

Oscar After Marriage.

Oscar Wilde, who was married a spell ago to a dreamy-eyed, soulful creature, who seemed to worship Oscar, and live only to do his will, was rudely shocked the other day. He had dressed and acted like ordinary, every-day mortals for some time past, and attracted but little attention by his stimulated oddities, but one morning the old spirit came over him, and he felt like posing and parading in the remarkable costume rendered familiar by his platform performances. His wife saw him rummaging the wardrobe but said nothing. He rummaged a long while, and then a voice came from the closet:

"Where are they, dear?"
"Where are what, love?"
"Why, the—my knee-breeches, darling."

"You won't need them any more, Oscar. Your knee-breeches belong to the past."

Pale and agitated was the countenance of Mr. Wilde as he emerged from the closet door, holding in his hand one long silk stocking, which was all he could find of his late stunting costume.

"Mrs. Wilde, what do you mean?"

"Mr. Wilde," said the madam, in icy, measured tones, "this foolishness of yours, which might have been interesting and attractive when you were a young and single man, is all out of place now."

"Madam!"

"It comports not," continued Mrs. Wilde, "with the discretion and dignity which should belong to the head of a family. Knee-breeches and long stockings are quite out of character for you now, and henceforth you must content yourself with the decorous pantaloons prescribed by our modern and less aesthetic civilization."

The tones of Mrs. Wilde were firm and decided, and she suddenly displayed a force and decision of character hitherto unsuspected and unlooked for. Oscar hesitated and turned round as if to resume his search.

"No use hunting for them, dear," said she. "An image peddler was here the other day, and I traded your breeches off for that plaster cast of the Kacoon upon the mantelpiece."

Oscar dropped into a chair, buried his face in his hands and wept. "And another thing, Mr. Wilde," said she, rising to leave the room, "I wish you to understand right here once for all, if anyone wears the breeches henceforth in this house it will be me!" Then she left him alone in his agony.

Cincinnati Saturday Night.

Stuart Cumberland.

A SUCCESSFUL SEANCE WITH THE PRINCE OF WALES.

Mr. Stuart Cumberland was among the guests who accompanied the Prince of Wales on July 19th on a visit to Baron Ferdinand de Rothschild at Waddesdon. After dinner, at the desire of the Prince of Wales, Mr. Cumberland gave some illustrations of thought-reading. With the Prince, Mr. Cumberland was at once successful with an experiment, which consisted in finding a medal on the breast of Lord Airlie, unpinning it, and handing it to Lady Mandeville. Mr. Chaplin hid a pin in the coat of the Prince of Wales during Mr. Cumberland's absence from the room in a moment Mr. Cumberland discovered and plucked out the pin. Lady Mandeville's test afforded much amusement to the company. Mr. Cumberland correctly interpreted her thought by taking up a biscuit and putting it in Mr. Christopher Sykes's mouth. Mr. Cumberland was next successful in telling the number of a note thought of by the Italian Ambassador, and indicating a pain from which Lord Castlereagh was suffering. A curious hunt, in which every one present heartily joined, after an unnamed object—a portrait of the Prince of Wales—in another part of the house, with Baron Rothschild and the Italian Ambassador as subjects, formed the next demonstration. The next test was performed with the Prince of Wales, who undertook to think of an animal which Mr. Cumberland should endeavour to describe. "I am no artist," the Prince said, "but I will do my best to think of the way in which the animal should be drawn." Mr. Cumberland took the Prince by the hand, and in a few moments drew upon a piece of paper a rough outline of an elephant, which, it turned out, was the animal thought of.

EVERY farmer should get one of R. K. Brace's Air Rotary Churns, and test them as the prizes for butter this year are very large. A few have been tested and spoken very highly of. It is said they preserve the grain of the butter, and as a result, it will keep longer. (July 17, da wky)

DIRECTIONS TO VOTERS.

THE following is the form of ballot to be used in the election for Queen's County:

Election for the Electoral District of Queen's County District, August 19th, 1884.

JENKINS, I. John Theophilus, Charlottetown, County of Queen's, Physician and Surgeon. X

WELSH, H. William, Charlottetown, County of Queen's, Merchant.

HOW TO MARK THE BALLOTS.

Be sure to mark your ballot for the Liberal Conservative Candidate.

"The elector, on receiving the ballot-paper, shall forthwith proceed into one of the compartments of the polling station, and there mark his ballot paper, making a cross with a pencil on any part of the ballot-paper within the division containing the name of the candidate for whom he intends to vote, and shall then fold up such ballot-paper, so that the initials on the back can be seen without opening it, and hand it to the Deputy Returning Officer, who shall, without unfolding it, ascertain, by examining the initials, and the number upon the counterfoil, that it is the same he furnished to the elector, and shall first detach and destroy the counterfoil, and shall then immediately, and in the presence of the elector, place the ballot-paper in the ballot-box.—Ballot Act, Sec. 35.

No voters should make any mark on the ballot-paper save one cross on any part of the ballot-paper within the division containing the candidate's name for whom he intends to vote. If the voter writes his name or initials, or any remarks, he makes his ballot useless.

A simple cross upon the ballot for your candidate will assist in electing him. Any other mark or writing will contribute to their defeat.

- 1. Poll opens at nine o'clock a. m., and closes at five o'clock p. m.
2. Vote early.
3. See that your Liberal Conservative neighbor votes early also.
4. If you have a vehicle, place it at the service of your Committee to bring tardy voters to the polls. Give the information to the Secretary of Committee.
5. Do not "pair" on polling day with your Grit neighbor. Poll your own vote and let him look out for his.
6. Poll every possible vote; the loss or gain of a single vote in each sub-division may make all the difference between victory and defeat.
7. If your returning officers and deputy returning officers are Grits watch them.
8. Each Liberal Conservative should vote as though the result of the election depended upon his individual exertions.
9. Remember that any bribery, corrupt treating, hiring of vehicles, paying of voters' expenses, or any undue influence, will not only void the election, but is punishable by law.
10. Electors can only vote at one polling sub-division in the same electoral division, no matter in how many sub-divisions they may have votes.
11. Any elector's vote may be challenged who has received anything on account of his vote, or has been promised anything directly or indirectly, either to induce him to vote at the election or for loss of time, travelling expenses, hire of teams, or any other service connected therewith; or even if the said elector has directly or indirectly paid or promised anything to any person, either to induce him to vote or to refrain from voting at the election.
12. An elector having more votes than one in the same electoral district should vote in that electoral sub-division in which he resides. Attention to this rule will facilitate the polling, and possibly contribute to the individual elector's comfort.
