

Nobel Prize Winners For 1952

The Nobel prize winners for 1952 are seen during the solemn festival that took place before the Swedish royal family in Stockholm. Left to right are Selman A. Waksman, U. S. A., who was awarded the prize for medicine; France's Francois Mauriac, the prize winner for literature; Felix Bloch, and Edward Mills Purcell, both of the U. S., co-winners of the prize for physics, and R. L. Millington Syge and Archer Martin, both of England, co-winners of the prize for chemistry. The value of each prize, presented by King Gustav, is about 11,000 pounds.

Ella Cloud stood back and eyed the tree with approval. Honestly, she thought, it's beautiful, even if it is more a New Year's tree than a Christmas tree. A surge of joy rushed through her. Mary would soon be home. Any minute now, Charles would be back from the hospital with her. Ella looked anxiously about the charming living room; everything must be done to make Mary's New Year a happy one.

Ella sank tiredly down in a chair, and covered her eyes with her plump hands. Two years since that awful day of the accident, but it seemed as vivid as yesterday. It was late afternoon when she got that message that her daughter had been in a traffic accident. The mad race to the hospital had been a nightmare. They wouldn't let her see Mary. She was glad, now, that hadn't.

She felt tears trickle between her fingers. Mary had been bitter; wanted to die. And absolutely refused to see anyone, not even her mother, or Charles or little Charlie. Then the operations began, one after another, until that happy day when Mary consented to see her. How precious Mary looked. Her blond curls spilled over her pillow. The doctors had performed mira-

Sport Echoes From Prince County

In the third period of Friday's game between the Islanders and Halifax Atlantics the Chamberlain-coached crew put on a terrific drive to even the score, but the Atlantics held on. "Held on" is certainly the only way to describe it. For three full minutes those Halifax boys did everything but use lasso. Bob Gray had got two holding penalties earlier in the game; penalties which he probably deserved, but not any more than Lepine and some of the others in those hectic three minutes. Ross Morrow had impressed us as a very capable referee, but his failure to see those "Jack the Huggers" during those final minutes is unexplainable.

The Islanders and Halifax put up a crowd-pleasing brand of hockey with the exception of those few minutes, however, and there was a capacity crowd there to enjoy it. With that sort of hockey dished up, and weather and roads being what they have been throughout December, more and more fans were bound to turn out, and if weather, roads and hockey keep up their good record, it will be difficult to accommodate the crowds at the Forum this winter.

Meanwhile, the North and South Shore hockey leagues are just waiting for Old Man Winter to move the rest of his things in, and look as if he's here to stay. Summerside players will be participating in company at Read's Corner this winter, and going their separate ways, the Mercurys to Kensington to take part in the North Shore circuit, and the High School to Bedeque to cross sticks with South Shore league teams.

It's possible Benny Grady, who is now out of the army after doing his bit in Korea, will play hockey with one of the Summerside teams this year. Benny was among the best in his class last time we saw him in action. The lay-off may have taken something from his effectiveness, but Benny is young yet, and will no doubt get back into his old stride.

"Lippy" Gaudet who can make a lot of ice at the least sign of enthusiasm from his side-kick, Jack Frost, has quite a sheet on the Kinsmen open-air rink, and over the weekend some of the kiddies had their first skate there, although the rink has not been officially opened. Lippy is going to have charge of one of the minor teams this winter, according to reports, and everyone can rest assured the loquacious Mr. Gaudet will do his darndest to turn out a winner.

Lippy was in attendance at the hockey school in December, and has no doubt picked up a few tricks that will show up in his coaching when the minors go into action.

SERPENTINE RACE

The 89th annual 100 yards race for the Peter Pan Swimming Cup will be held on the morning of Christmas Day in the Serpentine lake in London's Hyde Park. Should the lake be frozen, the ice will be broken to enable the swimmers to take part. The hardy competitors are all members of the Serpentine Swimming Club.

"Aw, Mom," he said, "aw, your nose!"

cles. Little by little they had built Mary's face up again.

Ella heard a car stop, then footsteps coming up the walk.

The front door opened. Tall handsome Charles, and Mary stood in the doorway. Then Mary was in Ella's arms, and she was saying, "Oh, Honey, we're glad to have you home."

Mary was brought into the house, fussed over almost as much as a brand new baby, and finally was settled comfortably in a big chair. Not until the first wave of the homecoming excitement had passed was she able to bring herself to express the uneasiness that had been in her heart all day.

There was a catch in Mary's voice when she asked, "Where's little Charlie?"

Suddenly fear choked Ella. She wished she had cautioned little Charlie not to mention his mother's face, but it was too late now. "He—he went to a party," Ella said as she helped settle Mary on the divan.

A blare of children's voices sounded. "Good-night, Charlie," then, Little Charlie's, "Good-night!"

The door burst open, and Little Charlie stood, in all his eight-year-old inquisitiveness, and stared at his mother.

The child's countenance fell. "Aw, Mom," he said, "Aw! Your nose!"

Ella said hurriedly, "It's a nice nose. Isn't it, Charlie?" Silently she was praying, "Oh God, make him say the right thing!"

Little Charlie's face twisted into a frown. "I don't see anything especially nice about it. It looks just like the nose Mom always had. And I've invited all the kids over tomorrow to see Mom's doctor-made nose. Nw, Butch Mitchell's going to tease me something awful!"

Suddenly, Mary began to laugh. The tears trickled down her pale cheeks. She was laughing as she had thousands of times before the accident, wholeheartedly.

Little Charlie said dejectedly, "It ain't nothing to laugh about. I thought sure you'd come back from the hospital with something to show."

Mary stopped, laughed, thought a second, then asked solemnly, "Would two toes off do?"

Little Charlie's expression brightened. "Honest, Mom?"

Quickly Mary slipped off her shoes, then hose, and held up one pretty, slender foot. "See," she said. "Two small toes were neatly amputated!"

"Gee!" Little Charlie grinned, "That'll do just fine, Mom."

Mary was laughing again, and hugging her young son.

To keep from bursting into tears of pure joy, Ella asked, "How do you like the New Year's tree, Charlie?" Little Charlie shrugged. "I'll do," he said with a grin.

Big Charles' arms were around Mary. He answered, "Mother, that's a beautiful tree, but not as beautiful as our Mary."

Ella smiled. It was going to be a Happy New Year for Mary.

WHITE IS YULE COLOR

Red and green are commonly accepted as the conventional colors of Christmas, but there is no real historical basis for their use. In fact, if we observe the dictates of the church, the true Yuletide color is white.

KAFFEE MIT SCHLAGOBERS

(Coffee topped with whipped cream)

Make a jug of strong coffee; add a little milk and sufficient sugar to taste and let it dissolve. Whip cream very stiffly, adding a little sugar and vanilla flavouring while whipping.

Serve the coffee in tall glasses, topped with the cold whipped cream.

South Rustico

And Vicinity

Mrs. Dan Jarvis, South Rustico, injured herself severely when she fell in her home a few weeks ago. Mrs. Jarvis is eighty one years old.

Mr. Ben Dolron of Rusticoville left recently for Toronto, Ontario, where he is now employed.

A short time ago a number of farmers of South Rustico and vicinity met at the home of Mr. W. A. Doucette to organize a Farm Forum. It is hoped a large number of farmers, especially the young men, will attend those meetings and discuss their problems.
