

THE DAILY EXAMINER. JULY 26, 1881.

Politics in St. John.

By all accounts it appears that the reception in St. John, on Saturday evening, of Sir Charles Tupper, was the greatest and most enthusiastic political demonstration ever witnessed in New Brunswick.

A Free Breakfast Table.

At the demonstration in St. John, on Saturday evening, Senator Boyd let fall a remark which he could hardly have made without consultation with those in authority.

"The Grits put the duty on ships materials, and on tea and coffee. We are giving you cheaper sugar, home refined at that; and we will give you free coffee and tea, but not so much free rum as the Grits handed out to Blake's callers."

If the Government take the duty off tea and coffee—and now that they have an over-flowing treasury again, they can do so—they will confer a boon, the advantage of which will be felt at every breakfast tea table.

Value of Vaccination.

The small-pox epidemic remains unabated at London G. B. At Levesdon Asylum alone, the number of cases under treatment is 1966. The Stockwell committee sent in an important report regarding vaccination.

These figures are somewhat convincing as to the value of vaccination, and parents should ponder well the risk they run in allowing their children to go deprived of this preventative.

The Marquis of Lorne got sold the other day at Quebec. On Thursday evening a man and woman arrived at the St. Louis Hotel, and registered as "Lord and Lady Belfer, London England."

THE JUDGES IN THE SCOTT ACT.—Information was received Saturday evening that Judges Allen and Duff had decided that Moncton was a city under the Scott Act and that therefore the conviction of McCleave should be quashed.

New York is pleased because there is a fair prospect that the returns at the close of the year will show her three state prisons to be self-supporting.

Dufaure, the French octogenarian lawyer who died the other day, was fond of saying in his gruffest voice, "I do not like painting."

The most reliable place to get your Sewing Machines repaired is at Brown's, cor. Prince and Grafton Streets.

CORRESPONDENCE.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions or statements of our correspondents.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR.—I see the Reception Committee want a name by which to address Mr. Blake, and I beg to suggest one which was applied by Thackeray to a German Prince, viz: "Your Serene Transparency."

Is the Canada Temperance Act Desirable?

MR. EDITOR.—The voters say not; as by the number of votes polled the teetotalers cannot claim anything like a majority—not more than one-fourth of the votes being polled. They all voted, I have no doubt, and more, too.

Col. Porter, Chairman of the Board of Inspectors, has a comparison report of the new State Prison, which discloses an increase of crime, and it ought to startle us. The official figures are:

Table with columns: 1851, 1880, Percentage Increase. Rows include Murderers, Manslaughters, Murderous assaults, etc.

In 1851 divorce was exceedingly rare in Maine; now, as Ex-Governor Dingley has proved to a committee of the Legislature, Main leads all New England.

Great injustice has been done to the foreign born population of that State, and especially to the Irish, by the loose talk of many writers and speakers.

I should like to hear how Mr. Dow and Mr. Powell would answer these statements, I think they are correct. GALETS will blow but he will find it difficult to get enough wind to disperse the feeling that men like to choose what they shall eat, what they shall drink, and where withal they shall be clothed.

Washington Letter.

CAUSE OF THE ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION—STATE OF THE PRESIDENT—PURCHASE OF THE SANDWICH ISLANDS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 18, 1881. The sermon of Rev. Mr. Power, Pastor of the Church attended by the President, in which he not only attributed the attempted murder to the spirit of violence which prevails in our politics, but went further and condemned a faction of the Republican party as specially censurable, is not well received here even by the strongest anti-Stalwarts.

To-day the physicians are about ready for the first time to pronounce the President out of danger. The air has changed, and is delightfully cool, and spite of all that is said of the benefits of refrigerating apparatus, there is little doubt that the cool air brought directly into the sick room is better for the patient than any which is artificial cooled and forced into the room by machinery.

An intimate lady friend of Mrs. Garfield is authority for the statement that, while she will do nothing in regard to the proposed fund for herself and family, preferring that the President should take any steps in the matter when he is able, she yet would consider its acceptance as in some degree improper.

The State Department has no information whatever as to the reported intention of King Katakana to sell the Sandwich Islands to some foreign government.

The New York Legislature on Saturday elected Congressman Warren Miller to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Thos Platt, from the U. S. Senate.

Sir Alexander T. Galt.

THE PURPOSE OF HIS VISIT TO CANADA.—PREMIERSHIP—SIR JOHN'S HEALTH.—THE PROSPECTS OF IMMIGRATION.—THE TRADE QUESTION IN ENGLAND.

Sir A. T. Galt who arrived in this city several days ago from England leaves town this afternoon on a brief visit. On his return he will proceed to Ottawa, and from there to the Northwest.

"No, certainly not," was answered. "None whatever. I came to Canada to go to the Northwest to personally inspect the country there, with a view of being able to give complete and detailed information to intending emigrants from the United Kingdom. My wish is to obtain a thorough personal knowledge of the conditions of settlement in Manitoba and the Northwest."

"Is there any truth in the report that Sir John A. Macdonald is to retire from the Premiership and that you are to succeed him?"

"Not the slightest truth," was smilingly answered. "Those are nothing but wild newspaper reports, which are always being circulated. Outside of such reports there has been no mention of such a change. I am sure I most sincerely hope that Sir John will be willing and have the health to continue at his post as Premier for a long time to come."

"What do you know as to the state of Sir John's health?"

"I saw him very frequently for a time before I left, and have heard from him since. He was gaining strength every day, had no bad symptoms, and all the reports were extremely favorable. All the medical authorities in London say he only wants relaxation and rest. I feel certain of meeting him sound and well on my return in September."

"What about the prospects of immigration at present?"

"They are excellent in every way for next season. As I have told you, my visit to the Northwest is to further such interests. Gentlemen from that region tell me that immigrants came in there this spring just as fast as they can be accommodated. Of course, during the late summer and fall we do not urge emigration, as the season is not the right one. It is unfortunate that we have not a through route on Canadian soil, via Thunder Bay, that settlers would travel by, as, sorry as I am to say it, the moment they get into American territory, Uncle Sam uses many enticements to retain them within his boundary, which, used repeatedly, are too often successful before the Manitoba line is reached. But this, of course, is being remedied by the railway now being built."

"What are the prospects of French trade with this country?"

"That question involves a consideration of English trade relations with France. As is well known, negotiations are now pending between these two countries in regard to their tariff relations, and upon the result of these negotiations any change in our trade regulations with France will probably depend. My private opinion is that these negotiations will end in nothing. If so, the matter will then probably take another form."

"Then you think that protectionist principles are spreading in England?"

"The spirit of retaliation, at least, certainly is. No one can be blind to the fact that England at present holds the same feeling in trade matters towards France that this country, in 1878, held towards the United States. It is the spirit of retaliation. She sees that she sells France only one-half what France sells her in return, and that she is being shut out by other countries in all directions. She is consequently growing impatient of her present policy, and if the negotiations with France fail, a strong agitation must arise for her to take the same step as was taken by Canada. The free trade element is, however, yet a great power.—Montreal Star.

The Canadian Team.

HONORS AT WIMBLEDON—SPEECHES BY THE DUKE OF CAMBRIDGE, EARL KIMBERLEY AND SIR JOHN ROSE, AND SIR JOHN MACDONALD.

By a despatch to the New York Herald we learn that on the 21st inst. the Canadian camp at Wimbledon was the scene of quite a gay and fashionable gathering. The Duke of Cambridge had expressed a wish to see the team parade, and a distinguished company came to see him and do honour to the Canadians. Among those who were present were the Earl of Kimberley, Colonial Secretary; Sir John Macdonald, Sir John Rose, Sir Garnet Wolseley, Right Hon. W. H. Smith, Col. Gibson, commandant of the team, and others.

The Earl of Kimberley said that last year he had the pleasure of visiting the Canadian team, but on this occasion it was more gratifying because they had been successful in the truest sense. They were all proud of the progress of the Dominion in art, science and commerce, but more especially on an occasion of this kind they were extremely proud of the measure which they had taken for their own defence. There was nothing which consolidated a community more, or added more to its dignity and self-respect, than that it should provide for the defence of the country. In doing so they were providing for the defence of the British empire. It had given him much pleasure to be again among his Canadian friends, including Sir John Macdonald.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD'S ADDRESS.

Sir John Macdonald said that it had made his heart glow that morning on reading that the Canadians had won the Kolapore cup. It was a gallant fight. After years of defeat the Canadians had luck again. He congratulated the team, especially Col. Gibson, on their success. Although he sympathized with the English team, yet he thought they could afford the Canadians an occasional victory. They were all of one race, under one common allegiance, and if there should be any rivalry between the militia and volunteers of Canada and England, it should be as to who could be most loyal. It was gratifying to find that their progress and the efficiency of the militia forces were being steadily watched by the Commander-in-Chief of Her Majesty's forces. Their militia would not desire to be considered a mere holiday force. He believed if the time should come when England was involved in war, Canada would do her fair share man for man in fighting for the common cause and the common flag. He should go back to Canada and tell the people how proud he was this day, and how the victorious team had been honored by his Royal Highness and by the Colonial Minister. He hoped that this year's victory would not be lost. Canada would have to fight for it, and must send as good a team every year.
