Pedestrians Begin Using New Montague Bridge

The new bridge at Montague was opened yesterday to pedestrian traffic, and for the continuation of the season all foot traffic will cross on the new bridge at the person's own risk. It is understood, during the past two days it has been hazardous for pedestrians on the temporary bridge where they were unavoidably being subjected to mud splashing from passing cars. This was brought to the attention of Mayor B. H. Yeo, who immediately obtained permission from the Provincial Government to use the new bridge for pedestrian traffic. Mayor Yeo obtained the assistance of several men and school children, and with himself assisting, soon had a pathway cleared on both approaches, ramps constructed, and the bridge opened for traffic. Such co-operation is deeply appreciated by the Mayor and Council, who are continually working for the betterment of the community. As a further example of co-operation, immediately after public notice that sidewalks were to be cleared, ninety-nine percent of the sidewalks were free of snow. Only a few patches remain and these will undoubtedly be cleared. To alleviate the acute parking situation, merchants of the south side hired Poole and Beer Const. Co. bulldozer to remove the snow in front of places of business, and they were able to get a bulldozer to the north side of the bridge, exactly the same co-operation would be received from the merchants there. However, to get a bulldozer to the north side requires a long detour by Valleyfield, and it is possible that a few more days will pass before the north side will be cleared to alleviate the parking congestion.

Eisenhower

Continued from page 1. is reflected in an intention to increase the number of active planes from 33,000 to 40,000 in the next three years. Included in the security budget are $2,425,000,000 for atomic energy, $4,275,000,000 for military aid to allies and $585,000,000 for stockpiling strategic and critical materials. Eisenhower recommended again that Congress let the administration give Allied nations secret information on how to use atomic weapons for combat. He said it was "essential" to get action in this session. He proposed, too, the transfer of fissionable material to friendly nations to help them develop atomic power for peaceful uses. Through the 40,000-word message runs a theme that the administration is at least on the way toward lower taxes, more cuts in spending, and a balanced budget. But Eisenhower didn't say when it will reach those goals.

Medical Expenses

The President figures the government's financial prospects this way for the fiscal year ahead: Spending $65,570,000,000, a decrease of $5,322,000,000 from this year's total of $70,892,000,000. Income—$62,642,000,000, a $4,986,000,000 drop from the 1954 level of $67,628,000,000. This means that the deficit will be $346,000,000 lower than the $3,274,000,000 figure for this year but the budget still will be out of balance by $2,928,000,000. Eisenhower's tax revision program embraces larger reductions for medical expenses. It would give tax relief to working wives for oday sitters expenses, let parents claim dependency reductions for children they support who are under 18 or away at school, regardless of how much money the children make. It would let farmers deduct up to 25 per cent of their gross incomes for soil conservation expenses. Eisenhower also asked for more liberal tax treatment of depreciation to encourage business investment and expansion of plants and

First East of Montreal

He applied for, and received, a license for a club broadcasting station, the call letters being "TOAS". The station was operated without any revenue for two years and in 1924 applied for and received the first commercial broadcasting station license issued East of Montreal. The call letters are still the same "CFCY". Arrangements for the funeral had not been completed last night. He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Flora Smith, one son, William, of this city, and two daughters, Betty, Mrs. Robert Large, and Marion, Mrs. Keith Morrow. A brother, Major T. E. Rogers, predeceased him last year. Rogers has filled the cutting again.

Probably best known for his work in radio the late Col. Rogers started his earliest experiments in radio transmission in 1907. Just two years later received his first Government license. He was one of the few people to hear the voice of Dr. Lee deForest in 1911 broadcasting from New York. It was that same year that the Canadian Military Gazette published an article dealing with the first mobile wireless station in a Canadian military camp. Col. Rogers had made it himself. During the First World War, from 1914 to 1919, he was engaged in the supervising of the Auxiliary Means of Communications, principally wireless, as instructor to the Royal School of Infantry in Halifax, as well as conducting a continuous school for the wireless operators at the Citadel in Halifax. At the end of the war when the late Col. Rogers returned to civilian life he voluntarily conducted the first vocational class in wireless telegraphy here in the Rena MacLean Memorial Hospital and it was there in the classroom that the first radio broadcast ever received in this Province was heard by a selected audience of high Government officials and Supreme Court judges. Shortly thereafter Col. Rogers was broadcasting both vocal and recorded music programs to the few people in this city who owned radio sets. The majority of them had been personally built by Col. Rogers. It was due to the uncertainty of reception from United States points that Col. Rogers was practically forced to broadcast locally at certain hours throughout the day and as a result the hiring of several young men was necessary to help him meet the demand in assembling receivers.

Two U. S. Airmen Rescued In Labrador

ST. The incident was reported Thursday by Northeast Air Command headquarters. The airmen parachuted from the plane at 6,000 feet after reporting a "flame-out" on a routine flight. One of the men broke his leg in the jump and the other men froze his hand. Their names were not released.

Shmohawks In 7-5 Victory Over Geo'town

The Montague Shmohawks defeated the Georgetown Eagles 7-5 in the second game of a best of nine series for the Southern King's hockey trophy at Montague last night. Georgetown won the first game Tuesday night. As usual when these two teams meet the fans are in for a splendid exhibition of hockey, and last night was no exception. From the opening whistle both teams were hot after the puck to touch of the commanding early lead. The visitors claimed the first two points but Montague evened the score before the period ended. The locals took control of the second period and slapped in four counters to the visitors one to take a strong lead, but the Eagles, not to be outdone, came back in the third to get within one goal of a tie before Montague, on a smart goal by F. Shepherd, scored the clincher. During the game Montague suffered casualties, but the worst was to the stalwart defenceman Don Davis, who suffered a severely sprained ankle necessitating his being confined to his home for the next two weeks. Only one major fracas developed during the game when Stull in the third period was reluctant to be benched on a penalty, thereby drawing a stiffer sentence. Lineups: Georgetown — Goal, Sullivan; defence, MacPhee, Johnson, McConnell, forwards, MacNeill, Landry, Murphy, Stevens, Power, MacLeod, Publicover, Matheson, Stull. Great Improvement In Souris Wharf Facilities

"Twenty draggers or four large steamers may tie up in safety at the north berth" said Mr. Olive Currie, acting district engineer of the Federal Public Works Department, in describing the recently completed modern wharf at Souris. The wharf structure is of steel sheet piling and reinforced concrete with an approach 136 feet long and 125 feet wide. From the approach the wharf extends westerly 821 feet and is 134 feet wide except the outer 112 feet, where the width narrows from 134 feet to 100 feet. The old frostproof shed has been moved southward to facilitate loading of ships in the north berth, and has also been extended 150 feet, making an overall length of 470 feet by 66 feet wide. An improved lighting system, and a new boiler for the oil fired heating system have also been installed. The approaches to the wharf.

The design and supervision of the work were performed by the staff of the Department of Public Works of Canada, under the direction of former District Engineer H. E. Miller. The resident Engineer on the job was Mr. H. R. Miller who was assisted by Mr. Wendall Carr. Inspectors of construction were Mr. John D. McIntyre and Mr. Joseph A. MacDonald.

Civil Servants Can Appeal Promotions

OTTAWA, (CP) — Federal civil servants are given the "right" to appeal promotion decisions under revised regulations approved by the cabinet, the civil service commission announced Thursday. "For some years employees could appeal the results of promotion competitions as a matter of privilege," the commission said. "Under the new regulations they are given the 'right of appeal'." The regulations also provide that: 1. No employee is to be dismissed, suspended or demoted without a chance to present his side of the case to a senior departmental officer. 2. An employee can appeal the rating in cases where he is asked to accept a lower classification as a result of departmental reorganization.

Ban On Dancing On Queen's Campus

KINGSTON, Ont., (CP) — The American Federation of Musicians (AFM) has banned all dancing to records on the campus of Queen's University. Gail Ward, president of Queen's alma mater society, said that if the ban cannot be removed it will cut into student social life by ending class parties, tea dances, and dances after sports events. "The union doesn't stand to gain anything by this ban," Miss Ward added. "There won't be any more dancing to live bands than there has been. The union really has no business interfering in this way with the freedom of students."
