

Monsignor Dies Suddenly

Monsignor Edwin L. Doyle passed away suddenly in Montreal on Wednesday, August 5th.

After graduating from St. Dunstan's University in 1917, he went to Calgary, Alberta, where he studied at St. Mary's College and was ordained to the priesthood in 1919 and continued teaching until 1933.

On his return from Rome he was appointed pastor of St. Ann's Parish, Calgary, where he remained until he left on a trip to his old home on August 2nd.

His remains, accompanied by his brother, Leo of Toronto, will arrive in Charlottetown Friday evening and will be transferred to the residence of his brother, Bernard Doyle, Earscliffe.

The funeral will be held on Monday morning at St. Joachim's Church, Vernon River, with Pontifical Requiem High Mass at 10 o'clock.

Buffalo, N.Y. (AP)—A federal judge signed an order Thursday restraining a picket from blocking the unloading of Canadian newsprint from a British ship.

The lone picket from Toronto had tied up 2,500,000 pounds of newsprint for four days. Longshoremen refused to pass the picket.

Unloading operations were expected to begin today. The Bowater Steamship Company Limited of London, applied for the restraining order from federal district judge Harold P. Burke.

The company said that the dispute "in no way involves Bowater interests" and that all the sailors on the ship, the Gladys Bowater, are represented by British unions.

Earl Patterson of Toronto, secretary of the eastern Canadian district of the International Woodworkers of America, could not be reached immediately for comment.

Operator Not Blamed In Fatality On Runway

A coroner's jury last night concluded that Arthur Donald Morrison of Summerside came to his death as the result of multiple injuries received when he was crushed beneath the wheels of a motor grader at the airport runway project at Central Royalty on July 29, 1958.

The jury also stated that they could find no cause or reason to blame the grader operator for negligence. Witnesses heard were Dr. Olive Stanley MacDonald, intern at the Prince Edward Island Hospital, who treated Morrison at the hospital; Constable William A. Wilson, a member of the Charlottetown detachment of the RCMP, who investigated the accident; William Alfred Barnett, Elmisdale, diesel operator, who was with the deceased prior to the accident; Daniel Raymond Morrison of Morrison and MacRae, contractors for the project, who described the injured man's particular duties on the morning of the accident; and Harold Ray Bryanton, Coleman who was operating the grader at the time of the accident.

The report of provincial pathologist, Dr. John C. Craig was read by Dr. L.E. Prowse, due to Dr. Craig being out of the province. The inquest, held at City Hall was conducted by Dr. Prowse and assisted by Crown prosecutor J.P. Nicholson.

Dr. Craig's report indicated that Morrison died of multiple injuries, any one of which could have caused his death. Among injuries the deceased received were a ruptured liver, torn spleen, which resulted in severe internal bleeding and fractured ribs on the left side which had punctured a lung.

Dr. Morrison stated that he was in the hospital when the injured man was brought in and he noted that the patient was suffering from considerable pain. He was conscious for approximately two minutes and then lapsed into severe shock.

Dr. MacDonald also stated that he treated the patient for shock but despite his efforts the injured man died about 10 minutes after his arrival at the hospital. Const. Wilson produced a number of photographs taken of the accident scene and also measurements of the runway and of the road grader.

The constable stated there was no evidence of liquor involved. Morrison came to work at 6:05 on the morning of the accident. Mr. Barnett stated, and he and the deceased were talking on the runway when they saw the grader coming down.

They went up on the bank to let the grader go by and then went back down on the runway, he said. Mr. Barnett said he then went to pick up a stake which the grader had knocked down and that he did not know where Morrison had gone but when he looked up Morrison was lying near the grader.

He came to work at 6 o'clock that morning and started to grade the runway, Mr. Bryanton stated. As he was doing a cut down about 1,500 feet of the runway he noticed Morrison and Barnett standing there talking. He said he went approximately 100 feet past them and started to back up to make a turn.

It was then he felt a bump, which felt as if he had passed over something, he stopped the machine and got out and found Morrison lying behind it. The members of the jury were George Cheverle, foreman, W.S. McMurtry, Fred Roper, Byron Spence, Harry McDonald, Harold Ellis and Jerome O'Brien.

Cold Weather Reduces Producers Co-Op Surplus

The abnormally cold weather which prevailed during the late fall and early winter, was blamed for a $20,000 reduction in the surplus earned by Producers' Co-operative Ltd., in the 12 months ending last June 30. Association manager, Donald A. MacDonald last night told the delegates to the fourth annual meeting that, except for the cold weather which forced the association to lead in Saint John the 90 carloads of potatoes destined for the M.V. Margareta rather than in Charlottetown and Souris, as first intended, plus the fact that most of the Kennebec seed shipped to Venezuela had to be regraded at destination, the 1959 surplus, instead of $2,012, would have compared favorably with the surplus of $2,708 shown the previous year. IN BIRCH COURT

Heid in Birch Court the Association's annual meeting was chaired by the president, Louis O'Connor of Clinton. Special speakers included George Johnston of the New Brunswick department of agriculture, and W. M. Hayward, manager of the Charlottetown branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Financial statements prepared by H. B. Doane and Company and submitted to the meeting by Mr. MacDonald showed total gross profit on the year's transactions to be $77,353.96. Direct expenses of $41,668.46 and general expenses of $35,500.71 less a decrease in the allowance for doubtful debts of $1,827.43, reduced this margin to a net profit of $2,012.25.

Total net sales were $263,901.77 made up as follows: produce, $773,050.76; poultry, $193,583.65; and appliances, $22,268.05. Including commissions and other income earned gross profit in each department was: produce, $57,400.26; poultry, $16,107.27; and appliances, $3,757.45.

With present assets valued at $42,000, the member co-operatives had already realized a 400 per cent return on their investment, Mr. MacDonald asserted.

C.M. MacLean, manager of the Charlottetown Co-operative, and Bernard Shea, manager of the O'Leary Co-operative vigorously opposed general disloyalty insinuations preferred by Mr. MacDonald, Cyrus Gallant, manager of the Wellington Co-operative and Rev. William Simpson, director of the SDU extension department.

Mr. MacLean said that the movement would fail to get anywhere until it developed a system which would dictate the price to the consumer. "As it stands today, the brokers determine the price that island producers will get for their potatoes," he said.

Mr. Shea stated that the local co-operatives could not afford to accept $50 less than the market price for a car of potatoes as was the case if they sold to the central organization.

The producers they dealt with would refuse to accept such a reduction in the basic price, he said.

FAILURE SEEN If the members of the local groups failed to support their own organization to the same extent that they failed to support the central organization, the co-operative movement would soon die out, Father Simpson maintained.

"Are the local organizations big enough to lay down and enforce a policy of pool marketing?" he asked.

Mr. MacDonald denied Mr. Shea's statement that competitive prices for potatoes in Charlottetown normally averaged 15 cents less per bushel less than the price paid in the O'Leary area.

He said that local managers could not depend too much on the information given by outside brokers.

Mr. MacLean noted that it was not entirely accidental that both major political parties in the Province were advocating an extension in the agricultural marketing service.

He advised the Association to hold as they were in the hope that eventually the government would pass control of pool marketing to it.

The present broker-consumer price spread enabled the broker to play one dealer against the other and the local co-operatives against each other and the central organization, he said.

Mr. Johnston advised the island co-operatives to consider adopting co-operative livestock marketing.

The N.B. expert recalled that before the advent in New Brunswick of co-operative marketing, dressed hogs sold in Moncton were bringing producers the same price as the live variety sold in Montreal. The co-operative scheme had practically equalized the price on both markets, he said.

Introduction of livestock auction sales had also proved popular, Mr. Johnston said. With sales averaging more than $14,000 each week, the average price realized fell very little below the Montreal average.

Canada Bank

EXAGGERATED FEAR Mr. Lambert suggested that the present record interest rate reflects an exaggerated fear of inflation.

"This rate surprises me—the threat of inflation looms greater to many people than it does to me," he said.

"We shouldn't minimize the threat, but I think there is some over-emphasis."

The average treasury bill yield this week of 5.73 per cent is only .27 per cent below the maximum six-per-cent interest rate which chartered banks are allowed to charge.

Bank of Canada figures issued here Thursday showed other indicators of the tightness in short-term money.

In the last week the central bank has loaned $23,500,000 to one or more securities dealers by buying treasury bills on a purchase and resale arrangement.

The bank makes such loans only when dealers can't borrow elsewhere.

The cash reserves of chartered banks, as a whole, dropped below the statutory minimum to an average 7.9 per cent of customers' deposits in the first five days of August, they have the rest of the month to bring the average up to the minimum eight per cent.

This week's Bank of Canada interest rate has risen in five consecutive weeks from 5.26 on July 2.

The central bank rate is the minimum charged by the central bank on the infrequent loans it makes to chartered and savings banks. The new level of 5.98 per cent compares with the record low of 1.12 little more than a year ago, on Aug. 2, 1956.

SHARPEST CHANGE The rise of .26 per cent in the rate since last week is the sharpest change since February, when the bank rate jumped by .20 per cent to 4.32 on Feb. 26.

The new high mark on treasury bill yields undoubtedly reflects the current shortage of money available for short-term lending. In recent months the banks have been expanding their loans greatly to meet a heavy demand for credit during the current economic expansion.

Average price for the new issue of $15,000,000 worth of 91-day treasury bills, maturing Nov. 5, was $98.501 compared with $98.655 last week.

Average yield on $20,000,000 worth of 182-day bills was 5.98 per cent compared with 5.72 a week ago. Average price was $97.107. These bills mature Feb. 5.

The Bank of Canada announced it will receive tenders next week for another $135,000,000 in treasury bills, made up of $115,000,000 in 91-day bills and $20,000,000 in 182-day bills.

LOCAL BRIEFS

PC EXECUTIVE MEET The provincial executive of the Progressive Conservative Association is meeting this evening at party headquarters in Charlottetown.

Reference was made by Mr. Sangster to the passing of Rev. M.M. Coady of Antigonish who was described as the father of the co-op movement in the Maritime provinces. A formal letter expressing appreciation of Dr. Coady's services will be forwarded to the extension department of St. FX.

A resolution approved the re-appointment of Reid Sangster as co-op field man in P.E.I. field man in P.E.I. for another year. Kenneth MacLean of Lot 16 was re-elected president. Lorne Callbeck of Charlottetown was named vice-president and D.A. MacDonald secretary manager. New directors appointed were moment. Will the provincial Treasurer tell the people of this province what our overdraft at the Banks are? Are any efforts being made to fund these overdrafts? And if so, what are the terms?"

Huge increases in debt, cannot be continued and disaster averted, he said. This is the peoples debt and they must carry this heavy load. "Our services cannot be expanded with steadily increasing amount of our revenues going into carrying charges. Not only must our Government immediately press for more favorable terms with Ottawa, but equally important follow wise and efficient practices in public expenditures, while not forgetting at the same time needed public services.

Housing Plan

(Continued from page 1) from $45-50 per month, including interest and taxes, Mr. Sangster said many homes that would ordinarily cost $11,000 are being constructed for as little as $7,000 through this co-operative method.

480 HOMES IN N.S. He said that although the legislation had been on the statute books of Nova Scotia for some years, it was only recently that people began to take advantage of it. Some 450 homes were built in Nova Scotia last year under this scheme and 500 will be constructed this year, Mr. Sangster stated.

POTATO POOL The Union "sees merit" in the potato pool scheme proposed at "country caucuses" a few days ago and has given authority for the appointment of a committee which will work hand in hand with organizations such as the Department of Agriculture, the Federation of Agriculture, the Women's Institutes, Junior farmers and others.

A resolution brought in at the meeting endorsed strongly the government's move to set up a marketing department and gave assurance to the government that they will work closely with them in what ever plans they attempt to formulate in this connection.

The meeting went further in moving that a promotional committee be set up. This committee it is pointed out, would coordinate thinking and action in regard to the working of such a marketing committee.

DR. COADY'S PASSING Reference was made by Mr. Sangster to the passing of Rev. M.M. Coady of Antigonish who was described as the father of the co-op movement in the Maritime provinces. A formal letter expressing appreciation of Dr. Coady's services will be forwarded to the extension department of St. FX.
