THE SMITH ESTATE LOTS 33 AND 24

We learn that under the provisions of the Land Act passed at the last session of the Local Legislature, to compulsorily purchase the lands on Lots 33 and 24, held by the Trustees of the marriage settlement of Mrs. Sidney Smith, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court has appointed Malcom McLeod, Esq., Q. C., as the second Commissioner to sit on the Commission. This appointment is an excellent one, and no better man could be had in the Province. The Trustees of Mrs. Smith have appointed John Pittblado, Esq., the Manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia here, as their Commissioner. The Hon. David Laird was, some time ago, appointed the first Commissioner on behalf of the Government, but we learn that he considers himself disqualified to sit, owing to some of his relatives being tenants on the estate, and therefore resigns the appointment. The Government will therefore have to appoint another man in Mr. Laird's place. Should the Act receive the Royal assent at Ottawa, the Commission will probably sit through the summer.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

New York Sun: Canadian manufacturers would disappear to-morrow were the tariff barrier removed.

Mr. Laurier with some friends were a few days ago, upset over an embankment fifteen feet deep but escaped without personal injury. The accident was typical of the overthrows that the Leader of the Opposition and his party will receive at the next election.

promote prosperity, are not half finished, and there is no money to complete them. For the people, by increased taxation, to meet all public obligations is simply impossible. The present loan is a great boon. But when it is spent what will be done? Well, $200,000 can do a great deal. The first thing for Newfoundland to do is to get rid of its rotten politicians, then, if unable to make ends meet, unite with Canada upon a fair basis.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Mail and Empire, says: It is perfectly true that the blame of the Liberal mistake of the Globe in propagating invented stories as to Ministerial discussions is to divert attention from the real state of affairs in the Opposition. Recent events emphasize the fact that the blame of the Liberal mistake to hold the leadership of the party in commission. That Mr. Laurier, who has given the Opposition years of faithful and valuable service, should feel this keenly need not be a matter of surprise. The play explains his silence during the budget debate. Although the ultra free trade declarations of the Liberal leader were quoted by more than one speaker, he had not a single word to say in reply. The great trouble was, as was discussed by other prominent Liberals, but Mr. Laurier, who alone could speak for the party as a whole, resolutely kept his seat. Had he been struck dumb by the matter of surprise, his friends could not have said less. But the Liberals have always played false with their leaders. Mr. Mackenzie, the best of them all, was undermined and deposed because of inaction and indecision. Blake took the leadership because the party would not let Mr. Laurier go. Mr. Laurier went to the help of Sir Richard Cartwright a few months ago to save his political life, and now the gratitude he receives is a conspiracy to depose him. While such things are going on it is hardly a matter of surprise that the orator, who feels his wings have been clipped, declines to soar.

SOUSA IN MONCTON.

Saturday's sun rose in an unclouded sky and gave joy to the hearts of the excursionists and the promise of a beautiful crossing. Twenty-eight Charlottetownians were joined by a party of about thirty-five at Summerside, all bent on hearing one of the most famous of the men of the century. The response was delightful. A faint breeze, a slight ripple, and the gentle motion of the boat, was as a prelude to the entrancing strains awaiting the voyager in Moncton. After the hour had struck in Pointe du Chêne during which time the inner man was replenished, the party resumed their journey. At Pointe a change of cars, and the excursionists were on the same train with Sousa and his renowned followers. A casual glance at the train reveals that they are for the most part Germans, Italians, Englishmen and a few Frenchmen. They are all in uniform with the familiar name "Sousa" in gold letters on their caps. In conversation with them they inform us that they have had a splendid reception in the Maritime Provinces. Large and appreciative audiences have greeted their appearance everywhere. Each man of the fifty is a trained musician, and a sight reader, and from the big basso to the cornet each man is a soloist. But this is digressing. We arrive in Moncton, and have an hour and a half to "lo-up" the town before proceeding to the concert hall. When at last we enter this building we are agreeably surprised, for we behold the largest rink this side of Montreal. Our party of thirty, having telegraphed beforehand, are lucky enough to secure some of the best seats in the hall. The people are rushing in, and by the time the concert begins fully two thousand persons are seated, besides the hundreds are listening from the outside. We have not long to wait, and the much desired moment arrived, Sousa, with the magic wand in hand, appears, and as he makes his low bow greets us with thundering applause. Everything has been arranged by the manager; he mounts his stand, waves his baton, and the music begins. To undertake a criticism of the programme were to exceed beyond the writer's courage to muster. Having heard such music, one would wish never again to listen to music till he has again the opportunity of hearing the like. Sousa's is "William Tell" is a grand composition. Interpreted by Sousa and rendered by his band it was sublime. Each of the ten pieces on the programme was accorded. As an encore to the second act of the "William Tell" a grand march, "Washington Post March." Miss Bernard had to respond to two encores. She rendered "Sweet Alice Ben Bolt" with much sweetness and pathos. Her voice is strong, flexible and of great compass. Miss Duke, the violinist, is certainly an artist, and her great instructor cannot but be proud of his talented pupil. After number eight the band left the stage, and many thinking the concert was over began to leave the hall. After a few minutes, however, the band began to come back, first the basses came and played "Sweet Alice Ben Bolt" in a manner that "left the hall full" is a grand compliment. Then followed the trombones, then the clarionets, then cornets, etc., each different kind of instrument playing solo, then taking their seats, till the "William Tell" had a grand encore. Then for the second time Sousa marched in to the time of "Washington Post March." The last piece of all was a splendid illustration of negro life on the plantation. The heat in the rink was the close was very oppressive, but to the musical this was a very secondary consideration. Not till the last strains of "God Save the Queen" did anyone leave the hall; then the immense throng began to pour out, and the excursionists wended their way to the station, where their train awaited them. The good ship Northumberland was waiting at the Point, and once the passengers were aboard she steamed out. The crossing was made pleasant with chatting and smoking on deck, and music and song in the saloon. Summerside, and on board the express for Charlottetown. Arriving here all seek their homes to go and dream of Sousa and his band.

The fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla, once fairly tried, becomes the favorite spring medicine, speaks a volume for its excellence and merit. Lord Gough, whose death was announced on Friday, entered the British army in 1853 and rose through the ranks to become major-general in 1887. He served through the siege of Delhi and commanded a wing of the regiment in the actions of Bolandshur, Alleghur, the relief of Lucknow, the battle of Cawnpore, the siege and capture of Lucknow and the action of Ranabade. He received the Victoria Cross for leading a party of Horse near Alumbagh on Nov. 12, 1857, across a swamp and capturing two guns held by a superior force. He also distinguished himself near Jellalabad by showing a brilliant example of the regiment when ordered to charge the enemy's guns. He had two horses killed under him on that day, and was himself severely wounded. He commanded the 12th Bengal Cavalry in the Abyssinian campaign in 1868. He served through the Afghan war of 1878-80. He also accompanied Lord Roberts on the march to Candahar.

At the request of the Government the mounted police have taken a special census of the Northwest Territories in order to ascertain whether the increase of population would justify the additional representation in Parliament which is being asked. The figures show that there has been a remarkable accession to the number of inhabitants of Western Canada since 1891, when the census of the Dominion was taken. Alberta shows an increase of 57 per cent. in the three years, East Assiniboia comes next with an increase of 35 per cent. Saskatchewan follows with an increase of 20 per cent. and West Assiniboia with 24 per cent. more inhabitants than it had in 1891. Altogether in the four territories the increase of population is a fraction over 40 per cent. among the white and half-breed population. The Indian population, which in 1891 was 14,569, is now returned at 13,345, or 1224 less than it was recorded in the general census. The white and half-breed population in the four territories which, in 1891 was 52,230, has increased by 21,276, and consequently stands now at 73,506, which is divided among the territories as follows:

Table with 3 columns: Territory, 1891, 1894. Rows: Alberta, East Assiniboia, West Assiniboia, Saskatchewan.

The New York Tribune has not much hope for Newfoundland. It says: "The public debt is $1,255,710 in 1875; $4,133,202 in 1889; $8,255,546 in 1893; and is about $18,000,000 now. And the population is 200,000. That makes $90 public indebtedness for every man, woman, and child in the colony. Canada's debt is only $56 a head; England's $88; Italy's $76; France's $57; the United States, including State and county debts, say $21. Nor is that the worst of it. These other countries, and still others, such as France and the Australian States, whose rates of indebtedness is even higher than Newfoundland's, are in a comparatively prosperous condition. But in Newfoundland times are hard and growing harder. Exports were less in 1893 than in 1888. The revenue, seldom equal to expenditures, is diminishing year by year, while expenditures are increasing. Most of the people are poor. Of those who once ranked as well-to-do, by all means either ruined or seriously embarrassed by the recent failures. The railroads, which might

SHE WAS AN ISLANDER.

The San Francisco Evening Post says the entire detective force of that city is convinced that Senator Buck struck the blow which killed Miss Nellie Harrington in her flat on Saturday. Buck died from the effects of injuries sustained by being thrown from a cart while being driven by a policeman to the office of the chief of police. The conclusions of the police are said to be based on the contents of a number of letters from Buck to Miss Harrington, which show an even greater degree of intimacy between them than was at first supposed to exist. The detectives' investigation of Buck's movements on the afternoon the crime was committed prove that the alibi offered by Buck's family is not borne out. In trying to fasten the crime on Buck, the detectives are piling up cumulative evidence. They declare the dead Senator's actions after the tragedy were suspicious. The most unfortunate feature of the police theory is that the accused man is dead and no testimony can be offered in reply to the police suspicions.

Miss Nellie S. Harrington, so brutally murdered, was a daughter of Timothy Harrington, a resident of Chicago many years ago, and who died there. Mrs. Alton (now) Mrs. J. C. Harrington, living at No. 370 Oak Street, is a sister-in-law. Mrs. Harrington has a high connection in Chicago, being a sister of John Walsh, the banker and capitalist. The dead woman was born on Prince Edward Island and went to Chicago when she was a child. She was about forty years old when murdered.

They Must Avoid Drink. Bachelors in Danbury, Conn., who hope some day to marry must avoid looking upon the wine when it is red, or any other alcoholic drink of any other color. The girls will not stand it, and are lashed together in the cause of temperance. Father Lynch, rector of St. Peter's church, spoke on the subject of marriage and alcohol at every mass on Sunday week. At 4 p. m. the old ladies of the Rosary Society, to the number of twenty, stood by the younger women. Most of these old ladies already have husbands, but Father Lynch told them they were in danger of becoming widows at any moment, and that they would then be able to make their power felt. The widows, who were more outspoken than those whose husbands are not yet dead, but whose very little faith, however, is expressed by Danbury men in the protestations of the widows. A leading saloon keeper said: "Young girls may be exacting in their choice of a husband, but widows are not so exacting. They say it drives trade out of the town. The result of the crusade is eagerly watched for."

NOTABLE EXCEPTION. A Strong Feeling in Favor of a Canadian Product in the State of New York. SYRACUSE, N. Y. June 10.—In spite of a strong sentiment prevailing throughout this state that nothing good can come out of Canada, a feeling is beginning to grow that there are certain notable exceptions and among them is classed the new specific remedy for all diseases of the kidneys and all complaints arising from a derangement of those organs, known as Fuld's Kidney Pills. The medicine has received a thorough test and is being prescribed not only by druggists but by physicians whose well known reluctance to admit any virtue in proprietary medicine makes their testimony to its merits still more remarkable.
