PREFERENTIAL TRADE.

The London Morning Leader, commenting upon the fact that the new Commonwealth of Australia will adopt a policy of moderate protection, combined with an open door for English imports, points out that this state of things is sure to lead to a demand for reciprocity. It says:

"The whole Empire will soon be making the demand which Sir Charles Tupper and the Conservatives are already pressing at the present Canadian election. We shall be asked to concede reciprocity—i.e., free trade within the Empire and a tariff against all imports from without. It is not a new idea. In 1896 Mr. Chamberlain embodied in his idea of an Imperial Zollverein. In a speech to the English Chambers of Commerce he roundly proposed to tax wheat and meal and sugar from abroad in order to foster the importation of these things from our own colonies. That scheme was killed by the apathy of Canada. Events seem only to likely to revive it."

This is the view of an impartial observer, so free from prejudice in favor of preferential trade as to be absolutely opposed to it. The Leader says in plain terms that the project of an Imperial Zollverein was "killed by the apathy of Canada." Add the words "as represented by Sir Wilfrid Laurier," and the truth is complete. But the Leader also points out that the project is now being revived, on the one side, by increased pressure from the colonies, on the other by increased interest in Great Britain. It goes on to say:

"We are much mistaken if Mr. Chamberlain is not still revolving this plan in his mind. He told the Fishmongers' Corporation he had opened a new chapter in our history, and meant to head it. 'The Unity of the Empire. Nor is he to be satisfied with a mere ideal 'unity' once before in his career he has shown that he sets very little store indeed by a mere 'union of hearts.' He aims, as he said on Wednesday, at a 'federation.' Now, federation means, in the Birmingham vocabulary, a Zollverein with takes on foodstuffs—a very nice thing for the depressed export trade of the Midlands, for the Unionist landlord, and an Exchequer with wars to pay for. Fortunately, Mr. Chamberlain, if he really revives his old scheme of 1896, will encounter stout resistance among his colleagues. A 'cross current' carried Sir Michael Hicks-Beach to Liverpool, while the Colonial Secretary addressed his fellow Fishmongers. Sir Michael there said:—'He did not believe in the idea of preferential duties in favor of our colonies as compared with foreign countries on the imports of the United Kingdom. Any such duties would be dangerous in the utmost degree to foreign trade, which was essential to the prosperity of this country.'"

"This is very comforting, but a minister who thinks otherwise happens to be the strongest man in the Cabinet. The danger is very real. For how else are we to federate? In place of a tariff basis Sir Michael indeed suggested one of taxation. He would like to induce the colonies to pay their share of our Imperial expenditure—our wars, our navy, and even perhaps our army. That is an alluring, but, we fear, a wholly chimerical scheme. Australia wants her surplus revenue for old age pensions. Canada sinks her share of capital in opening up her undeveloped provinces. South Africa for years to come will need all her resources to repair the havoc of this war. We do not quite see these young nations coming to the aid of the British income-taxpayer. Mr. Chamberlain is a practical man, and he knows that the Empire can be federated only on the basis of a protective tariff."

These remarks are notable. But the electors have now endorsed Premier Laurier's declaration that Canada does not want Mutual Preferential Trade.

ENTHUSIASTIC CONVERTS

Here are Thousands of Them Who Believe as This Woman Does.

Mrs. M. Knowlton, of Butte, Mo., is a most enthusiastic convert to the virtues of Stewart's Dyspepsia Tablets as a cure for obstinate stomach trouble. She says: "I had poor digestion nearly all my life. It now seems to me that for years I never knew what it was to be hungry, to have a good natural appetite."

I was troubled with gas in stomach causing pressure on the heart with palpitation and short breath. Nearly everything I ate soured on my stomach, sometimes I had cramps in the stomach which almost resembled spasms.

Doctors told me I had catarrh of the stomach, but their medicines would not reach it and I would still be a sufferer had I not, in sheer desperation decided to try Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

I knew they were an advertised remedy and didn't believe anything I read about them as I had no confidence in advertised remedies, but my sister living in Pittsburg wrote me last spring telling me how Stuart's Tablets had cured her and her little daughters of indigestion and loss of flesh and appetite and I hesitated no longer.

I bought a fifty cent box at my drug store and took two of the large tablets after each meal and found them delightful to take being as pleasant to the taste as caramel candy. Whenever during the day or night I felt any pain or uneasiness in the stomach or about the heart I took one of the small tablets and in three weeks it seemed to me as if I had never known what stomach trouble was.

I keep Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in the house and every member of our family uses them occasionally after a hearty meal or when any of us have a pain or ache in the digestive organs."

Mr. E. H. Davies of Hampton, Va., says: "I doctored five years for dyspepsia, but in two months I got more benefit from Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets than in five years of the doctors treatment."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, catarrh of stomach, biliousness, sour stomach, bloating after meals, sympathetic heart trouble.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is not a cheap cathartic but an active digestive remedy containing the pepsin and distaste which every weak stomach lacks and they cure stomach troubles because they digest the food eaten and give the weak, abused over-worked stomach a chance to rest and recuperate.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold in every drug store in the United States, Canada and Great Britain.

PEAT OR MUCK.

There is perhaps no manurial agent more widely distributed than the moss and black mud of our swamps. Nearly every neighborhood has more or less of these deposits and if our farmers only realized how they might add to the fertility of their land by the judicious use of peat or black mud, very much more of it would be used.

A farmer who has had practical experience in using this form of fertilizer writes as follows:

To soils that are deficient in vegetable matter, it is clear that a judicious admixture of peat must prove advantageous, because it will supply some, at least, of those substances necessary to the production of a higher degree of fertility; but peat, on account of its acid and antiseptic character decays very slowly in the air and hence its apparent effect when mixed with the soil is very slight. It may gradually ameliorate, especially if the soil be calcareous, but it will not immediately prepare the land for the growth of any particular crop. But if the obstacles to its further decomposition be removed—that is, if by artificial means its decay be promoted, then its immediate and apparent effect upon the soil is increased, and it becomes an acknowledged fertilizing manure. Different methods have been successfully practised for bringing it into this more rapid decay or fermentation. The half dried peat may be mixed with one-fourth to one-half of its weight of fermenting barnyard manure, the whole heap being carefully covered over with a layer of peat to prevent the escape of fertilizing vapors.

By this method the entire mixture is gradually brought into an equable state of heat and fermentation. Or the liquid manure of the barnyard may be employed for the same purpose in whole or in part. If the heap of mixed peat and dung be watered occasionally with the liquid manure, the fermentation will be more speedily effected and at a less expense of common barnyard dung. Or, instead of liquid manure, wood ashes, carbonate of potash or carbonate of soda may be used with advantage. In short it is only necessary to mix half dried peat with any substance which neutralizes its acid properties, thus accelerating its rapid spontaneous decomposition, when it will more or less speedily become infested with the tendency to decay, and will then speedily be rendered capable of ministering to the growth of cultivated plants."—Co-operative Farmer.

A CHANGE OF A ...LIFETIME

To secure one of the finest properties in P. E. I.

This farm contains 130 acres of excellent land, 80 acres cleared and in prime condition. There is a fine belt of hard and soft wood (which is very valuable, now that coal is so high) oyster mud within a few rods of the shore, abundance of marsh mud, well watered, two mills near the house, good buildings, basement stable, 6 miles from town, one mile from Pownal village, school next the farm, three churches within a radius of 1 1/2 miles, cheese and butter factory in rear of farm, a large and heavy bearing orchard of best varieties of apples and plum trees, raspberries, strawberries, etc. For location and beauty of scenery this property is unsurpassed by any on the Island. It is a daisy of a place, but there is not a daisy on it. Only reason for selling—going into business in the Northwest with my sons. Sold with or without crop, stock, and implements. Terms on application to my solicitor, A. A. A. McLean, Barrister, Charlottetown, or to the owner,

To facts is the condition of most of our fur dealing friends in Charlottetown. One fur man says he is the only man in Charlottetown who has enough money to buy a certain line of furs. Another man says he is the only man in town who knows anything about furs. "They are both right, of course." Again they all agree on one point, that is that they each sell more furs than anyone else, therefore buy more and sell cheaper.

BUT THEY SUPPORT

Their arguments with nothing but wind and gall, and cannot advance

ONE FACT

By which independent men can judge who is right. Now, we have not been blowing much about our magnificent stock of furs, but just now we are going to give you a few

FACTS

1st—Everybody knows that we have the largest store in the city and that we do the largest business.

2nd—We have a store in Sydney just as large as this one.

3rd—Our buyer buys the furs for both stores.

4th—That the more furs we buy the cheaper we can buy them.

5th—That when we buy for two of the largest stores in the Maritime Provinces we naturally buy more than the one store man, especially when his store and business is smaller by a good deal than either of our stores or businesses.

6th—When buying so much the manufacturers naturally give us bigger discounts than to the little fellow, even though the little fellow does "feel as big as a balloon."

7th—He naturally shows us the very best values he has, so that he sells us if possible.

He naturally gives us the utmost satisfaction so as to assure our buying from him again.

Anyone can see that all these facts point to the one conclusion, that is that we buy most furs, buy them cheaper and get a better choice than any other fur dealers in Charlottetown.

We Buy More Furs Than any Other Man on P. E. I.

Attack of Royal Canadians at Paardeberg

ent is a time when war pictures are in greater demand than ever. The conduct of the British soldiers on the battlefield has won the plaudits of admiring nations. We have at great expense published four large, beautiful pictures, size 2 1/2 x 3 1/2, on heavy, superfine, colored paper. A picture that will commend itself and send a thrill to the heart of every true Canadian is the one called Attack of Royal Canadians at Paardeberg, there are literally hundreds of figures in this picture, the mountains or kopjes stretching out into the distance are swarming with men while here and there a hostile figure speaks only too well of the Boer r. d. It was on this battlefield the gallant Major Arnold met death unflinchingly. Indeed it is only too true, that many of those gallant hearts that beat so high when the cheering thousands had them God-speed as they sailed from Canada's shores now lie still forever in lonely graves on the other side of the world under African skies. To every Canadian heart, to every Canadian home, the deeds of their brave soldier boys speak with an irresistible thrill of patriotism and pride. Gordon Highlanders at the Battle of Belmont, Charging the Boer Guns at Elandslaagte, and the Charge of Gen. French's Cavalry on the Retreating Gen. Cronje's Army. These are all stirring pictures and cannot fail to commend themselves to any one who will examine them. They are RED HOT SELLERS! Agents coin money. Big profits. Enormous success.
