Fish Industry Courses Mapped By Committee

Fisheries people from the five eastern provinces were meeting in Charlottetown this week to map out a training program for people who work in the industry.

The session—completed its work yesterday—included the deputy ministers, or their representatives, from the provinces and one or two of their top technical men. It's a follow up, Chairman Ellery Collins explained, to the recommendations of the Pictou seminar last June when two dozen recommendations were put before the Federal-Provincial fisheries committee in Ottawa.

This is the fisheries training committee and they were discussing developments from publicity and promotion to utilization and extension of existing training facilities until their effects get out to the working fisherman and plant worker.

"We have set up sub-committees," Mr. Collins explained, "in an effort to develop the courses that are needed in each of the provinces."

"We're aiming at standardization," the chairman said, "so that the same type of training can be given a fisheries employee in P.E.I. for example, as he would get in any of the other provinces."

This includes the personnel of fishing boats, in the plants, and in other phases of the industry.

Since many fishermen have minimal education, there's the problem of upgrading them to the equivalent of grade eight, or nine if possible. This doesn't mean, Mr. Collins explained, the academic equivalent of those grades. But the worker will have to have the necessary knowledge of English, Math, and some elementary science so he can understand some of the developments that are taking place.

The department of labor has completed a job analysis for fisheries people. The training committee wants to simplify the analysis so it can use the information on the training curricula, Mr. Collins explains.

DONE IN EACH PROVINCE

Training will be done in each of the provinces, depending on the facilities available. There are fisheries training schools in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Quebec and the College of Fisheries in Newfoundland. Various levels of training are given in each, but they generally agreed in the committee that the Newfoundland college will give the "post high-school" or the technician type of training. The others will be responsible for what they can do below that level.

"We'll attempt to help people in the fisheries get their certificates of competency as skippers, mates, engineers and catch crews. We'll probably be training ship's cooks and other personnel such as ship's electricians," Mr. Collins said. This has been done in Prince Edward Island now for several years. There'll be short courses in fish processing, in co-operation with the federal department of fisheries for training fish cutters.

Church Group Enjoys Program

MONTAGUE — Trinity United Church Men's Association held their regular meeting for the month of November in the A. D. MacKenzie Hall on Monday night with the president, Arnold Van Linderstine, acting as chairman.

Twenty-eight members and one guest were present and enjoyed a roast beef dinner which was served by the women of the church.

The meeting opened with grave by the members and following dinner the devotional period consisting of scripture reading, a short talk in keeping with the theme of the lesson and prayer was conducted by Horace Fraser.

A group hymn sing was led by Jack Annear with Mrs. Lloyd Fraser as accompanist on the piano.

A change in the program for the evening was introduced by program committee chairman Arnold Wightman. The members were assigned to smaller groups with the object of each finding their solution to a problem facing a couple whose son had been involved in a tragic accident causing serious injury to others and heavy financial loss to them.

Afterwards the groups reassembled and discussed the possible solutions which should be taken by Christians in a faced with in quality control specialists for example, Mr. Collins suggested.

Club Members Plan Ottawa Trip

Representatives of Allied Youth groups from surrounding areas of Flat River met at Flat River School on Nov. 22.

The guest speaker of the evening was Dave Simmons, of Athena Regional High School who gave a talk on facts pertinent to a trip to Ottawa which one or more of the Flat River School members plan to take.

In order to help attain funds for this trip a bazaar and cake sale is to be held at Eldon on Saturday.

The next meeting is to be held on Nov. 29 at 8 p.m.

Bridge Players In Competition

An approximate 20,000 bridge players competed in the American Contract Bridge League national-wide charity game last Friday evening. Players across the nation played the same pre-set hands which were sent to their local centres by the ACBL.

The games were held in over 200 centers in Canada and the United States and it is expected that over $50,000 was collected for charity.

This is the first time that the Charlottetown Duplicate Bridge Club has participated in this activity. The Charlottetown players were accompanied by the newly formed Summerside Bridge Club.

Heavy Claims Session Nears For Commission

Benefit claims at the Charlottetown office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission for the summer and fall months in 1965, were down to 1.9 per cent of the work force in Kings and Queens Counties.

George W. Cheverie, the local manager, pointed out that although this is a very encouraging figure this is not the percentage of workers unemployed in this area. He said that there were some persons unemployed who had not filed claims for benefits, and some new entrants into the labour market who had not been placed in employment.

unemployment benefits showed a decrease of 2.3 per cent.

Mr. Cheverie said that the period of heavy claims is approaching as the seasonal industries close down, and that it is quite possible that the claim load in 1965 may be higher than in 1964. This, he said, is not always a true indication of unemployment, but conversely is often an indication of comparative full employment during the preceding summer months, resulting in more seasonal workers being able to file claims for benefits.

Fall-out Survey Set For Province

A province-wide fall-out survey will be carried out immediately it was announced by Hon. Dr. George Dewar, minister in charge of civil defence.

Two student engineers, Douglas MacDonald and David Nantes of Charlottetown have been engaged by the provincial government to carry out this survey.

All public buildings and private buildings with two or more families occupying them with a minimum of 1,000 square feet will be assessed to determine their use as fall-out shelters. Reports will be forwarded to Ottawa where the protective factors of the buildings will be tested with an IBM computer. It is expected that these tests will begin in the western part of the Island.

The provincial government asks that the general public give full co-operation to the engineers who are conducting the tests.

WORK COULD WAIT
The towers of London's Westminster Abbey were not finished until 1745, 200 years after the rest of the building.
