Chicago Cubs Still Tops In National With 3 Wins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Chicago Cubs continued to ride high in the National League today, calling on power at the plate to make up for weakness in the field as they beat the Cincinnati Redlegs 6-4 in 10 innings Thursday.

Three home runs in the ninth and 10th innings wrapped it up for the Bruins, who now have won all three of their 1955 games. Randy Jackson's two-run poke in the top of the 11th settled it.

The victory kept the Cubs half a game ahead of Brooklyn and Philadelphia who made it two straight. The Brooks overpowered the winless New York Giants 10-8 and the Phils scored three in the second to beat Pittsburgh 4-3.

In the other National League game, St. Louis swatted five of the seven home runs in the contest to knock off Milwaukee 8-7 in 11 innings.

INDIANS UNDEFEATED

Cleveland's defend ng American League champs stayed unbeaten on the stick work of Al Smith by beating Detroit 5-3. Boston matched the Indians' 2-0 record with an 8-4 success against the New York Yankees. And Sandy Consuegra three-hit Kansas City as the Chicago White Sox won their first of the season 7-1.

Rain washed out a scheduled night game at Washington between the Senators and Baltimore.

For the Cubs reliefer Hal Jeffcoat, the outfielder turned pitcher, hit a home run in the top of the ninth for a 3-2 Chicago lead, but Gus Bell, who earlier had two singles and a double, tied it a second time in the home half with a solo shot.

Ernie Banks followed Jackson's blast off ex-Cub Johnny Klippstein with one of his own to salt away the decision for Jeffcoat.

TWO FOR NEWCOMBE

Brooklyn and Don Newcombe watched as the Giants hoisted the then impressed upon the New NL pennant and world championship flag in pre-game ceremonies. Yorkers that that was all last year's stuff. Newcombe homered twice—he had hit just one major league home run previously—and Roy Campanella and Carl Furillo each swatted three-run blasts for the Dodgers. Sal Maglie, usually a toughie, was pulled within five innings.

Willie Jones' first homer of the year set off the Phils' three-run second and Herm Wehmeier held on the rest of the way.

The Cardinals came from five runs back to get a .500 standing along with the Braves. Rookie Bill Virdon swatted reliefer Dave Koslo's second pitch for a solo homer to end it in the second ex-self on the mound for Kansas City, tra frame.

SHANTZ LOSER

Bobby Shantz looked like his old self on the mound for Kansas City, but some inept fielding and a touch of wildness tagged him with the defeat at Chicago. Bob Nieman's two-run homer off the little lefty in the sixth was the big blast for the White Sox.

Cleveland didn't need much more than Smith and the six-hit pitching of Mike Garcia to spoil Detroit's home opener before 42,-684 rain-soaked fans. Smith had three singles and a two-run homer.

Willard Nixon and Ellis Kinder combined to defeat the Yanks with Jimmy Piersall and Sammy White contributing home runs. Nixon, 4-0 against New York last season, left in the eighth with one out, two on and two runs in, but Kinder turned pinch-hitter Eddie Robinson's liner into a doubleplay to end it all. Bob Grim, a 20-victory rookie last season was loser.

As most everyone knows, many ridiculous and at times very dangerous situations have arisen from the recent suspension of Mr. Hockey himself,—Maurice (The Rocket) Richard. The Rocket's lay-off for the play-offs was awarded to the Pride of Montreal because of his stick-swinging fray with Boston's Hal Laycoe when only three games remained in the regular season of NHL play. At that time the Rocket was leading the NHL scoring race by two points and seemed almost a sure bet to take his first National Hockey League scoring crown. With thousands of ardent (and we do mean ardent) fans anxiously awaiting, with eye-sparkling anticipation, the final results of the season's scoring, President Clarence Campbell touched off hockey's greatest riot by excluding the Rocket from further participation with the Canadiens for the rest of the season.

* * *

At the time of the suspension, the Rocket was not only leading the scoring race, but was also leading the Canadiens to what seemed to be a League championship. With three games left to go, the Habs headed the Red Wings by two points, or one game. But out went Richard, and by the time the three games were played, out when his scoring title the championship for the Canadiens, and as it turned out, the extra home game in the Stanley Cup finals which might have meant the trophy as far as the Canadiens were concerned. Canadien and Richard followers really exploded in an emotional frenzy with the saddening thought that all, which was now lost, might have been theirs, had Richard not been suspended.

* * *

To get back to our original line of thought—the occurrances which arose from the suspension—the latest and the one which will probably stick with fans the longest is brought to our attention in the Ottawa Journal. It seems that in the way of wandering minstrels of the Middle Ages, a latter-day story-teller-by-song is currently spreading the tale, with the aid of borrewed music (Ivan Skovinsky Skavar), of an unhappily ostracized hockey player. As the story goes, western balladeer Bob Hill, in a voice faintly tinged and with a twanging guitar back-ground, plaintively sings on a Spartan labelled record the story of the break between "Maurice (The Rocket) Richard and one "Campbell, the man without fear:" All of the song is not contained in the article but what there is of it we will relate. The Saga of the Rocket opens:

"In this great game of hockey
to which we lay claim
There are heroes loved near and afar,
But the mightiest name in our national game
Is Maurice (The Rocket) Richard."

A follow-up verse claims further, the virtues of the skated saint. The story then leaps right into the Boston Arena where the noted fracas took place. In acknowledgement of the fact that Richard slugged the official, the singer laments:

"In so doing, you know, he trod
on the toe
Of Campbell, the man without fear."

* * *

The banishment takes up another two verses, both of which fall within quotes of the man at the top, who has no fears. The reason as is plaintly seen is because there is little doubt about which of the two has the sympathy of the singer. A riot of sorts slides by in quiet fashion, including the bomb which "Made them all shed a tear" and a suggestion that some outraged fans were clamoring for the head of "Campbell, the man, etc.." The article stated that a mild suggestion of shame for the participants in the riot follows, with emphasis on the fact "The Rocket" is not the least to be blamed. The last two verses go like this:

"Now our town has lost face and
our team is disgraced
But these hot-headed actions can't mar
Or cast any shame on the heroic name
Of Maurice (The Rocket) Richard."

"For he will return and his legend will burn
In the annals of sport near and far.
There was never a name of such
glory and fame
As Mauriee (The Rocket) Richard."

Thus, ends the Saga of the Rocket.

Detroit Red Wings Win Stanley Cup With 3-1 Victory Over Habs In Final Contest

(By W. R. Wheatley, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

DETROIT, (CP)—Two goals by Alex Delvecchio and another by reliable Gordie Howe carried the Detroit Red Wings to their seventh Stanley Cup triumph Thursday night with a 3-1 victory over Montreal Canadiens in the cup final.

Floyd Curry tallied Montreal's sole goal, in what was then just about a lost cause in the final game of the best-of-seven series, in the third period after the Red Wings had set up a 3-0 lead.

It was a well-deserved victory by the Red Wings, who gradually took command of the game after Delvecchio had broken a scoreless deadlock at 7:12 of the second period. There was only a flash again of power by Canadiens, and that came in the final session when they kept hammering away and finally got a goal past Terry Sawchuk, who played an outstanding game.

ROAR ACCLAIM

The record crowd of the season, 15,541, began cheering through the final minute of play and when the final siren sounded there was a tremendous roar of acclaim.

The Detroit players jubilantly grabbed and hugged each other, those on the bench standing at the ready for the last few seconds to tick off and then joining their mates on the ice in celebration.

The Montreal players mingled with their conquerors and there were rounds of handshaking. It was a different picture from a corresponding situation of last year when the Red Wings, again carried to the seventh game, pulled it out in overtime. But on their victory then, the Montrealers disdained handshaking and went immediately to their dressing room.

CARS ARE OUR Line

by Earle G. MacLeod

As most people around here know, writing a newspaper column isn't our line. As it says at the top, Cars Are Our Line. In handling anything as important as cars, though, you get to know something about them. You get to know how the sweet purr of a good engine should sound, you hear stories about old cars and you get to know how to look after a car.

You get to know a good car from a lemon because, if you think about it a minute, you'll see that we have to BUY cars as well as sell them. So we have to know what a good car is. And while we're about it, we pick up a lot of interesting stories we think are worth passing along.

It's our shop talk . . . just like the talk of the railway men who remember the record set way back by Old No. 580, or sailors who remember the Big Storm, or army buddies who remember the Big War which is, of course, the one they fought in.

I hope you'll enjoy stopping at this spot every week and I hope I can pass along some shop talk that'll be useful. I'm not going to get complicated or technical, there are too many people today trying to bamboozle others with big words and fancy phrases.

All the fancy adornment hasn't been able to change some things. Like honest trade, a dollar paid for a dollar's value. Whatever you may think about the dollar today, it won't buy more sound motoring than at our used car lot. As I said before, we have to buy cars as well as sell them and before we take a car in we make sure it's a sound, tight, clean car. We make doubly sure after we have it, and then we offer it on our lot.

Its an ill wind that doesn't blow some good and Mr. Harris' budget which reduced the excise tax on new cars will be a boon to used car buyers too. Our loss is your gain.

One of the better buys on our lot this week is a 1954 Laurentian two door sedan which Bill Boyle traded with the Boss on Monday. This car has a radio, seat covers and has been driven only 9200 miles. Bill takes as good care of his cars as he does of the patients for whom he fits glasses at the Polyclinic.

Other Goodwill Buys include:—

1951 MERCURY 4 Door Sedan, Radio-Heater	$1450
1954 CHEVROLET 2 Door Sedan	$1775
1952 FORD 4 Door Sedan	$1200
