On Saturday afternoon the ship will be open to Sea Cadets and their parents from 2 to 4 p.m., while Navy ball teams are scheduled to play Legion and All Star teams in afternoon and evening games. Later in the evening a private dance for the evening has been arranged at the Canadian Legion hall for the sailors and girl friends.

Fisheries Cases Are Withdrawn

In county Magistrate's court at Summerside yesterday, Magistrate R.S. Hinton presiding, charges under the Fisheries Act for possession of undersize lobsters were withdrawn against three parties from Campbellton and one from Tignish.

The charges were withdrawn as a result of objections made by defence counsel J.O.C. Campbell, Q.C., during last Friday's court session. Mr. Campbell objected to a recent amendment to one of the charges which was necessitated by a Supreme Court decision on Fisheries regulations handed down in March.

Mr. Campbell's further objection was that under the law of limitations the amended charge could not now be laid, as the original charge was laid more than six months ago.

The cases had been adjourned from time to time awaiting the Supreme Court ruling, and were originally laid last August and September.

In the Tignish case Mr. Campbell stated that the law requires a full answer in defence and this was not possible due to the length of time since the charge was laid.

Damages Action Continues In S'ide Supreme Court

An action for damages against the Canadian National Railways in the amount of approximately $5,000.00 was continued in Supreme Court Summerside yesterday.

Mr. Justice G.J. Tweedy presiding. Mr. J.O.C. Campbell, Q.C. is counsel for the plaintiffs, Charles L. Hamilton and his wife, Hilda G. Hamilton, while Frederic A. Large, Q.C. and Mr. W.H. Hewson, regional counsel for the C.N.R. are acting for the defendant.

The action resulted from an accident at an Albany Railway crossing on February 13th, 1955 when a 1951 Studebaker driven by Mrs. Hamilton and proceeding west, was struck by a C.N.R. freight train that was also proceeding west towards Borden.

Mrs. Hamilton sustained a broken back as a result of the accident, but her two daughters, Joan and Linda, and a neighbour boy, Ronnie Nicholson, who were occupants of the car were not injured.

DRIVER TESTIFIES
Mrs. Hamilton was the first witness called yesterday morning and testified that she is still wearing a surgical support as a result of her broken vertebrae, and has difficulty in performing some household tasks that involve bending or stretching.

In her description of the events that directly preceded the accident she said she looked east towards the railway station as the car was almost on the crossing and saw the train at the station. It appeared to be stopped, she stated, and she remembered thinking to herself "Don't stop—don't apply brakes, we're on the track get across." Mrs. Hamilton said she heard a screeching sound but didn't exactly know what the sound was. She said she accelerated the car and then couldn't remember anything further until she recalled a brief moment after the accident while she was lying by the side of the car. Mrs. Hamilton said she had been driving a car since June 1935 and had never had her license suspended.

Six witnesses were called by the defence counsel including the driver of the train involved in the accident, the chief dispatcher for C.N.R., M.A. Howatt, and John Blank of Moncton, claims agent with C.N.R. The train crew were: John Thompson, fireman; and Donald MacCausland, trainman. The members of the train crew testified that the bell was ringing and that the prescribed whistle blowing was carried out for both the station and crossing. They guessed their speed to be between 25 and 30 miles per hour. They told how the engineer applied the emergency brakes after two of the crew noticed a car at the crossing, which they described as stopped a few feet from the crossing, when they first noticed it, but said it started across as they approached.

They told of rendering assistance afterward at the home of Michael Deane where Mrs. Hamilton and her daughter Linda were first taken.

Mr. Coffin said he heard "the woman on the couch" say "it was no fault of yours," but didn't know to whom it was directed. He also said he heard a little girl say, "Mommy, I told you not to cross," and heard the woman reply, "Yes, dear, I know I shouldn't have, but I thought you were on the track."

The little girl said he heard John Thompson make the above remark but couldn't recall the mother replying. However he said he heard Mrs. Hamilton say, "if the car had been warmed up we'd have made it."

On cross examination by Mr. Campbell, Mr. Thompson said he didn't remember hearing the whistle and bell of the train at any crossing after the train left Charlottetown until Albany, but stated if they hadn't sounded he would have known it.

TELLS OF SPEED
Chief dispatcher M.A. Howatt gave the composition of the train as one loaded car, four empties, and a van, and said the operating speed for a freight train is about 30 miles per hour through built up areas.

Mr. Campbell then read a C.N.R. statute which states that a train shall travel at a speed of 10 miles per hour through the thickly populated portion of any city, town or village.

When Mr. Howatt said the train speed for that crossing was reduced to 25 miles per hour as a result of the accident, but was reduced to 30 miles per hour within two months by the Board of Transport Commissioners, Mr. Campbell was quite vehement. He said, in part, "do you mean to say the Board of Transport Commissioners on its own initiative can restore the speed to 30 miles per hour within two months, after a woman was almost killed and still in a cast, and an action against the C.N.R. pending in the Supreme Court? It's like saying they can go ahead and kill those Prince Edward Islanders."

The action continues today at 10.30 a.m. with one more witness for the defence to be called.
