BURGESS BEDTIME

must have been Johnny Chuck.
Peter hopped over to that shining mound of sand, just as he expected he found a hole there. Johnny Chuck had started a new house, an underground house. Of course, that is the only kind of a house Johnny Chuck ever uses. Peter was tempted. Yes, sir, he was tempted to go down and find out. It was just as well he hesitated, for who should appear but Johnny himself. Now Peter and Johnny are old friends. They have known each other since both were very small folks just starting out in the Great World.

of the surest ways of keeping happy.
Peter nodded. "That is very true," said he.
Johnny Chuck turned his head to hide a grin. No one is smarter at dodging work than is Peter Rabbit. "How would you know?" asked Johnny.
Peter pretended not to hear that. "If this new home nearly finished?" he asked.
"I don't know," said Johnny Chuck. "I haven't decided."
He disappeared down inside the house, and in a couple of minutes he was pushing sand out of the doorway. That was real work. Peter, looking on, had a tired feeling.

BABY CHICKS

A GOOD SUPPLY OF CHICKS FOR JUNE. MY REASONS:

Canadian chicks sold a month earlier. Heavy per cent of males gassed at birth. Farmers cleaning up on fowl as fast as possible. Expert salesman of the large plants working on cold storage poultry.

Looks like four salesmen selling poultry meat to one of last year. They promise to cater to tourist trade in earnest.

Most chickens reach maturity very early for 1952.

December and its holidays the strongest month of the year for fresh large chicken will be bare. The few hatcheries now in operation cannot change the picture.

Scratch your head, think it over. A modest purchase won't hurt you; might be good business.
