

Comet Completes Final Stage Of World Flight

By SEYMOUR TOPPING
LONDON (AP)—The Comet III flew from Montreal to London Wednesday in six hours 18 minutes—the first non-stop Atlantic crossing by a passenger jet airplane.

The gleaming cigar-shaped Comet sped the 3,850 statute miles at an average speed of 548 miles an hour and landed at London Airport before cheering crowds.

The Atlantic flight was the last leg of a 30,000-mile round-the-world test trip to prove to the world that the Comets—plagued by disaster in the past—are back in business.

"This flight has vindicated our faith in British jets," said Sir Miles Thomas, chairman of British Overseas Airways Corporation, in congratulating pilot John Cunningham, captain of the Comet's 11-man crew.

The de Havilland Aircraft Company built the Comet III as a proving model for the bigger and more luxurious Comet IV which BOAC hopes to put into passenger service in 1959.

Britain suffered a setback in the race for jet supremacy when the Comet was grounded after two disastrous Mediterranean crashes in 1954.

COMET CARRIES HOPES
The new Comets—produced after rigorous laboratory tests—are Britain's hope to compete with two American jet airliners—the Boeing 707 and Douglas DC-9—which together have taken a billion dollars worth of orders in the last three months.

Cunningham, de Havilland's crack test pilot, whipped the Comet III across the Atlantic with the help of good weather and a strong tail wind.

"Coming over Shannon (Ireland) we were touching the 600 m.p.h. mark," Cunningham told reporters.

"It was a completely smooth flight. Only in the last three or four minutes over London airport were there any bumps. She landed like a Tiger Moth (tiny single-engine propeller-driven plane)."

It was astonished people throughout the world that this aircraft can land in such a short distance.

"The flight was made at heights of up to 43,000 feet. The descent to London began 200 miles away."

Then Cunningham flew the Comet back to its home field at Hatfield, England, and took along his mother as a passenger. He told her it was better to go in five minutes by air than in an hour's car ride "risking" the heavy automobile traffic on the outskirts of London.

De Havilland claimed the Comet III set a civil aircraft record in flying from Montreal to the London beam in six hours and eight minutes. (It took another 10 minutes for the jet to land through an overcast at London airport.)

WAS NO RECORD
But this was ruled out by the Royal Aero Club. "There is no existing official record between Montreal and London," a spokesman said. "The Comet flight was not officially observed so it will not be regarded as a record."

The previous fastest non-stop crossing of the Atlantic by a transport plane—a military jet—was by a Comet of the Royal Canadian Air Force, which flew from Goose Bay, Labrador, to London—2,600 miles—in five hours, 26 minutes in 1953. The RCAF plane flew at an average speed of 480 miles an hour.

The Comet ran into trouble once during its 26-day test flight. Last Thursday a fire warning flashed on the Comet's control panel shortly after take-off from Montreal and Cunningham returned to the airport to find an exhaust pipe had become detached from an engine.

The Comet took off Dec. 2 from Hatfield and flew to Cairo, Bombay, Singapore, Darwin, Sydney, Melbourne, Perth, Auckland, Fiji, Honolulu, Vancouver, Toronto and Montreal.

S'IDE CIVIC STADIUM HAS NEW LOOK

The Summerside Civic Stadium, seen above yesterday, as workmen neared completion of redecorating and renovating within the interior of the rink.

The stadium was officially opened by Mayor Henry W. Wedge on Monday afternoon, with Councilors, Dr. H. E. Clark, James MacDougall, Clarence Steele, Wm. Jenkins and Andrew Perry present for the occasion, along with upwards of 1000 children and adults who were on hand for the memorable moment.

The event marked the first time that a Summerside skating rink had the advantages offered by artificial ice.

This means that, in future, an active skating and hockey program can be conducted from early fall to late spring without regard for periods of mild weather.

The newly decorated stadium offers a maximum of comfort and convenience for those who will enjoy its excellent facilities, and is said to be one of the finest skating rinks in Eastern Canada.

The appreciation and admiration that Summerside citizens may share in this magnificent new stadium is the result of uncounted hours of study, work, and personal sacrifice on the part of two small groups of men who had the vision, the initiative, and the determination in dealing with the problems that would have discouraged lesser men who might have cherished the hope that a skating rink with artificial ice would some day be a reality in Summerside.

The first of these groups was the directorate of the Summerside Exhibition and Raceway Ltd., composed of Messrs. Harold E. Gaudet, J. K. Curran, G. B. "Jerry" Sheen, Andrew Perry and Sam

Hewitt, who, in the fall of 1953, constructed the building and operated it in the winter months for the past two winters when natural ice conditions permitted.

With the disappearance of Sam Hewitt, who departed during the latter part of July, 1954, on a trip to U. S. A., and reportedly has not been heard from since by the Raceway directors, several summer programs were held under management of the remaining directors, in this building which had been named "The Raceway Stadium."

These programs included an auction sale of standardbred horses, a chicken barbecue, boxing and wrestling cards, a Rotary penny auction, an appearance by the Leslie Bell Singers, rodeos, touring musical groups, and an old time fiddling and step dancing contest.

The directors realized the necessity of an artificial ice plant at the rink but were unable to undertake such a project, and, after negotiations with the Summerside Town Council who had assisted financially in its construction, the rink was taken over by the town this fall.

In concluding the work begun by the Raceway directors, the Town Council, in untiring dedication to this end, became the second group of men of whom it can be said that this splendid rink stands as a memorial.

Out of long hours of discussion and study by the council, over a period of several weeks, evolved the installation of the artificial ice plant, the remodeling and redecoration of the interior, the addition of a central heating system, and the re-naming of the building, "The Summerside Civic Stadium."

Timed with the Christmas holidays from school, a full program of skating is being presented for the pleasure of the boys and girls every afternoon for the remainder of the week, and during this period there will also be skating at the Stadium each evening.

Each afternoon children, for an admission fee of one dime, are flocking onto the big ice surface which measures 90 x 190, for an afternoon of skating which is obviously to their utmost enjoyment.

Tonight the Town Council will meet to discuss minor details in regard to the administration of the stadium, and at this meeting it is expected that they will consider rental charges, admission prices, and the organization of an active winter program of skating and hockey which will go far towards making the Summerside Stadium, "The Sports Centre of Prince County."
