Both residents entered pleas of guilty to the lesser charge of care and control while their abilities were impaired, which were accepted by Magistrate Gaudet.

Two residents of the province, one of Bedford and the other of Gaspereaux, were each fined $10 and costs for having possession of a quantity of oysters "at a place where fishing for such fish is prohibited."

U.S. Steel Talks Are Stepped Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiations in the 30-day U.S. steel strike were stepped up Monday. A joint meeting of industry and the United Steelworkers was held without any appreciable progress toward a settlement.

Another joint session was scheduled for today by federal mediation chief Joseph F. Pineson.

The only prior face-to-face peace talks since the strike of 500,000 Steelworkers began at midnight July 14 was a week ago.

Pineson said there was an exchange of viewpoints in Monday's negotiations "to a point where both sides felt it was worth it to resume today."

The Steelworkers union called the walkout in quest of a 18-cent-an-hour wage and benefits package. Pre-strike wages averaged $3.10 an hour. The union argued that the increase could come out of industry profits without the necessity of a price rise in steel.

The company refused the demands on grounds that a wage increase would force a price increase, and thus contribute to inflation.

Islanders' Loyalty Praised By Rotary Club Speaker

DR. W.M. WhiteLaw, on the staff of the American International College at Springfield, Mass., who is this summer Visiting Professor of History at Mount Allison University, Sackville, N.B., was guest speaker at the weekly luncheon meeting of Rotary at the Charlottetown Hotel yesterday.

"A nice thing about Islanders is they are so sure as to where they belong—they were born that way and will die that way," he said as he emphasized their loyalty, in a humorous way, as compared with other parts of Canada where the people are not so much exercised about the matter. "You have a feeling that you belong which cannot be taken away from you."

Recalling how he once spent a week-end at a quiet town in Ontario and gradually drifted into conversation with an unassuming young lady, who so soon told him many engrossing things about P.E. Island. The lady was Lucy Maude Montgomery.

Not so long ago when Dr. WhiteLaw was a dinner guest in Adelaide, Australia, having exchanged views with the host on politics and kindred subjects for some time he turned to the two young girls present and asked what they would like to talk about. "Tell us about Green Gables," one of them said.

Only last week when touring Nova Scotia, he entered into conversation with a lady who was born and brought up in Finland. She carried with her for reading in leisure when travelling, one of the "Ann" books, which she was enjoying immensely.

HOSPITALITY AN ART

"I know of no other part of Canada where the art of hospitality is as prevalent as on the Island. Regardless of race, religious persuasion or political leaning, these are all secondary to the cohesion which marks the 'Island'."

"We must get the home feeling in local areas all over Canada to have a perfectly decent national home atmosphere, regardless of the ties of blood, homeland and country," Dr. WhiteLaw said.

The speaker was introduced by chairman Ken Parker and thanked by co-chairman George Greenwood.

Dr. WhiteLaw, who is one of the leading Canadian historians was born in Quebec, and had a distinguished academic career, having served on the faculties of McGill University, University of Saskatchewan, University of Manitoba, Columbia University

Detective Otis Labree said he and other officers are continuing to question the men about other worthless cheques totalling about $2,600 passed in the vicinity during the last four weeks. Other warrants will be sought.

A cheque writing machine and typewriter was found in a well at the home of Laplante's sister in St. Agatha, Labree said.

Nation's History Not All In Documents, Society Told

Imaginative students who exploited the memories of elderly citizens and explored the earth surrounding the remnants of early settlements gained a far broader picture of the nation's historical background than those who relied solely on the documentary evidence available. Dr. W. M. WhiteLaw, a noted Canadian historian, told members of the P.E.I. Historical Society last night.

A former teacher at several of Canada's major seats of learning, and now a member of the staff of the American International College, Springfield, Mass., Dr. WhiteLaw is at present lecturing to students attending the summer school in session at Mount Allison University, Sackville, N.S.

He was introduced to the audience assembled in the writing room of the Charlottetown Hotel by the society's current president, Dr. Frank MacKinnon, principal of Prince of Wales College, and thanked by Judge H.L. Palmer.

OTHER GUESTS

Dr. David Farr, professor of history at Carleton College and secretary of the Canadian national historical foundation, and the Misses E. Berry and P. M. Chetwynd of Aberdeenshire, Scotland, were guests of the society.

Chance and a few questions that very day had led him to the location of one of the boats once used to transport passengers across Northumberland Strait, Dr. WhiteLaw said.

Happening to get in conversation with a very elderly lady while looking for a place to purchase a cold drink he found out that her late father had captained one of the boats which at the time she said was "down the shore ways."

As a matter of historical interest, and an added tourist attraction, this craft or one similar could be enclosed in a glass case and put on permanent display on the M.V. Abegweit, Dr. WhiteLaw suggested.

The guest speaker said that he was more than a little disconcerted at the lack of interest

Veterinarian Dies In City

The death occurred Sunday at his home 56 Green Street of Dr. Milton L. Lowrie in his 56th year. Just last fall, Dr. Lowrie was a charge of federal meat inspection at the Canada Packers' plant in Charlottetown.

Born at Millbank, Ontario, Dr. Lowrie was a graduate of Ontario Agricultural College, class of 1906. He came to Prince Edward Island in 1947 and for several years he was the secretary of the P.E.I. Veterinary Medical Association.

A member and faithful attendant of Trinity Church, he was past president of the Men's Association. Possessed with a literary bent, one of his hobbies was writing short articles and stories, a number of which were accepted by Canadian publications.

Dr. Lowrie's health began to fail him in 1957 when he was required to undergo surgery. He returned to his work for about a year but was obliged to relinquish his duties last October.

Survivors are his wife, the former Lillian Hagan of Boston, and two sons Allan with the Canadian Army at Camp Gageown and Wayne at home. Also five brothers, three of whom are doctors. They are Dr. Robert A. New York, Dr. Frank and Dr. Howard in Toronto and a brother David in Hamilton and William in Toronto. Three sisters reside in Toronto. They are Mrs. Bertha Kay, Mrs. Olive Beach and Miss Marjorie.

The funeral will be held this afternoon from the Cutcliffe Funeral Home. Interment will be in Floral Hills Memorial Gardens.

People have a "tremendous urge" to tell their story, he said. All historians have to do is ask them for it.

NON-EXISTENT

Digging was practical non-existent everywhere, and on the Island the legislative library was unable to produce the volume dealing with the period in which the "Province" joined Confederation and absentee landlordism was abolished.

Racial prejudice needed to be eliminated, Dr. WhiteLaw added. In Nova Scotia, for instance, one could see many papers but never a Micmac chief, a representative of the area's true pioneers.

"With very little expense, the Dominican archivist could supply the Island with a complete microfilm record of all high-level government correspondence that took place in the early days."

Dr. WhiteLaw defined history as an attempt to understand how our social life came to be what it is with dates and places left in.

"History," he said, "is a record of all man's past acts." It attempted to answer such questions as why people in Saskatchewan differed from the people of Prince Edward Island.

By means of a "dig" started two years ago by himself and several fellow archaeologists, it was disclosed not only how the Indians inhabiting the Long Sault area 3,000 years ago lived, but also gave many indications of the nature of their thinking, he said.

EXPLAINED MAN

Archaeological discoveries explained something about the average man who lived at the time of the deposit. Unlike much documentary evidence which resulted from "politicians' attempts to cover their trail, they were not put there on purpose.

Only one cop of the 72 resolutions drawn up at the Quebec conference which preceded Confederation, was in existence, Dr. WhiteLaw maintained. The other 32 copies had disappeared because they revealed that only one-half the delegates present had signed the document, he said.

The best history of the early development of the West was in eastern atlases, Dr. WhiteLaw declared.
