Trying to Raise Another Fishery Dispute.

EVERYBODY SMUGGLES IN NEWFOUNDLAND.

A letter from St. John's Nfld., says:— "The American schooners find the harbors of Newfoundland more friendly havens than those of Nova Scotia. Several of the Gloucester and Cape Ann schooners have been able to purchase their bait directly under the eyes of the customs officials. It is understood that the Government have given these officials instructions to give a general interpretation to their bait laws that there may be no obstacles placed in the way of a peaceful solution of the fishery troubles with the United States; but the Government evidently intends to enforce the law rigidly against the French fishermen. As an instance of the markedly strong feeling on both sides, it might be mentioned that Mr.
Scarlett, a customs official sent by the Newfoundland government to St. Pierre, in reference to revenue matters, was ordered by the French government to leave St.
Pierre immediately. For many years a large illicit traffic has been going on between the French town of St. Pierre and the several English towns on the adjoining bays. Of late years the smuggling trade has become almost a science. Every one smuggled, and St. Pierre being only a Crown colony, a kind of French garrison, there were little or no port dues to pay, and so smuggling was a very lucrative business.

The Newfoundland Government Collected in this way from many thousand inhabitants the sum of $7,000, and it cost the Government $14,000 to collect that sum. As a result of the action of Parliament just closed, the Customs department sent a squad of Customs detectives to that part of the coast just as the large spring trade opened. Many seizures were made, and large revenue was collected. Mr.
Scarlett was located at St. Pierre, with orders to use the wires and keep his brother officials on the coast line apprised of the several vessels leaving St. Pierre, but he was immediately ordered to leave the Island. The Newfoundland Government refused to recognize the French Consul, and demand that they shall have a representative at St. Pierre.

The Bulgarian Prince.

The Bulgarian Sobranje has once more assembled to renew its futile efforts to elect a Prince of Bulgaria who will be permitted to ascend the throne and govern the principality by all the Powers. The prince who may be elected by the Sobranje as the honest choice of that body, will, of course, stand no chance of assuming the rulership of the country in view of the enormous strength of the opposition exercised by Russia. The czar will not for a moment recognize the rights of a candidate recommended by England or Austria or both. The other powers will certainly object to the selection of a ruler whose sole claim to that doubtful honor rests upon the recommendation of Russia. The election of a candidate enjoying the favor of the Sultan of Turkey is out of the question, and it is difficult to see how an indefinite prolongation of the deadlock can be averted, or how the question can be ultimately settled except by arbitration of war. Russia's intention after having determined long ago that the Bulgarian question must be determined by war, patent to every acute observer of her course, is that the rising of the smoke of battle from the hills and valleys of Bulgaria shall discover that country an integral part of the Russian empire, and the large numbers of Russian troops stationed at various points within distance from Bulgarian soil easily covered in from six to twenty-four hours, attest the gravity of that intention. It will therefore be seen that the action of the Sobranje can have no effect in bringing about a settlement of the Balkan question except as furnishing a pretext for warlike demonstration or actual conflict. The recent cementing of the relations between Italy and England into what may be considered an alliance, has caused the circulating of a rumor that the two powers have concluded a secret treaty for concerted offensive and defensive purposes to offset the effect of an alliance between France and Turkey, the consummation of which seems most probable.

Bridesmaids in Germany.

In Germany the duties of the bridesmaids have just a tinge of superstition about them.
It is one of their duties on the morning of the marriage day to carry to the bride a myrtle wreath, for which they had subscribed on the previous evening. This they place on her head, and at night remove it, when it is placed in the bride's hand, she being at the time blindfolded. The bridesmaids then dance around her, while she endeavors to place the wreath on one of their heads. Whoever is fortunate enough to be thus decorated will, it is believed, be herself a wife before another year has passed away.

In removing the bridal wreath and veil, the bridesmaids are careful to throw away every pin, or the bride will be overtaken by misfortunes; while any unwary bridesmaid who retains one of those useful little articles will materially lessen her chances of "getting off."

Like many other German superstitions, this has found its way into England, though it has not yet become a general belief.

Anecdote of Queen Victoria.

Many pleasant stories are told of Queen Victoria's kindness of heart. On one occasion while staying at the house of a Scotch nobleman, she was walking in the Park with the Princess Beatrice, and, encountering an old woman, entered into conversation with her. The dame not recognizing her, asked her if she had seen Her Majesty? "Oh, yes," replied the Queen, "I see her every morning before breakfast." On hearing this the old woman enquired eagerly—"Oh! but is she as good as she looks in the prints I used to see of her when I was younger?" The Queen laughingly replied that Her Majesty was rather flattered in her pictures; and the woman again urged her to say what she looked like.
"Well," said the Queen, still much amused, "She and I are said to look so much alike that you would hardly know us apart."
"Well, you are not so ill-favored yourself," was the dame's considerate answer, which so entertained Her Majesty that she bade the old woman to come to the castle that afternoon. Accordingly at the time appointed, the old Scotch woman made her appearance, and was conducted through endless corridors and up and down to the room, where she had not long to remain until the Queen appeared. "Eh! so you are here, too," the old woman exclaimed; but almost immediately it was made known to her in whose presence she was standing.

Irish Affairs.

In the course of a recent address, Lord Hartington replied to Mr. Gladstone's statements respecting the reported existence of disputes on the Irish question in the Liberal Cabinet in 1880. Lord Hartington says there were serious disputes and that he frequently wished to resign from the Cabinet, but yielded to Mr. Gladstone's strong remonstrances and remained in the ministry. The Marquis says he challenged Mr. Gladstone to obtain the Queen's consent to have the proceedings of the period referred to published, so that the public could see for itself the nature of the differences in the Cabinet, and who were on one side and who on the other. "Mr. Gladstone's speech on Saturday," added Lord Hartington, "favored giving Ireland an autonomy similar to that of New South Wales, England I hope to abandon all control in Ireland. I hope the country thoroughly realizes what this means."

Scene in a Theatre.

An exciting scene occurred recently in the Queen Theatre, Manchester, during the progress of a sensational drama entitled "A Mother's Sin." Towards the close of the third act, when the hero seems to be in the power of the villain of the piece, a man in the gallery rose to his feet, shook his fist at the actor who was peacocking the villain, and then took a fearful leap from the gallery on to the stage, on which he fell with a sickening thud just beyond the footlights. Actors and audience were much excited, and shrieks were heard from all parts of the house. The man was at once carried off the stage and removed to the Royal Infirmary, where it was found that his leg was broken. The distance from the gallery to the stage was 30 feet. The man's name is Mandeville, as is that of the heroine of the piece.

Give Them a Chance!

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain.

No writs have as yet been issued for Charlevoix or South Renfrew, and it is probable that they will not be issued until after the Digby election, on the 16th inst.

WASHING MADE EASY.—I have on exhibition in my shop window a washing machine that does away with the old and laborious way of washing clothes; you can sit in your easy chair and rest while your washing is going on. It has been tried and proved genuine.
Please call and examine this great Washer and Bleacher. Purchase one and thereby save labor and expense. They are sold for $2.00 each. G. G. JURY, sole Agent for the Work is said to have been suspended on the Cape Breton railway, owing to a dispute between the contractors and the sub-contractors about the quality of the material used by the latter. The Government is endeavoring to get the matter settled so that work may proceed, and Mr. Schreiber, superintendent of the Government railways, left for the scene of the trouble a day or two ago.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain; and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for Mrs.
Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind. mar 17 cod & wky
