THE STARS AND BARS.

Some Diverging History of the Flag of the Southern Confederacy.
The flag of the Confederacy, or rather the flag of the Confederacy, had some curious bits of history attached to their existence. On March 5, 1861, the provisional congress recommended that the flag of the Confederate States of America shall consist of a red field, with a white space extending horizontally through the center and equal in width to one-third the width of the flag, the red spaces above and below to be of the same width as the white, the union, blue, extending down through the white spaces and stopping at the lower red space, in the center of the union a circle of white stars corresponding in number to the states of the Confederacy. It was first displayed in public March 4, 1861, the day of the inauguration of Lincoln, and was unfurled over the statehouse at Montgomery, Ala.
On the battlefield the flag bore such a similarity to the Union flag that in September, 1861, for the Army of the Potomac, Generals Beauregard and Johnston created what afterward became known as the battle flag—a red ground with a blue diagonal cross emblazoned with white stars, one for each state. This form was adopted by all of the troops east of the Mississippi river. The first design, bearing the objection of resemblance to the stars and stripes, and the battleflag having no reverse, the Confederate senate in April, 1863, adopted a white flag, with a broad blue bar in its center, which was amended by inserting the battleflag design as the union, with a plain white ground for the field. This arrangement afterward proved faulty, as at a distance the large white field resembled a flag of truce, and also, as combined with the union, was similar to the English white ensign.
On Feb. 4, 1865, the Confederate senate adopted a third change: "The width, two-thirds of its length, with the union, now used as a battleflag, to be in width three-fifths of the width of the flag, and so proportioned as to leave the length of the field on the side of the union twice the width below it; to have a ground of red and broad blue saltier thereon, bordered with white and emblazoned with mullets or five pointed stars corresponding in number to that of the Confederate states; the field to be white, except the outer half from the union, which shall be a red bar, extending the width of the flag."—Ohio Valley Manufacturer.

The End of the World.
The Buddhist priests of Haputale, in Ceylon, are circulating all kinds of disquieting stories as to the end of the world. One priest has warned the local villagers that the end of the world begins next week. A woman with a very pretty baby is to visit the villagers' houses, and whoever can be prevailed upon to hold the baby will die. The people are more or less scared. A few months ago these people gathered firewood and made provision for three days' darkness, which was to usher in the grand finale of all things.—Advocate of India (Bombay).

The Sequel to the Joke.
Many years ago a visitor to Edinburgh was being shown over the high court of judicary. He made some remark concerning the dock and its duties, and in reply the official jokingly said the visitor might one day be sentenced to be hanged in that very room. The sightseer was the notorious Dr. Pritchard. Two years had barely passed when in the dock he had so closely inspected he was doomed to death for poisoning his wife and mother-in-law.—London Mail.

Judges in England have worn the peculiar wigs they now wear ever since the reign of Charles II.
The ancients took the owl for a symbol of wisdom because he always minds his own business.
Quite Another Question.
"I could die for you!" he cried passionately.
"Of course," she replied. "But would you?"

THE MAN WHO WAS FORGOTTEN.
"Set him there, where he may see me.
Let me hold his little hand;
Keep my memory before him,
So that he may understand;
Let him look upon my visage
As I draw my latest breath;
Let him close my eyes when, sightless
They shall stare at him in death."
"Let him look; he may remember!
In the years to come, perchance,
He may still recall his father,
Track across the dim expanse
God, thou hast been kind—I thank thee!
Thou hast given me to see
Ere whose flesh is mine; I pray thee
Let my son remember me!"
The wondering child bent over,
And he kissed his father's brow.
They that listened heard the grating
Of the sable boatman's prow.
There were tears and sobs and sighing
But the father only smiled,
And in death still gazed so fondly
At the grating little child.
ENVOY.
There's a gravestone that is mossy, and a name is carved thereon;
There's a wife that once was widowed, but the years have come and gone;
There's a son, to whom a father's tender love is all unknown,
And the name he bears is not the name that's carved upon the stone!
—S. E. Kiser in Cleveland Leader.

Nature's Own
Dyspepsia Cure

Nature's remedies are not like man's—they never fail. Of the many remedies intended to cure dyspepsia, sour stomach, distress after eating, weight in the stomach, wind on the stomach, loss of appetite, dizziness, nausea, impoverished blood, catarrh of the stomach, sick headache, and similar results of indigestion, only one is uniformly and unfailingly successful—that is nature's own remedy, found only in
DR. VON STAN'S PINEAPPLE TABLETS.
The pineapple contains a large amount of Vegetable Pepsin—nature's most potent aid in digesting food. Mix meat and pineapple and agitate the mixture at a temperature of 103°, and the pineapple will completely digest the meat.
Take two of Dr. Von Stan's Pineapple Tablets after your meals and they will digest your food without aid from the stomach. This course rests, strengthens and heals the stomach. The tablets will cure the most chronic case of dyspepsia. They give immediate relief. Take them for a short time and your stomach will be as strong and hearty as that of a farmer's boy.
They are as pleasant to the palate as candy.
