Senate Kills Maine Timber Export Act

AUGUSTA, Me. (AP) - The Senate has killed a bill to regulate the mass export of Maine timber to Canada and the sponsor, Senator Edward P. Cyr (Rep. Me. 4th dist.), denounced timber interests for being irresponsible. The bill requiring that all timber to be used for wood products in a manufacture be worked wholly or partly in Maine before being exported was indefinitely postponed by a standing vote of 19 to 11. Senator Joseph B. Campbell (Rep. Alaska) cited a number of legal objections. The primary objection, Campbell told the Senate, is that the bill would conflict with a section in the constitution which provides that "Congress alone can regulate commerce between nations." "It seems as though I'll have to bow to the inevitable," Cyr said. He blamed the defeat on the timber lobbyists who, he said, "are more dangerous than the spruce budworms."
