Busy Season At Experimental Farm

A new experiment is being carried out at the Experimental Farm this year in an effort to learn the value of bees in fertilizing cucumbers. Hives are being set out in cucumber patches and a count will be taken of the number of bees settling on the plants. The data acquired is expected to show whether or not they will aid in increasing the yield.

Another experiment has been started to determine the relative merits in pasturing of rotational with strip grazing. In the latter, recently becoming more popular, the cows are allowed only what they can eat in one day and are confined to an area sufficient for the purpose. The next day the electric fence guarding them is moved forward. On a regular pasture field the distance the fence is moved is approximately 30 feet per day.

In rotational grazing the cows are permitted to roam over the entire field until the feed in it is finished. Under this system it is necessary to have two or three fields to rotate. The experiment will be continued this year and one or two more years in keeping with the Farm policy of conducting experiments for three years before reaching any definite conclusions.

Farm Operations

Due to the dull weather little work has been done around the Farm, but all the grain is in and is already up. One half of the potatoes have been planted in the experimental plots on Illustration Stations.

The Farm had a visit this week from Mr. E. Braun, Senior Agriculturalist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. During his visit he discussed and studied the bee situation here.

Last night Mr. R. C. Parent, Superintendent of the Experimental Farm, gave his 68th illustrated talk at Milton on details of his overseas trip last year and told of agricultural practices in Great Britain and Ireland.

Preparing For Big Chicken Barbecue

Officials of the Experimental Farm are taking an active interest in the plans for the giant barbecue to be held on the grounds there on July 8. While the chickens were being prepared for cold storage to be ready for the event Mr. Frank Tinney took a series of colored slides of the process.

These will be used to supplement a commentary on preparation of broilers for home use during the barbecue. Approximately 1,000 two and one-half to three pound chickens were processed by a crew of volunteer workers using the plant and facilities of the Royal Packing Company.

These were eight men on the project and each of them had a definite job with the result that the big job was finished in fast time and with a minimum of waste motion.

The plucked birds were placed in their crates at the end of a long steel table and the first workman, taking them one at a time, quickly cut off the feet and wing tips and slide them to the end of the table. At the adjoining table were four other workers. The cutter, and his method of operation, was the focal point.

Using a hooked knife similar to those used in cutting linoleum he took from the tail along the backbone to the neck and repeated on the other side. The sharp knife sliced through easily. Two quick cuts at the tail with another straight knife freed the bone and it was easily ripped loose all the way to the neck.

Quick Operation—This long strip with the neck and head were then cut off and tossed aside as waste. The carcass was then split completely open and quickly cleaned. The giblets were tossed along the table to another worker who separated the liver, heart and gizzard into piles.

When the bird was cleaned a slash of the knife divided it into halves which were passed to a fourth worker who removed any pin feathers. The halves were then placed in a large vat of water where they were carefully washed before being passed to the packer.

A large box was lined with waxed paper and matching halves placed together on the paper, 17 birds to the layer. Each one of the 8 layers in the box was separated from the others by another layer of the paper. When the 96 chickens to the crate were packed and covered they were ready for deep freezing and storage until they are needed for the barbecue. At that time each diner will receive half a chicken.

The object of the barbecue is to acquaint the buying public with the desirability of purchasing the smaller birds for small families in order to avoid having to eat the same type of meat for several days.

During the barbecue those present will also be shown how to build a pit at their homes for their own use and how to use the

Good Progress In R. S. Campaign

General satisfaction was expressed at Red Shield-Sunset Lodge headquarters last evening as reports from four Divisional Commanders, submitted in quick succession, indicated "Over the Top", and the City total collection was announced as $6,200.

Div. No. 4, commanded by Donald Martin led the victory parade clearly followed by Charles Downs, with Gordon Welner in third position and Harold E. Moore also exceeding his quota.

Wilbur Willis and Henry Douglas are well within striking distance of their quota.

Mr. Ben Rogers, campaign treasurer and members of the Bank of Montreal staff were on hand to take over the receipts.

Hard Of Hearing Society Organized

A further meeting of those interested in the organization of a Hard of Hearing Society was held at the home of Mrs. S. P. Paoli, Water Street on Monday evening, May 31, with a representative attendance from both City and country present; thus indicating a growing interest in the movement.

Mr. C. F. Archer occupied the chair and Vince McIntyre acted as secretary. Mr. McIntyre gave a brief summary of what had already been done at previous meetings. It was pointed out by the chairman and others that the purpose and objective of the movement was not confined to aiding those who already are seriously handicapped with their impairment, but as well—and more so—those who at the moment are but threatened, or slightly afflicted with this insidious malady.

Initial research indicates there are thousands of persons throughout the Province, afflicted in various degrees with this ailment; from the aged who are almost totally impaired, down to and unfortunately including, children of school age and attendance. Many of the younger and middle aged who at the moment are gainfully employed, are fearful of the day when they may be unwillingly ushered into a category of partial or total dependence. It is a problem, the chairman said, which is rapidly developing into a social menace of proportions that should attract wider attention of welfare organizations and Health Departments of governments. It is an affliction that can in many cases be checked in its earlier stages, and relieved even after it has unfortunately gained a substantial foothold.

Organization was effected on what is hoped to be a permanent basis, with a board of directors and provisional officers as follows: President, C. F. Archer; vice-president, Vincent McIntyre; secretary, J. A. Gillies; treasurer, Mrs. S. P. Paoli.

A continuing meeting to finalize organization is being held at Mrs. Paoli's residence, 2 Water Street, on Monday evening next.

Former City Man Goes To Ottawa

Word has been received from Halifax that Ralph C. Smith, C.P.A., has been transferred from that city to Ottawa.

Mr. Smith, who has been an accountant with the Income Tax Department at Halifax for the past nine years, now becomes a Head Office Inspector. His new duties will take him throughout Canada coast to coast.

His friends in Charlottetown congratulate him on his advancement, having led all Canada in competition for the above appointment, and wish him every success in his new endeavours.

Mr. Smith was born in Vancouver, educated at West Kent School and Prince of Wales College, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Smith of this city.

Resignation Of Mr. H. J. Kennedy

The resignation of Mr. H. J. Kennedy as general manager of the Provincial Exhibition Association was announced yesterday. Mr. Kennedy has been in ill health for some time and was finding his duties too onerous. He became president when a group of which he was a member bought the plant from Lieut. Col. D. A. MacKinnon some years ago. And when the group named its directors he became vice-president and manager.

It is not believed that another position will be handled by a committee. Mr. Kennedy will remain as a director of the Association.

Popular with the horsemen and the fair-going public in general, the resigning manager was active in promoting many of the improvements which have taken place. This was especially true of the new building now under construction and expected to be ready for the big fair this year.

retary, J. A. Gillies; treasurer, Mrs. S. P. Paoli.

A continuing meeting to finalize organization is being held at Mrs. Paoli's residence, 2 Water Street, on Monday evening next.
