THE MEETING THIS EVENING.

FORGETFUL of the fact that the hope of the future of our country lies in such as those who attend the Kindergarten, and that a meeting in Kindergarten Hall is a happy and reassuring augury of success, the Patriot makes a sickly attempt to be funny over the Liberal-Conservative meeting to be held there this evening. "Those laugh best who laugh last," and it is quite within the range of possibility that after the Provincial election has been held the Patriot's laughter will be "on the other side of the mouth". It is certain, at all events, that no patriotic elector will be blinded by the Patriot's chaff, or be unable to see the ruin that lies in the course that has been followed by the Peters Government. We have no doubt that the meeting will be attended by men of intelligence and determination, and we trust that, as a result of the selection to be made by the Liberal-Conservatives, this city of Charlottetown will no longer be represented in the Legislature by men who are unable to say a word in her behalf and who wield no influence whatever over the Government of the Province. Charlottetown is the chief town of the Province, and she ought to have some weight in the councils of the country. But Mr. Peters flouts her and her representatives in the face and has done so from the very beginning. The truth of this statement is scrobbly illustrated and brought home by the fact that Charlottetown is now compelled to undertake, alone and unaided by the government, the whole expense incident to affixing the celebration of the Queen's Jubilee in this Province. The celebration is calculated to evoke the patriotic sentiment of the Province at large. It is representative of the Province at large. The people of the province at large would, we are sure, be glad to bear their part in the demonstration that is to be made in honor of their beloved Queen. They would feel ashamed of themselves if no demonstration were made to mark the completion of the sixtieth year of Her Majesty's happy and prosperous reign. But Messrs. Rogers and Prowse are unable to move Mr. Peters to give a single dollar in aid of the Jubilee. Charlottetown is compelled to bear the whole expense of it. Mr. Peters snaps his fingers at Charlottetown and is quite willing to take credit for the celebration, while the poor but loyal taxpayers of the city pay for it! We see in this single fact—which is typical of the Government's conduct towards the capital city throughout its career—an ample reason why the electors of Charlottetown should rally at Kindergarten Hall this evening and take steps to bring out candidates to oppose and defeat those who hang upon the skirts of the Government to receive, metaphorically, the kicks of its leader. Everyone knows that the Peters Government is as unpopular throughout this Province as it is possible for a Government to be, and the electors of Charlottetown cannot fail to see that it will be in their interest to take the lead in the movement which must result in ousting them from power. We, therefore, hope to see a large representative meeting of the electors of Charlottetown at Kindergarten Hall this evening.

—The Flag, published at Ottawa, remarks that, "locally this spring has been the most backward for years." The bad weather has not been confined to Prince Edward Island.

—A contemporary published in Boston remarks that "millions are poured into our colleges and universities to educate the brains of America, while almost nothing is done to educate the heart." This ought not so to be.

The especial pet of Washington society at present is the new secretary of the Turkish legation, Selveddin Bey, whose Apollo-like form and features have earned for him the name of "the Greek god." He is one of the handsomest and most dashing men attached to the diplomatic corps for many years and is a striking figure in the daily promenade of the west end.

NOTES AT THE WEST.

The Bar By Alberton.

A visit to Alberton and its vicinity reminds one of the beautiful lines of the poet:

While faint at eve, through sylvan ways,
The city's gathered murmurs die,
And voiceful of historic days
Her towers oppose the pallid sky,
A fainter strain entrancing more,
In memory's mystic world floats on,—
The echoes of the surges roar
About the bar by Alberton.

Oh far away! Oh far away,
Though tones from old cathedral bells
Steal sweetly forth, give me to stray
Where the dark wave resounding swells
Against the fir trees solemn gloom,
To see day's level lines grown wan
And hear the billows sullen boom
About the bar by Alberton.

Recalling faded days of yore,
When wide the unbroken forest lay
Primeval to the northern shore,
And the lone Indian on his way
Heard the deep voice his sires had known
Or when his evening camp fire shone
Caught the Atlantic's ceaseless moan
About the bar by Alberton.

When weary home the reapers go
And Heaper's daisy light is born,
Or autumn moonbeams soft and slow,
Draw dials round the sheaves of corn,
Southward o'er warmer tracts and far
Mysterious murmurs wander on,
The sound of waves that waste the bar,
The sandy bar by Alberton.

Spent in the misty voids of night
No western gale that murmur brings,
So pleasures die and dreams of light,
In clouds decay the spirit sings
Its sad refrain by life's dull shoal
Of many a golden summer gone
In echoes of the surges roar
About the bar by Alberton.

NEW LIGHTS.

Since the poet wrote, the sands which form "The Bar by Alberton" have shifted, and the old land marks are no longer to be trusted. The erection of new range lights was therefore necessary. This work has lately been accomplished by Mr. Milton Walsh, of the Marine Department, who returned to Charlottetown on Saturday. The new lights are white lights. By coming into range with them the vessel from sea is brought to Malone's Point, after which the old red range lights must be used to bring her safely into harbor. These new lights have been erected on Mr. Oulton's Island; and as Mr. Oulton and his family are the only residents of that island, and as they are all Liberals, it may be assumed that either he or some member of his family will be the lighthouse keeper.

OUTLON'S ISLAND.

Fifteen years ago this Island, at the entrance of Cascumpeo harbor, was covered by a dense forest and was known by the name of Savage Island. But it came into possession of an active and energetic man, about that time, and it is "Savage" no longer. On the contrary, a large part of its hundred and seventy-five acres is in a good state of cultivation and is covered by a crop which looks well. Mr. E. T. Oulton has, by his energetic and persevering labor, redeemed the Island from everything that may be called "savage," except a few very valuable black and silver grey foxes which he has, with his keen eye to business, preserved in an enclosure that he calls his "fox ranch," and which, in company with Mr. Dalton, of Tignish, he is keeping for breeding purposes. The ranch is situated in the dearest part of the woods which remain upon the Island, and is surrounded by a fence or wall of webbed wire. This wire wall extends below the surface four feet and above the surface about fifteen or twenty feet. The coy female foxes, with their black and silver grey pups, are kept within this enclosure, while Master Reynard occupies a house in the farmyard. As the skins of these animals are exceedingly valuable, Mr. Oulton has good ground for the hope that he will be well repaid for all his care and trouble in connection with them. His island continues to be the resort of wild geese, duck, brant and other wild fowl while it is close to the fishing grounds of the west. Like Robinson Crusoe Mr. Oulton is lord of all he surveys. Yet he is not averse to sharing with his chosen friends the sporting privileges which he possesses on his island. He may well be proud of the improvement that he has effected. If, as Dean Swift says, the man who makes two blades of grass grow where only one grew before, is a greater benefactor to his country than all the politicians, what is to be said of the man who has transformed a howling wilderness into smiling meadows and grainfields?

ALBERTON AND VICINITY.

The beauty of Alberton is somewhat marred by several old dilapidated buildings, some of which have been partially consumed by fire. Still there is in it much that is attractive. Some of the houses in and about the town are finely proportioned and well built, and with lawns and well kept gardens about them, are elegant places of residence. The rural scenery in the vicinity is really beautiful. A pretty and flourishing Anglican church occupies the site of an old-time tavern and the large Roman Catholic, Presbyterian, Methodist and Baptist churches in and about the town, prove that its people have banished some bad influences and have surrounded themselves by many good influences.

Alberton possesses in the Terrace House, kept by the Misses Ellis, one of the best appointed and most comfortable hotels in the Province; and this, with the fishing and shooting near by, make it popular as a resort in the tourist season.

PERSONAL.

The illness of John T. Weeks, Esq., one of the leading men of the town and a prominent member of the Liberal-Conservative party, is greatly regretted. It is pleasing to learn that he is now reported as "somewhat better," and that he entertains a good hope of recovery.

—It is remarked that a significant celebration of Her Majesty's Jubilee has been arranged by the inhabitants of British Columbia, in the opening, on June 21st of the new Legislative buildings, which have been in progress of erection during the past three years. The design, material and labor are all home productions, and the total cost of the building has been considerably less than $1,000,000. The sandstone, granite and marble of which the walls are formed abound in the Province, and come straight from the quarries; native cedar, maple and oak are combined in the interior furnishing; while Canadian brains designed the imposing pile and Canadian hands executed the well-considered plans. The buildings are arranged in three groups—the centre or principal building, comprising six departments, is so arranged that whilst each of the three wings will be a perfect and complete building erected independently of the others, they will, when completed, form one structure. The buildings cover an area of 5000 square yards, or more than an acre, while the great dome—to the top of the colossal copper figure of Capt Geo. Vancouver, which surmounts it—is over 150 feet above the ground floor.
