Noted Explorer Visits Vancouver

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 25—An interesting visitor at the Canadian National Steamships offices here today was Amos Burg, famed National Geographic Magazine writer, explorer and lecturer whose hair-raising adventures in the South Seas have been witnessed by thousands of travel motion picture enthusiasts. This summer he will make motion picture stories in Alaska and in British Columbia's Queen Charlotte Islands for release through one of the large Hollywood organizations.

He also plans on writing a number of travel articles in which the waters of British Columbia will receive prominence.

Mr. Burg is sailing North in his spin-riggered speed boat "Dorgu." In this small craft he has retraced Charles Darwin's voyage in the "Beagle," explored the Patagonian Archipelagoes, passed and re-passed Cape Horn and visited the home of the Yachan Indians, most primitive of the earth's peoples. Through G. A. McNicholl, General Passenger Agent, Canadian National Railways and Steamships, an old acquaintance, Mr. Burg received a variety of information on his forthcoming trip and visited with Captain B. McKinnon of the S.S. "Prince Charles" which makes the scenic Queen Charlotte Islands run for the Canadian National Steamships.

Youth Problem Needs Solution

WASHINGTON June 25.—(C.P.)—A five-point public affairs program was presented by Fred Field, Vancouver, at the 20th annual convention of Kiwanis International today. The major objective was the solution of problems facing young people today, he said.

"At the present time in Canada several hundred thousand young people between the ages of 16 and 30 are out of employment," declared Mr. Field. "This is serious enough but when we consider that many of these young people have never had a job the problem becomes more threatening. They are totally untrained in any vital real occupation. If the future of the Dominion lies in our young people, then this problem is the most important one confronting us today. Failing to find definite employment, for our young people we should endeavor to see that some method of vocational training is instituted.

"Modification of our school systems so we have less of the situation of the round pegs trying to get into square holes should also have Kiwanis attention," he said. "Finally, in our prisons there should be segregation of youths. Crime is being committed these days by youngsters between 19 and 21. That shows the seriousness of the problem and young first offenders should be separated from hardened criminals."

Agricultural activities for 1936-37 for Kiwanis clubs in Canada were also discussed. It was reported 50 clubs were already engaged in agricultural work throughout the Dominion, where urban-rural relations work is directed by Thomas Keith, St. Thomas, Ont., and Edward Ridley, Prince Albert, Sask.

The activities which clubs will carry on during the coming year include plans for diversified farming, urging greater consumption of local, home-grown products. Rural groups will be brought together to discuss land use planning and other farm problems. Other work will be the promotion of farm institutes and scientific projects, dairying and pure-bred stock raising, sponsoring grain and stock shows, country fairs and 4-H boys and girls club work.

Increasing their community work, clubs were urged to undertake safety campaigns, study traffic codes, secure adequate examinations for drivers' licences, develop safety propaganda and erect danger and warning signs.

Recalls Patrick Unknown Maestro

(By The Canadian Press) NELSON, June 24—Reputations did not travel very fast into this West Kootenay county 30 years ago. So Carl Lindow, now postmaster at Salmo, 15 miles from here, avers and he says Lester Patrick, New York Rangers' Maestro, can bear him out.

Lester came west in 1907 with his father who was looking for timber limits after having worked out his holdings in the province of Quebec.

Lindow was interested in timber at that time and something of a hockey player himself.

Seated around a camp fire at Socan, on mountain-bordered Socan Lake, Lindow extolled on the possibilities of the Socan city squad in the Kootenay League the next winter.

Turning to Lester he asked if he played hockey.

The young Patrick nodded.

"Well," said Lindow, "if you can show any promise perhaps you can make a place on the team."

"Show the boys your watch, why don't you," suggested father Joe Patrick.

Lindow took the timepiece, turned it over then handed it back and a few minutes later "turned in."

On the back of the case was inscribed: "Presented to Lester Patrick, captain, Montreal Wanderers, World Hockey Champions."

Next day, however, Lindow felt somewhat mollified when, after

New Treatment For Diabetes Is Discussed

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) VICTORIA, June 24—Protonine insulin, the latest development in the treatment of diabetes was described in an interview today by Dr. C. H. Best who worked with Sir Frederick Banting in the original discovery of insulin.

British Columbia salmon play a part in it.

The new form of insulin, said Dr. Best, dissolved more slowly in the human system, and therefore its effects were more lasting and treatment need not be so frequent.

The linking of protonine with insulin was the outcome of the work of Dr. Haggerdorn of Copenhagen, Denmark. Through the work of two Canada scientists, Dr. D. A. Scott and Dr. Albert Fisher, both of Toronto, the solubility of protonine insulin had been slowed down by the inclusion of metals in the compound.

The substance is an organic chemical and the supply in Canada comes from the sperm of British Columbia salmon, being obtained from the fisheries biological station at Nanaimo.

THREATS OF CIVIL WAR ARE REVIVED

Canton and Nanking In Brief Skirmish.

HONG KONG, June 24—Threats of civil war in China revived today when troops of Kwangsi Province (of the Canton southwest regime) were reported to have advanced deeper into Hunan Province, which is under the protection of the National (Central) Government at Nanking.

There was a brief skirmish with National Government troops, said advices from Changsha, capital of Hunan, but no casualties were mentioned.

(Officials circles in Nankin charged Japan has agreed to lend Kwangsi Province $5,000,000 Mexican ($1,500,000) to finance her army).

The Canton regime was reported to be formulating further demands upon Nanking.

The demands Canton is formulating are believed really designed to place Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, virtual dictator of the Nanking Government, in an embarrassing spot and to win concessions for Canton. Southwestern leaders are bitter political enemies of General Chiang.

Canuck Paddlers Hope To Capture Olympic Honors

These demands were reported being drafted for the agenda of the forthcoming meeting in Nanking of the Central executive committee of the Kuomintang (dominant government political party and the only one officially recognized in China).

1. Mobilize the whole nation to resist Japan.
2. Sever diplomatic relations with Japan.
3. Emancipation of the masses and restoration of free speech and the liberties of the people.
4. Resist with armed force the influx of Japanese troops into North China.
5. Repudiation of "humiliating" Sino-Japanese agreements.

Olympics.

Rowing people know England, United States, Australia, Italy and Germany will be hard to beat on the water. The fencers are frank enough to say they haven't a chance; the boxers and wrestlers are more optimistic and the others are preparing for competition they know will be stiff.

"We don't know what we have to beat," says Amyot, one of the greatest single blade paddlers ever developed in Canada. "This is the first time paddling has been on the Olympic bill and we're going over to find out."

Amyot will take Warren Saker and Harvey Charters of the Toronto Balm Beach Canoe Club, single blade tandem champion; Bill Williamson of Balm Beach, double blade singles champion; Gordon Potter, V. Dier, Stan Potter and Frank Willis of Gananoque, Ont., double blade four champions. Gordon Potter and Dier also hold the double blade tandem title.

The Canadian Canoe Association decided many months ago to send a team to the Olympics and voted $800 towards expenses. Its northern and western divisions, from which the paddlers were selected, were left with the job of collecting the balance. They haven't failed. The team is going.

Amyot, a great competitor, has won the senior singles in Canada six times since he started driving the small boats back in 1922. Of course, he was paddling before that but only for fun.

"When I was four years old they wouldn't let me in a canoe," he says, "but I paddled around in a row-boat." Harry Butler of the Ottawa Rideau Canoe Club took Amyot's hand in 1922 and made him a champion.
