Pretty Summer Wedding Is Solemnized At North Tryon

North Tryon Presbyterian Church was the scene of a pretty summer wedding on Saturday, June 30, 1962 when Jessie Mildred, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Howatt, North Tryon, became the bride of Mr. Neil Goodwill MacPhail, son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil MacPhail, Argyle Shore.. The double ring ceremony was solemnized by Rev. George Killen.

The wedding music was in charge of Mrs. Leroy Howatt, aunt of the bride, and accompanied Mr. Bertram Thompson who sang "The Wedding Prayer" before the ceremony and "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register. The church was decorated with basket of summer flowers and the guests seats were marked with white satin bows and lily of the valley.

Given in marriage by her father the bride looked lovely in a gown of white silk organza over satin with tight fitting bodice embroidered with white alencon lace and sequins and full bouffant skirt. Her shoulder length veil was held in place by an organza rose and outlined with lace and sequins to match her dress. She carried a bouquet of pink roses entwined with ivy.

Mrs. Myron Matheson, sister of the bride, was matron of honor while Mrs. Frederick Andrews, friend of the bride, and Miss Ruthie Howatt, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids. They wore identical street length dresses of white silk organza over peau de soie with matching cummerbunds, petal hats and shoes of hot pink. They carried bouquets of white and pink mums. Miss Deborah Carr, niece of the bride was winsome in pink taffeta with white organza overskirt, hot pink cummerbund and headdress. She carried a nosegay of pink and white mums. Master Ricky Harvey, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

Mr. Clarence (Duke) MacPhail was groomsman for his brother while Mr. William MacPhail, brother of the groom, and Mr. James Howatt, brother of the bride, ushered the guests.

Mrs. Howatt chose for her daughter's wedding a blue taffeta sheath covered with organza, matching shoes and hat. Her corsage was of pink and white carnations. Mrs. MacPhail wore brown paisley silk with beige accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Tryon Baptist hall for approximately 100 guests. The toast to the bride proposed by Mr. Myron Matheson, was fittingly responded to by the groom. Miss Lois Muttart, friend of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

For a honeymoon trip through Nova Scotia the bride chose a blue and white sheath dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink and white carnations.

Out of the province guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Myron Matheson, Moncton; Mrs. Mona Bell, Fredericton, N.B.; Mr. and Mrs. Gary Mingo, Mr. and Mrs. Donnie MacNutt, Truro, N.S.; and Mr.. and Mrs. Lloyd MacDonald, Toronto.

Shower Held For Bride-To-Be

KENSINGTON — Miss Astrid Millar was honored with a community shower on Tuesday evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stirling Millar, Kelvin Grove, on the occasion of her approaching marriage.

The bride-to-be was escorted to a daintily decorated chair by Miss Valarie Woodside. The prettily wrapped parcels were carried in by three little nieces of the bride - elect, Heather, Catherine and Shirley Millar, and the ribbons were cut out by Judy Picketts and Andrea Johnson. Nancy MacMurdo and Sandar Huestis read the lovely and good wishes, and the gifts were arranged by Phyllis Millar, Gwenneth MacMurdo and Mrs. Bruce Profitt.

Mrs. Francis Moase and Mrs. Irving Millar re-filled the baskets, and the bows were gathered and arranged by Karen and Beverley Profitt, nieces of the bride-to-be.

Astrid gracefully voiced her thanks for the many beautiful and useful gifts.

ELLEN'S DIARY

One Small Boy Ponders Serious Matter Of Life

Coming by happily this morning on a call, which was intended to invite us to join him at feeding his pair of white rabbits, Alec barked a big toe. His steps left drops of poppy-red on the kitchen-floor. And "Oh dear" he complained of the sight and the soreness. Presently however, after his mother had treated and bound the injury, and he had entrusted the care of his bunnies to another, he sat playing with a pair of kittens on the back verandah.

"The worst of it is" he observed, when we came there a moment to chat with him, "I sha'n't be able to go to Church School, Sunday morning, because, it won't be better by then."

"But it won't make so much difference if you miss class one Sunday" we said.

"Oh, not in one way. But always like to go" he said, some longing in his voice.

Ever since the spring brought back the Church School's season, we have come to watch the three children go. We have been particularly interested in seeing them off, those mornings when they walk as far as lane's end, where they catch a ride thither with Mr. and Mrs. A., our neighbors, in the road...He is the Superintendant of the School and Mrs. A. helps with the childrens' hymns there —In the "Old Kirk's" earlier years, it was one of his forbears, gifted as Mr. A. himself with a voice and earn ear for music who struck the initial note on the tuning-fork at the Services which set the singing of the psalms on the proper tone or key.

Sometimes when we attend service, we confess, our thoughts wander from our devotions, as we try to picture those days of the far past, and the worshippers there. How good it would be, we fancy, to see in the flesh those whom James barely recalls from memory, or from legend handed down from his parents, of those who were a part of the congregation that once worshipped there.

So the children go, Granddaughter walking primly, prepared to meet her lessons of class — wondering, girl-like, whether or not a lighter or a darker dress would have been more becoming. And should she perhaps have worn that other pair of shoes, instead of the less modish pair she had chosen.

Mack's lesson he would be prepared. Not word-perfect, but as he would say "Good enough" A little tune on his lips — but always a Sunday tune, but some sweet lingering air he likes. His garb was put on to be forgotten. Mind Instead would be on the stock, and the crops, and farm work. And come to the lane-bridge he would stop to skip odd pebbles in the ripple of the Sunday's flow.

Alec, a strange little lad would stop to watch him, as would Granddaughter. Alec would defer his skipping of stones for a weekday. This was Sunday, the morning to go to Church School — to know his lesson, and also to be aware of its meaning.

And the morning would bless the three, as it would bless all youn'uns of every race and creed who were off to learn more, each in his own way, of the great All-Father who loves and watches over all.

"I think" Granddaughter on the couch with a book yawns "I'll go home to bed. Driving Jerry in the lift — well," she smiles "it allows for only short rests, if any. But I'll surely sleep sweet tonight!"

Until tomorrow — — Diary — Good-night.....

Campbell Family Has Reunion In Kensington

KENSINGTON — On Saturday, August 4, the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Campbell, Sr., was the scene of a happy gathering chiefly composed of the hosts's immediate family, and of his brothers and sisters along with their wives and husbands.

A very delicious lunch including a birthday cake was served, celebrating Preston's birthday the following day, and Annie May's and Jean's later in the month.

Music was furnished by the host on the violin, and by his two daughters, Ann, (Mrs. Hubert Murphy) on the guitar, and Mary (Mrs. Fulton Cousins) on the piano. Later Mary accompanying herself on the piano, sang some favorite old songs.

The reunion was especially enjoyed by all, as it is fourteen years since Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Campbell, of Trocku, Alta., last visited the Island. Mrs Campbell is the former Miss Annie Bryanton.

Mrs. Harry Dunsford donated a travelling apron to be sent around: and it was decided to gather woolens and other clothing to be sent to Korea.

MARY HAWORTH

Husband Tells Spouse To Overlook His Mistress

Dear Mary Haworth: After 15 years, my marriage is faltering and very close to falling apart.

I have heard there are books that explain why a husband may seem content with his marriage, and yet turn to another woman for variety and excitement.

At times I have suggested companionable ventures to my husband, that would give us a change and a lift, such as going off for a short holiday, by ourselves or with friends. But he wasn't interested.

Now he admits he sees another woman. I don't know just what to do, as he says it is nothing, just a little diversion, and I should just try to forget it and go back to the wonderful life we've always had.

I would appreciate your listing the titles of books that might show just how much is expected of the wife and the husband in marriage. My philandering husband seems to think he may have his cake and eat it too.

If anything has gone wrong, it is my fault, he says; and while I know I am not perfect, I feel I have always tried consistently to be a good wife and mother and keep a lovely and loving home. Be always has been the most important person in my world.

I realize my need of expert advice and would appreciate your immediate guidance. E.B.

Dear E.B.: I have in mind two books that should shed light on your problem. One is "Life Together" (Sheed and Ward) by Wingfield Hope, which wraps up the subject of how much is required of husband and wife, to make marriage what God intends it to be.

The other is "The Revolt of the Middle Aged Man" (A.A. Wyn, publishers) by Dr. Edmund Bergler, which X-rays the full range of alibi-reasons coined by philandering husbands, to explain (to themselves) why they jump the traces in pursuit of variety and excitement.

When all the excuses have been catalogued and analyzed, however, they add up to just one truism, namely: A man turns traitor to his marriage (as chiefly because he is as yet) just too immature to face the fact that he has but one life to live.

He hasn't the qualities of mind, heart and soul to come to grips, straightforwardly, with the limitations of being mortal — a formula that involves getting older, not younger; less potent, not more so; an assignment that leads inexorably to physical extention, sooner or later.

The immature male often tries to blindfold himself to this aspect of mortality by having an affair, or making a new marriage that gives him the temporary illusion, the respite feeling, of being a new creature.

Often he succeeds in fooling himself, at least for a while, that his accustomed wife is somehow at fault for his waning virility, when in fact there is nothing anyone can do to prevent his gradual decline on this score.

In the event he married the young wife a girl his own age, so that they have grown older apace, then in looking at her he sees himself, too, in the mirror of time. And if he isn't mature in spirit, and appropriately philosophic about "the way of all flesh," the sight may seem intolerable to him, and he may turn from her in an effort to escape his mortality.

As sure as man is born (and lives to grow up), he is scheduled to pass through the wringer of a great decision that separates the men from the boys. The decision is, as age creeps up, whether to go forward valiantly into the sunset, meanwhile keeping one's house in order? Or whether to panic and change partners, in a doomed effort to try to be young again — which is the theme of "The Revolt of the Middle Aged Man."

My advice is: read the books cited above; then make up your mind where you stand in respect to your husband's attempted flight from reality. The question is: do you choose to drift? Or to draw the line? M.H.

Brackley Pt. WI Holds Meeting

The members of the Brackley Point Women's Institute met recently at the home of Mrs. Harvey Jenkins with nine members answering roll call.

The school committee reported on the school picnic and there was no report from the sick committee. It was decided to hold the next meeting at the summer cottage of Mrs. Walter MacMillan and to serve hot dogs instead of the usual lunch.

Mrs. Ernest Walker and Mrs. Walter MacMillan reported on the Women's Institute provincial convention held in Charlottetown.

The meeting was adjourned and a "Count the bean" contest was held.

Lunch was served by the hostess and members of the committee in charge.

UCW Group Holds Meeting In Campbellton

ALBERTON — Campbellton United Church Women met last week at the home of Mrs. Glendon McKendrick for their organization meeting.

A very fine worship period, conducted by Mrs. Lloyd Bradshaw assisted by Mrs. Harry MacKay, had for its theme, "Wisdom." The purpose and function of the new organization were explained by Mrs. Fred Leard, president of Alberton group.

Mrs. A.C. Green, press secretary for the presbyterial, presided during the election of officers and afterwards led in discussion regarding the selection of material for workshop, bible study and mission study.

Officers chosen were: president, Mrs. Lloyd Bradshaw; vice-president, Mrs. Chester Reid; secretary, Mrs. Harry MacKay; treasurer, Mrs. Chester Reid, conveners of committees: program, Mrs. Vance MacKay (assisted by Mrs. Robert Shaw); community friendship and visiting, Mrs. Thomas Hardy) stewardship and recruiting, Mrs. Harry Thompson; manse, Mrs. Robert Shaw.

Plans were made to hold the inaugural service on Sunday evening early in September.

At the close of the meeting a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

THREE PLANES CRASH

HUSUM, West Germany (AP) Three West German reconnaissance jet fighters, from the Husum air base, crashed within minutes of each other Thursday. Two American F-84 thunderflashes — touched wings as they took off and crashed. The pilots escaped with slight burns. A few minutes later another plane of the same type crashed into a cemetery. The pilot escaped unhurt by using his ejector seat.

For drivers who CARE about cars

Make it a habit to add a shot or two of Rislone to prevent or cure engine trouble

A car gets in the blood of some drivers. You'll see them in neighborhood after neighborhood, checking under the hood to learn the wonders of an automobile engine first hand.

These folks have formed a good habit early in life. A car is something to care for. And Rislone is one product that helps them keep their automobiles operating at peak power. Rislone is not a cure-all. Used regularly however, it can help prevent or even cure many engine troubles encountered by drivers. Rislone dissolves engine gum and sludge deposits, frees sticky valves, restores lost compression. So join the drivers who have the Rislone habit to prevent or cure engine trouble. Rislone is a good car care habit.

FREE "SICK MOTOR" GUIDE FINDS CAUSE & CURE OF ENGINE ILLS BEFORE THEY GET EXPENSIVE

An automotive expert has prepared the Rislone "Sick Motor" Guide. This one handy chart helps find the cause and cure for 80 to 90% of the engine problems. It is based on the recommendations. Where overhaul, parts replacement or mechanic's counsel is required, it is so recommended. In many instances nothing more than a shot or two of Rislone or S-200 is called for to help restore peak power and operating performance.

Every driver will want to have a copy of the "Sick Motor" Guide to hang in his garage or basement. To get your copy, send name and address to The Shaler Company, Dept. C11-B Wapun, Wisconsin. Include 10c for postage and handling.
