A CHANGE OF BASE.

WHEN the Liberal-Conservatives were in power a great deal was heard regarding the exodus, and the responsibility for every departure from Canada to the neighboring republic was laid at the door of the party in power. The advent to power of the Liberals has silenced this cry, but it has not done away with the exodus. People continue to leave Canada for the United States, although the circumstance is no longer bemoaned by the Liberal press or the Liberal politicians. The exodus is not surprising in view of the fact that the Liberal Government is seemingly more anxious to help the United States workmen than the Canadian artisan. Many of the largest jobs have been given to United States concerns, and the latest announcement is that a contract for $200,000 worth of cars has gone across the border. When this contract is finished and the cars are entered at the customs and a goodly sum is thus added to the volume of our imports the hearts of the Liberal politicians will be made glad and it will be loudly proclaimed to the world by the Liberal press that Canada's foreign trade is going up by "leaps and bounds." It is safe to predict that they will not tell the people that the $200,000 spent for the benefit of United States workmen might just as well have been kept in Canada where its expenditure would be the means of giving profitable employment to our own people.

MORE LIBERAL CORRUPTION.

THE election of Mr Loughrin, the Liberal member for Nipissing in the Ontario Legislature, has been annulled by the courts, making five Liberals that have been unseated for corruption since the last provincial election. The evidence at the trial showed that whiskey was distributed in cases containing two dozen flasks for use by the Liberal workers on polling day, the local Crown lands agent (an Ontario Government official) admitting that he furnished six or eight dozen loaded flasks, besides half a dozen bottles of rye. The election cost him, he said, between $200 and $300, but, he declared, it was not all used for corrupt purposes. The distributor of one batch of two dozen flasks was the controller of the colonization road grant. In this connection it is pointed out by the Montreal Gazette that the officials in Ontario are compelled to act as part of the Liberal Government's political machinery. When a general election is on they exert themselves each in his sphere to secure votes for the candidates supporting the Government. When a bye-election is to be held they are moved into the unfortunate constituency in brigades and carry on a work that should cause ever election in which they appear to be annulled. The Mowat Government, however, made a law to permit its machine to work, and it is only when its operations are proved to be wholesale that a corruptly elected Liberal can be unseated. The Nipissing case is said to be a fair sample of the work that goes on at every election. Public servants, paid out of the revenues of the province, and controlling the distribution of provincial moneys, were engaged in wholesale debauching of the electors by the most degrading of degraded methods. And what was done in Nipissing was what was done in other constituencies. In many senses it seems to be time for a change in Ontario.

CONFIDENCE IN GREAT BRITAIN

Some of the United States papers assume a stronger tone of confidence in the power of Great Britain than any British paper would assume. Take, for example, the following from the New York Press:

"It may be that there will be war between France and England, for, absurd as such a war seems to the Anglo-Saxon, the French still take their military prowess seriously. Should there be war, Great Britain, of course, would crush France like an eggshell. If the French do not know this it is because they are as monstrously vain about themselves and as stupidly ignorant about others as are, or were, the Spaniards. But all the rest of Europe and the world knows it. Why, then, should anyone except Frenchmen expect that Russia, when it came to the final decision, would throw in her full lot with a degenerate one as against the mistress of the seas? And why should even France expect this? Why should Russia bind herself to a doomed nation any more than Austria or Germany to Spain in our war?"

Confidence in the ability of the British Empire is booming just now.
