Robichaud Is Optimistic On Fisheries Prospects

"I expect that the Canadian fishing industry throughout 1964, will find itself in the best position for some years to take advantage of the national and international markets for fishery products," said Hon. H.J. Robichaud, federal minister of fisheries in addressing the opening luncheon of the Fisheries Council of Canada convened yesterday at the Charlottetown Hotel.

"Against this optimistic background, we will always have problems," the Minister said. Conventions like the one in progress are an excellent means of pointing out problems and these problems "are easier to deal with in a generally buoyant economy."

Mr. Robichaud said that "these are fast moving times and no-one can gain the importance of research and technological development," and he added to see that these subjects, as well as the all-important matter of quality control are to be of major consideration at your meeting.

The minister said industry and government must work hand in hand to overcome problems. He pointed out that the program of inspection service to be carried out by his department on an experimental basis beginning this year.

In this program all fishing vessels would be inspected before they go to the fishing grounds, on the supply of ice and storage facilities, as well as the cleanliness of the ship. In addition methods of unloading and handling would be checked.

ROOM FOR IMPROVEMENT

The minister asked the delegates if, "with all its developmental progress, the industry really has the potential to exploit fishery resources, right on Canada's doorstep?" He indicated that these resources are so close at hand, bearing little or no cost of transportation is a fully continuous endeavor being made to insure that high quality fishery products reach markets, domestic and foreign.

Noting that the total value of commodity exports had risen by 44 per cent in the period 1956-1963, and that the group of "other manufactured commodities" had more than doubled in the same period, Mr. Robichaud said that the fishery product rise of 30 per cent in this period was not great.

Mr. Robichaud said that the industry should strive for bigger sales this year and that "there is no reason why this couldn't be an 'outstanding year'."

Members of the industry were presented by Fisheries Council as Canada, Jack B. Estey of Longville, N.B.

Councillor Ross was appointed liaison officer between the town and the Summerside Lobster Carnival and Liveck Association, Councillor McNeil was named Liaison officer between the town and the Summerside Raceway, and Councillors Key, Wood and McDonald were appointed members of the civil defence committee.

Plans were also made for negotiations to provide land for an entrance sign to the town at the corner of MacEwen Bay and Water Street East and to check the site of the new fountain to see that the pump house now under construction does not obstruct the view of the fountain itself.

and Social Credit (C.P.) and government are felt Canada had avoided what was shaping up as a serious crisis in national unity. Creditist spokesman G. J. Greig said Ottawa should move faster towards giving the provinces the whole income tax pot.

Mr. Pearson's statement referred to the $67,000,000 increase in provincial revenues for the current year provided at last November's federal-provincial conference.

This, combined with the new increases, would mean more than $200,000,000 extra by 1966.

Mr. Pearson said the improvement was being made in the interests of the whole country.

"We believe it is the way to secure the priority needs of the country, especially for education."

He also announced two moves which will mean some $14,000,000 a year in extra revenue for Quebec.

These involve arrangements for Quebec to opt out of two Extension of federal family allowances to students aged 16 and 17, and provision of interest-free loans to university students.

Since Quebec pays similar allowances at ages 16 and 17, he said the federal payments would be made in Quebec and the provincial government would receive tax compensation instead.

It's understood this will involve an extra share of personal income taxes for the province — perhaps three per cent.

Mr. Robichaud said that the industry should strive for bigger sales this year and that "there is no reason why this couldn't be an 'outstanding year'."

Injury Attaches No Blame In Adams Highway Death

SUMMERSIDE — A coroner's jury last night found that Edward Adams, a native of Ellerslie, came to his death on the night of Oct. 8, 1963 at approximately 7 p.m. while enroute to Prince George Hospital as a result of injuries received when an automobile which was operating with no collision with an automobile driven by Lowell Cotton.

The verdict was rendered following testimony by eight witnesses. Coroner in charge of the inquest was Dr. L.E. Frowse of Charlotteville. George R. McMahon acted for the crown.

Witnesses testifying last night were: Stanley Diamond, Ronald Moore, Francis Joseph Arsenault, Mrs. Dorothy Louise Cotton, Raymond Cotton, Lowell Cotton, George Barry Chappell and Dr. G.E. Robinson.

Following the initial crash between the Cotton and Adams vehicles, a third vehicle driven by Stanley Paugh but parked at the time on the side of the Western Highway near the Victoria West Road intersection where the collision occurred, became involved.

Two of four passengers in this vehicle at the time, Stanley Diamond and Ronald Moore, testified last night that they had not noticed any cars immediately prior to the collision. The Paugh car had stopped to let Mr. Moore out and Mr. Moore testified that the Paugh was off the highway and specified the back wheels. After getting out of the car he said he had walked towards the back of the car in order to cross the highway.

Up to that time, he said he hadn't noticed any other cars. The first thing he heard was a smash and the next thing he saw was the "Cotton car coming straight at me. His reaction was to jump into the ditch out of the path of the oncoming vehicle.

Mr. Robichaud said that "these are fast moving times and no-one can gain the importance of research and technological development," and he added to see that these subjects, as well as the all-important matter of quality control are to be of major consideration at your meeting.

Testimony was also heard from George Barry Chappell, occupant of the ambulance which took the deceased from the scene to Prince County Hospital.

DISCUSS FUTURE OF FISHING INDUSTRY

The future of the fishing industry in Canada was described in a brief note by H.J. Robichaud, federal Minister of Fisheries, when he addressed the noon luncheon meeting opening the 1964 annual meeting of the Fisheries Council of Canada. Chating about the conference at the luncheon are Mr. Robichaud, left, and Premier Walter Shaw.

Action Of Legislature Sparks Ire Of Council

By GEORGE CONDON

Sherbrooke, The Guardian Town council last night heard a clarification of the recent issue on the amendment to the Town's Incorporation Act which passed through the legislature and removed Sherbrooke land and Holman's Island from the town.

Also aired were Mayor W.E. Jenkin's stand on the situation, town manager Joseph Brophy's explanation of how the issue arose and the announcement that the problem of municipal taxation of the service personnel at Hillcrest had been solved.

In expressing his feelings on the sudden legislative action removed the taxable land areas from Summerside, Mayor Jenkin said he had never been in favor of this act being passed by Legislature and in fact was surprised that it was passed such a thing without a statement of some sort from the council.

"I didn't give instruction to anyone on this matter," he said.

He said he had told Dr. Hubert MacNeill and Hon. Henry Wrote that any decision on such a matter would first have to come from the council, but the next he heard of the issue was when the bill was in its second reading and it was then too late to rectify.

Mr. Brophy explained that when the Sherbrooke land came up and a resolution was passed that perhaps the government felt it should have the jurisdiction over the land.

He also explained that the bill which went through the Legislature was an amendment to part "B" of a two-part bill that had been under preparation by the council as a solution to the Hillcrest problem. The important part to the town, part "A" of the bill, "never reached the house," he said.

Councillor George Key, Jr., said many people felt it was a good idea to remove the Sherbrooke land from the town's control because now the town wouldn't have to "go over the hill" with their services. But it was learned that the town still had to pay for the services of the Athens Regional High School and the Vocational School, which is also known as a taxable concern.

SPENT $10,000

It was also learned that the town had incurred expenses in the neighborhood of $10,000 in the area in anticipation of construction of more homes on the Hillcrest development. Council agreed that every effort should be made to attempt to have the area returned to Summerside.

Regarding the Hillcrest taxation issue the town manager said that a telephone message from Hon. J. Watson MacNaught said that the problem had been solved at the federal level through the application of the formula contained in the P.E.I. Act which amendment passed the P.E.I. Legislature.

Mr. Brophy explained that written details of the method of taxing the land had been sent but in effect the proposal means that the department of municipal taxation will supply the amount of taxation through an education grant based on the number of Hillcrest residents attending town schools.

He explained that while the new methods will not increase the amount of taxation, it will guarantee 100 per cent collection of the amount of revenue formerly involved.

VAGRANT PROBLEM

Council also discussed the possibility of having a by-law to eliminate the problem of vagrants in downtown Summerside, especially near P.T. Holman Ltd. and the Dominion Store where the loiterers were bothering customers. It was agreed that the town was badly in need of a new set of by-laws.

Several resolutions were passed granting tenders for various civic activities. Brace, Mackay and Sons was awarded a tender for 30 gallons of paint for civic stadium, and with regards to the extension of the electric line on Water Street the following tenders were awarded: Canadian and Cable Company for spaced aerial cable, Canadian General Electric for Mercury vapor lamps, R.T. Holman Limited for mercury vapor lamps, Northern Electric Company for light fixtures and P.E.I. Electric Company for aluminum cable.

Councillor Ross was appointed liaison officer between the town and the Summerside Lobster Carnival and Liveck Association, Councillor McNeil was named Liaison officer between the town and the Summerside Raceway, and Councillors Key, Wood and McDonald were appointed members of the civil defence committee.

Plans were also made for negotiations to provide land for an entrance sign to the town at the corner of MacEwen Bay and Water Street East and to check the site of the new fountain to see that the pump house now under construction does not obstruct the view of the fountain itself.
