St. Dunstan's Basilica Is Setting For Wedding

Barbara Gallant, R.N. and Dominic MacDonald, B.A., Ph. L., were married August 8th, 1959, at St. Dunstan's Cathedral in Charlottetown. Rev. R.V. McKensie, pastor of St. Pius X Parish, Parkdale, performed the ceremony and offered the Nuptial Mass.

The bride is the youngest daughter of the groom's father, Mr. and Mrs. D.E. Gallant, Charlottetown, and is a graduate of the Charlottetown Hospital School of Nursing. The groom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. C. Frank MacDonald, also of Charlottetown, and is a graduate of St. Dunstan's University and Laval University, Quebec City.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of white nylon or-ganza-over satin. Her headress consisted of a plain white veil with pearl tiara. She carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses.

The maid of honor was Miss Arlene Gallant, a sister of the bride, while the bridesmaid was Miss Bertha McQuaid, R.N. Miss Gallant wore a street length dress of shrimp taffeta while Miss McQuaid wore a street length dress of pale green taffeta. Both the maid of honor and the bridesmaid wore matching accessories including picture hats.

Mr. Ted Bradley of Charlottetown was the groomsmen, David Gallant, a brother of the bride, and Arthur F. McInnis were the ushers. Miss Patricia Leightner, accompanied by Mrs. Joseph Duggan, sang appropriate hymns. For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Gallant chose to wear a white flowered sheath dress of silk crepe. Her accessories included a picture hat and gloves.

After the Nuptial Mass at the Cathedral, a reception for approximately 85 guests was held at St. Pius X Parish Hall in Parkdale.

On their return from their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald will spend a few days in Charlottetown before leaving for Quebec City where they plan to make their home for the next year.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Mack And The Girls Plan To Go Fishing

This evening—if we too have not succumbed to its irresistible lure and gone there with others of the family—we shall see that annual glow in the sky eastward which has always indicated to us at Alderlea the gala week of The Fair is now here. Above the dusky wooded hillsides the brightness will be spread, and nearer above the mill a young August moon will boat.

And here in the quiet of a verandah-chair, in the wide peace which can enfold this rural spot, old scenes from some nook of mind will return. We shall remember the miles between us and the Fair grounds have been shortened now to a matter of minutes, but again—yes, once more, we shall set out in fancy with James and the small ones to drive there by horse and wagon as folks did in that now long ago.

Early that morning the milking would be in the barnyard or maybe in a corner of a pasture with the fresh of the day dew-peared all about. And there would be a good wish in the morning-smoke mounting briskly above the low house-top, indicating the breakfast-to-come.

And then presently, choosing completed and all in readiness for our departure, James would be hitching the horse to "the good wagon" he had already wheeled, dustless, from the coach-house in the yard; asking with usual concern as he adjusted strap and fastened buckles "Now is everything all right, Ellen? Have you closed the windows in the event of a rain or storm? And the fire—you're sure it's out? And on a thought 'Did I put in that feed for the horses?' Yes? Well, hop in."

And we should ride down the lane and out and over the hill-top, chatting of the sights on the way, James saying "We must be home in good time. The cattle may break one never knows. And that heifer—I shouldn't be one bit surprised if she's freshen today. It's no time of year to have calves come anyway—it's quite a gainst Nature. But the milk will be good to have through the winter. And that other cow—I fancied she was a little uneasy this morning. Oh perhaps it's only a change of weather, but she'll have them one of these times, I know."

And we shall chuckle there on the verandah and be a little and these young days have flown. And remember that he rights one never leaves a farm without hearing with one, one of its cares. These give us our work and our livelihood—the herds and flocks and the fields.

A haying-day this with all the workers to busy-gathering it into shelter, storing it against the bleak white days to come.

And a little girl has come to visit with Granddaughter at the house across the lane. She is a fair-haired lass, namesake of her (late) grandmother who in the long ago was we believe just such another bright and knowing child as she—one of James' sisters. She was a daughter of this farm.

"If you're up early before the haying commences" Mack suggested to the pair of girls before bedtime "why can't we all go fishing?"

Until tomorrow — — — Daisy Good-night.

Island Guides Present At Girl Scout Roundup

Hens Norrie and Nora Seales have written the following account entitled "Island Guides at Girl Scout Roundup." The Women's Page of the Guardian is very much indebted to these girls for having the opportunity to publish such an interesting article. Now to quote:

After a tiring but eventful four-day trip from Charlottetown, we finally arrived in Colorado Springs, Colorado, U.S.A.

One hundred and fifty International Girls then spent a four-day orientation period at the Alamo Hotel in that city. During this time girls from all over the world learned to accept one another's ways of life. In all there were 27 countries represented.

On July 2 five bus loads of girls departed from the hotel for the camp site. Eighty five hundred American Girl Scouts had arrived previous day and with the help of the army set up the city of tents. There were over 5,000 tents on a 2,700 acre tract of land at the foot of Pikes Peak.

The encampment was divided into six sections, each section was divided into four camps, each two hall stroma.

Colorado's Rush to the Rockies Centennial Day was celebrated on July 8. All 1,000 of us assembled in the Big Arena for a western program which included Indian dancing, a show of horsemanship by western teens and a dramatized story of early life in the evening a message of welcome arrived by ponyexpress from President Eisenhower.

Sunday, July 12, the whole camp assembled for the first time. At this campfire a wish for peace for each of the 27 countries represented.

We broke camp on July 13. From there the International Girls went to different American homes in all parts of the States for three weeks hospitality.

The 1959 Girl Scout Senior Roundup was a wonderful experience that none of us who had the privilege of attending will ever forget.

camp was divided in turn into from 10 to 12 troops. There were four patrols in each troop and each patrol consisted of eight girls.

Besides the living tents, each patrol had kitchen tents and each section had an assembly tent, a commissary tent, a postoffice, first aid post, snowers and latrine. There was one big central shopping center which included a trading post, photography shop, recreation tent, weather station, lost and found, and three soft drink stands. The army was in charge of the large tent hospital at the north end of the camp site.

The "Forty Eight Stars and Stripes" was flown for the last time on July 3rd. The Alaskan Scouts presented the National Scout-president with the country's new flag at assembly that evening.

Although we didn't have "fire works at the camp for the fourth of July because of fire hazards, the weather provided enough excitement to last some time. Throughout the day we had very hot sun, a wind storm, an electrical storm, a dust storm and

Haslam-MacFarlane Marriage Is Solemnized

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the Trinity Parsonage, Summerside, on Friday, July 17, at 7 p.m. when Wilbur Lorna daughter of Mrs. Wilbur MacFarlane and the late Mr. MacFarlane, Summerside, became the bride of Robert William Haslam, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Haslam, Lorneville, N.B. Rev. C. R. Webber performed the ceremony.

The bride was lovely in a white linen suit with white accessories and a corsage of red feathered carnations.

Miss Jessie MacFarlane, her sister's bridesmaid, wore a robin egg blue suit with white accessories and a corsage of white feathered carnations.

Mr. Ralph Collins was the best man.

Mrs. MacFarlane chose for her daughter's wedding a teal blue dress with white accessories and a corsage of white feathered carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception for thirty guests was held at the bride's home where the bride's table, with a lace cloth and attractive arrangement of red and white carnations in silver vases and silver candelabra, was centered with a beautifully decorated wedding cake, topped with miniature bride and groom.

Presiding over the silver tea services were Mrs. John F. Scott and Mrs. Ernest Wright, while Miss Betty Prichard, Miss Marion Wright, and Mrs. Jerry Grant assisted in serving. Miss Arlene Moore was in charge of the guest book. A telegram from the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Haslam, Lorneville, N.B. was received and informed them that due to illness they were unable to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Haslam left on a honeymoon trip to points of interest in the Maritimes and on return will reside in Summerside where the groom is stationed at the local airport.

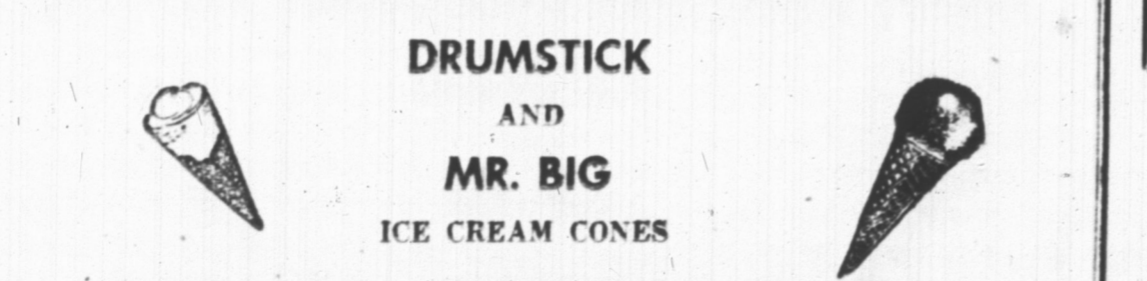

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward-Macguire of Saint John, N.B.
