P.E.I. Beef Producers Ass'n Told Of Farming Advances

O'LEARY — The Beef Breeders Association of Prince Edward Island met in O'Leary yesterday for the expressed purpose of developing an interest in the association among the beef and dairymen in Western Prince county.

The afternoon session opened about two o'clock in the Christian Training Education Centre with Eddie Clarke of Belmont presiding and seventy five interested persons present.

The first speaker was Leo P. McIsaac, president of the association, who reported on modern developments in beef production and the advantages of corn and various supplements. While promoting membership in the organization, Mr. McIsaac stated that farmers are facing a period of opportunity, if not prosperity, and should actively support any organization of their own which work in their interests.

Glen Cotton, beef fieldman for the Department of Agriculture, discussed the advantages of dehoring cattle and other matters of interest to the industry.

Lincoln Dewar, secretary of the Beef Production Association and the Federation of Agriculture, reported on decisions taken at the annual meetings of dairy farmers and the Federation of Agriculture held in Toronto in January. During a lively question period a speaker complained that two companies set the price of beef and others follow along. Another suggestion was that a beef selling agency be set up.

Laymen, Clergy Discuss Union

Tuesday evening at Trinity United Church, a successful start was made in the Charlottetown area on the road to closer co-operation and perhaps eventual union between the Anglican and United churches. Approximately 115 laymen and clergy met at St. Paul's Anglican and Trinity United met at a supper meeting to talk over their common hopes and ideas concerning union of the two denominations. Among the guests were Archdeacon Davies and members of St. Peter's Anglican Church.

After a supper served by the U.C.W. the men moved to Trinity Hall for the main programme which included a stingsong.

Rev. Robert Tuck of Summerside gave the theme address outlining the principles of union with the emphasis on the fact that the object is unity not uniformity. Questions were posed to a panel whose members included Rev. Louis Elias and Dr. F. W. Jellis of St. Paul's and Rev. Gerald Wyrwas and J.C. Sutherland of Trinity. The moderator was Walter Wheeler.

The discussion brought forth fruitful ideas concerning the laymen's role in ensuring a solid foundation for union. The major points of the discussion stressed that members of each church must be prepared to respect each other's viewpoint and come to understand the basis of their differences, always recognizing that each of them as a Christian seeks to worship God by following the example of Jesus Christ. Preparations for Union will take time and of necessity, the move towards union must be carried on by the laymen. A lasting union cannot be imposed from the top, to be implemented within a specific length of time.

General reaction to the meeting was one of enthusiasm with the result that more joint meetings will be held with possible involvement of other United and Anglican churches in the area.

TREMENDOUS INTEREST

Following a dinner catered to by the United Church women, the feature speaker, R. C. Parent, superintendent of the Experimental Farm, was introduced by Mr. McIsaac. Mr. Parent said he found tremendous interest in a community pasture development in the O'Leary area.

Cleric Discusses Plan Of Creation

Rev. J. Kelly of St. Dunstan's University, was guest speaker at the regular meeting of Charlottetown Council, Knights of Columbus Tuesday evening.

Father Kelly, who spoke on "The plan of creation," stressed man's acquisition of natural happiness as insufficient. In time, man's ideas of self sufficiency led, because of Original Sin, to a fallen nature which resulted in disorder, confusion and anxiety, he said.

Father Kelly referred to the pure nature of Adam before the fall, then to the fallen nature of man and finally to the restored nature of mankind through institutions of the Jewish religion and Christianity.

He referred to institutions as integral parts of society and mentioned the necessity of perfecting and changing these institutions when special conditions arise in world history.

The meeting was chaired by Edmond C. LeClair, who introduced the speaker.

A question and discussion period followed the meeting.

The next event was the sleigh race where students pulled their home room teachers around a required course. Room 14 won by a wide margin.

In the afternoon the Ice Sports were held in the Souris Arena with races for all ages. Following this a teachers' race was held in which Mr. Griffin won by skating across the winner's line an inch ahead of the field.
