Weak and Nervous

Whenever the body has been weakened by disease, it should be built up by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Read this:

"About two years ago I suffered with a very severe attack of inflammation of the bowels. When I began to recover I was in a very weak and nervous condition, and suffered intensely with neuralgia pains in my head, which caused loss of sleep, and having no appetite, I and weak. Fortunately a friend who had used Hood's Sarsaparilla with great benefit, kindly recommended me to try it. I did so and a perfect cure has been effected. I am now as well as I ever was, and I would not be without Hood's Sarsaparilla in my house for anything." MRS. G. KERR, 245 Manning Ave., Toronto, Ont.

was a living skeleton; the doctor said he was dying of Marasmus and Indigestion. At 13 months he weighed only seven pounds. Nothing strengthened or fattened him. I began using Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites, feeding it to him and rubbing it into his body. He began to fatten and is now a beautiful dimpled boy. The Emulsion seemed to supply the one thing needful.

SLAIN BY THE DOONES

BY R. D. BLACKMORE
AUTHOR OF LORNA DOONE

Being thus rebuked by his father, who was a very faithful-minded man, Robert Pring shuffled his long boots down and made me a low salutation. But, having paid little attention to the things other people were full of, I left the young man to convince his parents, and he soon was successful with his mother.

Two, or it might have been three, days after this a great noise arose in the morning. I was dusting my father's books, which lay open just as he had left them. There was "Barker's Delight," and "Isaac Walton," and the "Secrets of Angling, by J. D.," and some notes of his own about making of flies; also fish-hooks made of Spanish steel, and long hair pulled from the tail of a gray horse, with spindles and bits of quill for plaiting them. So proud and so pleased had he been with these trifles, after the clamor and clash of life, that tears came into my eyes once more as I thought of his tranquil and amiable ways.

"'Tis a wrong thing altogether to my mind!" cried Deborah Pring, running in to me. "The Doones was established afore we come, and why not let them bide upon their own land? They treated poor master amiss beyond denial; and never will I forgive them for it. All the same he was catching what belonged to them, meaning for the best, no doubt, because he was so righteous. And having such courage, he killed one, or perhaps two, though I never could have thought so much of that old knife. But ever since that they have been good, Miss Sillie, never even coming anigh us; and I don't believe half of the tales about them."

All this was new to me; for if anybody had cried shame and death upon that wicked horde it was Deborah Pring, who was talking to me thus! I looked at her with wonder, suspecting, for the moment, that the venerable councilor—who was clever enough to make a cow forget her calf—might have paid her a visit while I was away. But very soon the reason of the change appeared.

"Who hath taken command of the attack?" she asked, as if no one would believe the answer; "not Capt. Purvis, as ought to have been, nor even Capt. Dallas, of Devon, but Spy Stickles, by royal warrant—the man that hath been up to Oare so long. And my son Robert, who hath come down to help to train them, and understandeth cannon guns—"

"Capt. Purvis? I seem to know that name very well. I have often heard it from my father. And your son under him! Why, Deborah, what are you hiding from me?"

Now good Mrs. Pring was beginning to forget, or, rather, had never borne properly in mind, that I was the head of the household now, and entitled to know everything, and to be asked about it. But people who desire to have this done should insist upon it at the outset, which I had not been in proper state to do. So that she made quite a grievance of it, when I would not be treated as a helpless child. However, I soon put a stop to that, and discovered to my surprise much more than could be imagined.

And before I could say even half of what I thought, a great noise arose in the hollow of the hills, and came along the valleys like the blowing of a wind that had picked up the roaring of mankind upon its way. Perhaps greater noise had never arisen upon the moor; and the cattle and the quiet sheep, and even the wild deer came bounding from unsheltered places into any offering of branches, or of other haven from the turbulence of men. And then a gray fog rolled down the valley, and Deborah said it was cannon smoke, following the river course; but to me it seemed only the usual thickness of the air, when the the clouds hang low. Thomas Pring was gone, as behooved an ancient warrior, to see how his successors did things, and the boy, Dick Hutchings, had begged leave to sit in a tree and watch the smoke. Deborah and I were left alone, and a long and anxious day we had.

At last the wood-pigeons had stopped their cooing, which they kept up for hours, when the weather matched the light, and there was not a tree that could tell its own shadow, and we were contented with the gentle sounds that come through a forest when it falls asleep, and Deborah Pring, who had taken a motherly tendency toward me now, as if to make up for my father, was sitting in the porch with my hands in her lap, and telling me how to behave henceforth, as if the whole world depended upon that, when we heard a swishing sound as of branches thrust aside, and then a low moan that went straight to my heart, as I thought of my father when he took the blow of death. "My son, my Bob, my eldest boy!" cried Mistress Pring, jumping up and falling into my arms, like a pillow full of wire, for she insisted upon her figure still. But before I could do anything to help her—

"Hit her on the back, ma'am hit her hard upon the back. That is what always brings mother round," was shouted, as I might say, into my ear by the young man whom she was lamenting.

"Shut the trap, Braggadose. To whom art thou speaking. Pretty much thou hast learned of war to come and give lessons to thy father! Mistress Sylvia, it is for thee to speak. Nothing would satisfy this young springal but to bring his beaten captain here, for the sake of mother's management. I told un that you would never take him in, for his father has taken in you pretty well! Capt. Purvis, of the Somerset, I know not what—for the regiments now be all upside down. Raggiments is the proper name for them. Very like he be dead by this time, and better die out of doors than in. Take un away, Bob. No hospital here!"

"Thomas Pring, who are you," I said, for the sound of another low groan came through me, "to give orders to your master's daughter? If you bring not the poor wounded gentleman in, you shall never come through this door yourself."

"Ha, old hunchs, I told thee so!"

The young man who spoke raised his hat to me, and I saw that it had a scarlet plume, such as Marwood de Wichehalse gloried in. "In with thee, and stretch him that he may die straight. I am off to Soutamolton for Cutcliff Lane, who can make a furze-faggot bloom again. My filly can make a land-yard in a mile to Tom Faggus and his Winnie. But mind one thing, all of you; it was none of us that shot the captain, but his own good men. Farewell, Mistress Sylvia!" With these words he made a very low bow, and set off for his horse at the corner of the wood—as reckless a gallant as ever broke hearts, and those of his own kin foremost; yet himself so kind and loving.

CHAPTER V.—MISTAKEN AIMS.

Capt. Purvis, now brought to the Warren in this very sad condition, had not been shot by his own men, as the dashing Marwood de Wichehalse said: neither was it quite true to say that he had been shot by anyone. What happened to him was simply this: While behaving with the utmost gallantry and encouraging the militia of Somerset, whose uniforms were faced with yellow, he received in his chest a terrific blow from the bottom of a bottle. This had been discharged from a culverin on the opposite side of the valley by the brave but impetuous sons of Devon, who wore the red facings, and had taken umbrage at a pure mistake on the part of their excellent friends and neighbors, the loyal band of Somerset. Ether brigade had three culverins, and never having seen such things before, as was natural with good farmers' sons, they felt it a compliment to themselves to be entrusted with such danger, and resolved to make the most of it. However, when they tried to make them go, with the help of a good many horses, upon places that had no roads for war and even no sort of roads at all, the difficulty was beyond them. But a very clever blacksmith, near Malmesford, who had better, as it proved, have stuck to the plow, persuaded them that he knew all about it, and would bring their guns to bear, if they would let him have his way. So they took the long tubes from their carriages, and lashed the rollers of barked oak under them, and with very stout ropes, and great power of swearing, dragged them into the proper place to overwhelm the Doones.

Here they mounted their guns upon cider barrels with allowance of roll for recoil, and charged them to the very best of their knowledge, and pointed them as nearly as they could guess at the dwellings of the outlaws in the glen; three cannons on the north were of Somerset, and the three on the south were of Devonshire; but these latter had no balls of metal, only anything round they could pick up. Col. Stickles was in command, by virtue of his royal warrant, and his plan was to make his chief assault in company with some chosen men, including his host, young Farmer Ridd, at the head of the valley where the chief entrance was, while the trained bands pounded away on either side. And perhaps this would have succeeded well, except for a little mistake in firing, for which the enemy alone could be blamed with justice. For while Capt. Purvis was behind the line rallying a few men who showed fear, and not expecting any combat yet, because Devonshire was not ready, an elderly gentleman of great authority appeared among the bombardiers. On his breast he wore a badge of office, and in his hat a noble plume of the sea eagle, and he handed his horse to a man in red clothes.

"Just in time," he shouted; "and the

"I RECEIVED THROUGH MISTRESS PRING AN OFFER OF MARRIAGE IMMEDIATE AND PRESSING."

Lord be thankful for that! By order of his majesty I take supreme command. Ha, and high time, too, for it! You idiots, where are you pointing your guns? What allowance have you made for windage? Why, at that elevation, you'll shoot yourselves. Up with your muzzles, you yellow jackanapes! Down on your bellies! Hand me the linstock! By the Lord, you don't even know to touch them—a"

A HEAVY MORTGAGE.

How a prominent farmer quickly lifted it.

A mortgage has been described as an incentive to industry, a heavy mortgage, as a sure sign o ruin. The last is particularly true, for if a mortgage is allowed to run it will eat up the farm. In this connection Mr. Henry Fowler, of Huron writes: "From my boyhood scrofula had marked me for a victim and it seemed as if it had a life mortgage on my blood. I suffered fearfully with sores, and knowing my condition I have remained a single man. Doctor after doctor prescribed for me, and finally a Toronto specialist told me bluntly that my complaint was a deep-seated, incurable, blood disease. Sarsaparilla I knew was a good blood medicine, and I sent for a bottle of the best. Mr. Todd, the druggist, sent me Scott's Sarsaparilla, and I have stuck to it. It has lifted my mortgage, for to-day I am free from those horrible sores, my eyesight is not blurred, my tongue is not furry, and I have no irritation. I look upon Scott's Sarsaparilla as a marvellous medicine when it will cure a life long disease in so short a time."

Scrofula, pimples, running sores, rheumatism and all diseases generated by poisonous humors in the blood are cured by Scott's Sarsaparilla. The kind that cures. Sold only in concentrated form at $1 per bottle by your druggist. Dose from half to one teaspoonful.

A River's Mysterious Tide.

The tidal movement in the St. Lawrence is not the familiar diurnal one common in the ocean and other extensive bodies of water, salt or fresh, and caused by the attraction of the moon. It is something much more mysterious. The allegation is that the big river has a total tidal period of about fourteen years, and that is, that it falls regularly and continually for seven consecutive years, dropping its level four or five feet, and then rises for the next ensuing seven years. Those who make this assertion—and its most persistent adherents are the fishermen and guides who study the river as a matter of business from day to day and, and year to year—are supported with apparently excellent evidence. They will show you the islands submerged for twelve years, that only show themslves at the lowest water during the two remaining years of the period. They will row you out to the perpendicular cliffs, upon whose sides they, their fathers and their grandfathers before them have marked high water, and the alleged dates seem to confirm the theory. What makes this singular movement of the water more apparent is the fact that the lordly St. Lawrence is not subject to the floods and droughts which raise and lower the levels of almost all rivers many times during the course of each year. Except for the almost imperceptible "tidal" rise and fall, as the case may be, its level is constant the year around. Weeks of heavy rain do not disturb its steady volume or spoil the angler's sport by making muddy the clear water.—New York Herald.

SAVED HIS LIFE.

"I now weigh nearly 200 pounds," said a robust, fine looking man the other day; and yet this same man was given up to die of consumption less than two years ago. What cured him? Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil did. He took it when at a low ebb, when his weight was less than 100 pounds. It created new blood for him, and that combined with his will power, raised him up to a life of usefulness and happiness. If you are threatened with consumption or any lung trouble, try Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil. Miller's Emulsion is the great nerve strengthener and blood maker, and cures coughs, colds, bronchitis, scrofula and all lung affections. In big bottles, 50c. and $1, at all drug stores.

Advertising saves time—hence lengthens life. The buyer is saved searching for what he wants, the seller finds the quickest market for his goods. The human mind needs the stimulus of the suggestion contained in effective advertising.

Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Chase's Pills have gained popularity because the are a specific for the uric acid condition, prevent Bright's disease, cure Rheumatism and all Catarrhal conditions of the Kidneys and Bladder. They do this because they possess remarkable alterative, tonic and diuretic properties, exerting a wonderfully soothing influence on irritated or inflamed mucos membranes of the kidneys or bladder. One pill a dose. 25 a box. The cheapest medicine in the world.

A noble life, crowned with heroic death rises above and outlives the pride and pomp and glory of the mightiest empire of the earth.

It Saved Our Child.

"My little daughter, three and a half years old, suffered three years with Eczema. Her little body was covered with the itching rash, and doctors did no good. Four boxes of Chase's Ointment have entirely cured and saved our child. Her skin is clear and not a sign of rash is to be seen." Andrew Aiton, Hartland, N. B. Mr. Aiton is one of thousands benefited by this unfailing cure for piles and skin diseases.

Poverty is terrible, and sometimes kills the very soul within us; but it is the north wind that lashes men into Vikings; it is the soft, luscious south wind which lulls them to lotus dreams.—Ouida.

GIVEN UP TO DIE

Shop Closed for Two Months—The Prudent takes Dodd's Kidney Pills.

RICHMOND (Special) Dec. 9.—A correspondent, at Ottawa, of a Toronto paper investigating so-called cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills found himself here among ardent friends of this great kidney treatment. Seeing Mr. McCarthy at work in his shop after being closed for two months in expectation of death from Bright's disease; that gentlemen referred him to the man who advised him to use the Pills. This was Wm. McCord a farmer who had been helpless and bed-ridden for twenty-seven months with what was said to be "Incurable Diabetes." On calling the correspondent found Mr. McCord ploughing in the field. A few boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills had worked the cure. It was a matter of no surprise as they always cure.

Each man in his sphere, however, narrow or extended, will find that his fellow men weigh his character and his abilities often, and unconsciously stamp him with their estimate, and that the average resultant of these frequent averages is just.—E. Pierrepont.

Bad Blood Between Them.

The ever slaving farmer's wife, her delicate sister in the city, suffer more than they care to tell. The dark rings round the eyes, headaches, dizziness, palpitation or rheumatic twinges, betoken a run-down system. The blood is poor, and is a bar to enjoyment of life. Scott's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, strengthens and vitalizes the system, and speedily restores the bloom of health to the cheeks. It cures when all others fail.

Good manners are made up of petty sacrifices. Temperance, courage, love are made up of the same jewels.

Mr. C. Donnelly, wholesale liquor dealer, Alliston, Ont., was troubled for years with Itching Piles. He was persuaded by Jas. McGarvey, Alliston, livery man, to use Chase's Ointment, which he did, was cured, has had no return of them and highly recommends this Ointment as a sovereign cure for Piles.

Ohio is the mother of United States Senators, likewise. No less than eleven of the present body were born there, while New York can boast of being the birthplace of seven, Pennsylvania and Kentucky of six, Vermont of five and Massachusetts of three.
