PRACTICAL IMPERIALISM.

Under this heading, the London Daily Mail deals with the question of the increasing exchange of products between Great Britain and Canada. It remarks that "the British Empire has been built up on business lines, and on business lines it is going to be held together. Sentiment counts for something, but the strongest tie between England and her colonies is the tie of mutual interest. On national holidays we will all sing "Rule Britannia," and hoist the Union Jack, and drink the health of the Queen, but during the plain prosaic weeks of working days that come between we will draw closer together in an effective union of hearts and pockets by doing business with our colonies. We would no more speak disrespectfully of the Imperial ideal than of the Equator. But the backbone of that ideal is a real community of business interests." Continuing the Daily Mail points out that Great Britain imported last year food products to the value of six hundred million dollars, of which only seven per cent came from Canada, and says:

"Our fellow subjects of the Dominion calculate that they can supply at least a third of this total, and they mean to do it. Meat, fruit, eggs and cheese are the staple products which Canada can put on the English market. Her immense and fertile territory will enable her to meet our demands in full. The Canadian Government has already begun the great task of making the Dominion food purveyor to the British consumer, and it only needs sustained and loyal efforts on both sides of the Atlantic to make the scheme a success. On the other side they are subsidising shipowners to provide facilities of transport, encouraging the producer by granting a bonus for the creation of cold storage accommodation, and safe-guarding our interests by stringent laws against adulteration of butter and cheese. The manufacture and sale of oleomargarine in Canada is absolutely prohibited, and severe penalties are imposed on the fabrication of "imitation" cheese—a nefarious blend of cotton-seed oil and bad butter. Experiments in the transport of chilled meat have been made and have proved completely successful. Furthermore, Canada is now represented in England by a commissioner deputed to study the needs of the English market, and it is intended to appoint two permanent officials in this country to supervise the development of trade in Canadian food products. Our Canadian friends may fairly look to us to meet them in a helpful spirit. They want to unite the British Empire so far as their share of it is concerned, by selling us their foodstuffs and by buying our manufactures. We are, of course, quite ready to sell. Let us be equally ready to buy. If Canada can give us good butter and eggs as we now import from France, let Canadian produce rule on the British breakfast table. There must be reciprocity if the plan is to succeed. And that way lies the welfare of England and the Empire. We want a backbone of commercial interest to stiffen the sentiment of Imperial union. Men will die for an ideal, but they seldom live a working life for it unless it is based on a good business foundation. Canada is anxious to work with us for the good of the Empire—and Canada in particular. We can surely work with her for the same estimable object, having a shrewd eye to the domestic interests of England as well. Imperial patriotism, plus commercial advantage, provides a capital working programme."

These remarks are very much to the point. Great Britain is now, it appears, alive to the importance of practical Imperialism. We hope that Canada and the other colonies of the Empire, will do their part. Let us see to it that the products we send to the Mother Country are all of excellent quality and that we are supplied with means for their conveyance to the British markets. By the way, when shall we have a regular ocean steamship service for Prince Edward Island, with cold storage out of which our products of land and sea may be put fresh and good upon the British market? The Minister of Agriculture long ago promised his good offices. But we do not yet see anything in fulfilment of the promise. This is a matter in respect to which Premier Peters and the Hon. Donald Farquharson, together with Sir Louis Davies, may render effective service to the Province.

NO DEFENCE OFFERED.

No excuse whatever is being offered in justification of Sheriff McDonald's action, on Wednesday last, in not declaring Mr. Murdoch McKinnon, the Conservative candidate, as the duly elected representative of the fourth district of King's County. This fact, as also the fact that all right-thinking men, irrespective of party politics, condemn the Sheriff's conduct, should induce him yet to do right and return the choice of the people, and thus correct the error that he made on Declaration Day. The people recognize that, the Sheriff has not been entrusted with the power assumed by him to scrutinize votes and that a proper tribunal exists where all questions regarding the election can be inquired into; and they therefore refuse to countenance a proceeding, which is not only against law and justice, but may in after years be used to accomplish a greater wrong. The electors of the Fourth District have spoken and have said that Murdoch McKinnon should represent them on the floor of the Legislature. But Sheriff McDonald, by taking upon himself a duty and power that he does not possess, nullifies the voice of the electors so that their duly elected representative cannot take his seat when Parliament meets. The High Sheriff should pause and consider well the consequences before he proceeds further. His own political friends are not supporting him in his action, and no defence is being made in any newspaper on his behalf. Actions speak louder than words.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The St. John Sun remarks that "the law officers of the crown, like the British board of trade in the Warwick case, have been compelled to reject Mr. Davies' views and reverse his finding. Surely Mr. Fielding and Mr. Davies and their colleagues must feel exceedingly foolish."

All the City Councillors repudiate the withdrawal of the commitments. None of them, we feel sure, had anything to do with "the deal." The Guardian has promised to have something more to say about the matter. It is pleasing to note that the righteous soul of the Guardian has been moved at last.

The Guardian, referring to those who were instrumental in withdrawing the Scott Act commitments, says: "One within the limited circle, we are informed, has already made threats against the Guardian for publishing our editorial article of yesterday."

And now the question is, who has dared to threaten the Guardian? No one has dared to threaten THE EXAMINER, which first directed attention to the matter.

CARGO OF CORN.—The cargo of corn from the stranded steamer Baltimore City brought here by the S S Elliott was sold this afternoon to Mr. Walter Matheson for $4,212.

Sheriff Macdonald, of King's County, is in town today. We should like to arrange with him for a photograph so that THE EXAMINER may supply its readers a picture of the gentleman who stands between the electors of the Fourth District and the man of their choice.

JUBILEE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Sir,—On the 3rd Tuesday of July a regular meeting of the Jubilee Missionary Society of Strathalbyn was held in the Presbyterian church at Rose Valley, at 7.30 p. m., Mr. Duncan McKinlay presiding. After opening with prayer by the pastor, the members and friends of the Society were very profitable and agreeably entertained by a number of the children of Lady Fane School district who kindly attended at the request of their teacher, Miss Catherine Cameron, who is an esteemed member of the above Society. Truly the manner in which those children acquitted themselves reflects great credit, not only on their parents, (whom it is plainly to be seen are training up their children in the way they should go) but also on their teacher who must have taken great pains, to bring her pupils up to such a marked standard, both in precision of recitation and perfection in elocution. I must specially mention the forcible and eloquent address by Miss Jennina Rogerson, on the duty of helping the Missionary cause. The programme is as follows:

- Singing.....Sacred Song
-The Class.
- Address on Temperance.....
-Master Walter Callbeck.
- Recitation.....
-Lester Francis.
- Recitation.....
-Frank Roblee.
- Recitation.....The Company we Keep
-Miss May Sturdy.
- Recitation.....The Captain's Daughter
-Miss Bessie French.
- Recitation.....Missionary Music
-Miss Ethel Francis.
- Recitation.....Voice Culture
-Miss Carrie Sturdy.
- Singing by Class.....
- Recitation.....Praise the Lord
-Miss Mary Waters.
- Address.....Cheerfulness
-Miss Lillian Hudson.
- Singing.....
-Pride
-Miss Ella Calbeck.
- Address.....Helping the Cause of Missions
-Miss Jennina Rogerson.
- Recitation.....The Child's Talent
-Miss Addie Francis.
- Recitation.....The Child's Heaven
-Miss Katie Cameron.

And last, but not least, was a Motto, entitled, God Is Lone, participated in, in concert, by the whole class, which was really an eloquent sermon in itself.—After which a hearty vote of thanks was moved by Rev. Mr. Campbell and unanimously carried and tendered to Miss Cameron and her pupils. It was also resolved that the names of those children be enrolled on the minutes of this society. The meeting then came to a close by singing The Doxology.
