house. "Good evening, I'm sorry to have walked in so unceremoniously. But I've rung the doorbell several times and no one has answered. I'm Dr. Breaux. I understand you have a very sick woman in the house. This is Mrs. Fontaine, I presume?"

Strange But True

The police force of New York City has more men than there are residents in the city of Charlottetown. The big city has a police force of 19,100. Their work takes them through 322 polyglot squares miles of slums and business districts. They patrol 5,900 miles of streets, guard 29,957 intersections and 578 miles of waterfront. It's a big task and a big headache!

Of the milk produced in Canada, calves get 4 per cent; manufactured products take 48.9 per cent; 46 per cent is used in homes and the rest is wasted. Milk is not classed as a beverage. It is a food and, as such, should be drunk slowly.

First Link Between Cancer And Blood Types Discovered

By Alton L. Blakeslee NEW YORK, March 20 — (AP) Cancer in a woman's body has led to discovery of a common new blood type and a startling finding about cancer, a leading blood expert said last week.

It was found because the woman's blood wouldn't mix with blood from anyone else, except her sister. Her blood destroyed other bloods. The reason was traced to cancer. It apparently was making a chemical it isn't supposed to make.

It is the first link ever reported between cancer and blood types, which determine the safety of blood transfusions. It may help explain one origin of cancer. The report was made by Dr. Philip Levine, Director of the RH blood testing laboratory of Ortho Research Foundation, Raritan, N. J., at a meeting on blood types in the New York Academy of Sciences.

The new blood type was named the jarrell factor, after the 66-year-old woman who had a stomach cancer. Dr. Levine said the cancer cells contained the chemical for jarrell-type blood, and gave rise to antibodies against it in her own blood. This was shown by tests after the cancer was removed, without giving her blood transfusions. Finding this chemical in cancer cells may help explain how cancers start. Cancer cells are ordinary cells gone wild. Their heredity changes so they no longer live, work, and die like ordinary skin, muscle or nerve cells, and they don't do useful work.

The new finding is evidence that cancer cells, when they undergo this change, can take on jobs never suspected before. Maybe, Dr. Levine said, the hereditary change that started the cancer also gave the cancer cells the ability to make the blood-type chemical.

Whether cancers do this often isn't yet known.
