THE DELINEATOR.

The June number of the Delineator is called the Early Summer number. It has three full-page illustrations of sporting costumes, and is exceptionally strong in every department. The college tales in May appear to have struck a popular note the local color adding to the natural interest in the development of the stories. This month there are three excellent sketches of life at Wellesley. A realistic bit of negro humor is to be found in the story of De Big Singing, by Jessie Beene Winston. Mrs. Meynell's series on children's ways concludes with a paper on memories. Dr. Murray's article on Biliousness is sensible, practical and authoritative. The housekeeper is well considered in special contributions appropriate to the season: Closing the house for the summer, suggestions for picnics, new and delicious ways of surviving dates, figs, etc., Edith M. Thomas writes interestingly on woman as a traveller, and Mrs. Jones in her department of social observances, treats the subject of what women should do when travelling alone. A page on girl's interests and occupations, by Lafayette McLeods, will be found suggestive for club work.

Order from the local agent for The Butterick Patterns, or address The Delineator Publishing Co., Limited, 35 Richmond St. W., Toronto, Ont. Subscription price of the Delineator, $8.00 per year, single copies 15c.
