

Dulles Says War Danger Has Receded Since Talks

WASHINGTON, (AP)—State Secretary Dulles said Tuesday "war danger has receded" as a result of the Big Four "summit" talks at Geneva.

Dulles' press conference statement amounted to saying in new words what President Eisenhower said Monday night—that a spark of world peace was ignited at the Big Four conference but much patience and sacrifice will be needed to keep the spark alive.

Dulles said the United States intends to find out at talks in Geneva beginning Monday whether Red China will accept a ceasefire in the Formosa area.

READY TO LISTEN

He added that the American representative at the Geneva meeting will be ready to listen to and discuss any matter which Red China raises directly involving her and the United States.

Dulles said he is convinced German unification is in the air and that eventually this cherished goal will be achieved.

He listed as the major results of the top level meeting:

1. Relations between the West and Russia have become less brittle.
2. Diplomats could begin negotiating problems without fear that war would suddenly break out.

TEST RUSSIANS' WORDS

3. A far-reaching demonstration of resourcefulness and initiative by the Western powers in dealing with the Soviets. He cited Eisenhower's proposal to exchange military blueprints with Russia. He said if the Russians have a genuine desire for peace positive results will flow from the proposal.
4. There is hope Russia will do something about the subversive activities of international communism. Soviet leaders made no promises but they realize something must be done if they want to improve relations with the West.

5. The West carried home to the Soviet leaders their view that East European satellite countries must have a measure of freedom, including opportunity to select their own governments.

P.O. Robbery Intrigue Bared To Rapt House

OTTAWA (CP)—Behind-the-scenes intrigue arising out of a Montreal post office robbery was bared to a rapt Commons Monday by Acting Postmaster-General Pickersgill as he denied a Quebec opposition member's charges that postal investigators shielded a post office robber.

Central figures in the cloak-and-dagger affair, as unfolded by the minister in a 30-minute account, are: Marcel Belair of Montreal, disbarred Montreal lawyer Lucien Gagnon who jumped bail while facing a charge of receiving stolen goods, post office investigators Fernand Villeneuve and Maurice Fortin of Montreal and Gerard Gagnon, truck transport operator of Quebec City who claimed no relation to the other Gagnon.

Mr. Pickersgill said the charges made in the House last Wednesday by J. Wilfrid Dufresne (PC—Quebec West)—that the investigators shielded Belair from the law after he turned over to them $28,000 worth of stamps stolen last year from Montreal's Notre-Dame-de-Grace post office—are incorrect.

PLANS NO PROBE

He said they are a mixture of alleged fact and innuendo and there will be no further investigation on the basis of evidence now before him.

He reported Gerard Gagnon had sought out Villeneuve last Tuesday.

In a sworn statement read by the minister, Villeneuve said Gerard Gagnon had asked him whether Lucien Gagnon could obtain bail if he showed up, but Villeneuve said he did not commit himself on this.

Villeneuve said Gagnon then told him about serious accusations to be made in the Commons which would include allegations that Belair had been seen often in a night club with Fortin and that the latter was operating a house of ill fame.

NOT NECESSARILY TRUE

Gagnon had said all the accusations against Villeneuve and Fortin might not be true but that "... it would of course be preferable not to have anything of the kind mentioned."

"Gerard Gagnon made no direct threat," Villeneuve said in his statement, "but he left me with a distinct impression that the attack to be made in the House of Commons was linked with the question of bail for Lucien Gagnon."

In his charges in the House, in which he named only Belair, Mr. Dufresne said the postal investigators were often seen drinking in Montreal bars, with Belair and that they should be investigated instead of being promoted.

WANTED SAFE WITNESS

Mr. Pickersgill said Belair had led Villeneuve to a recovery of the stolen stamps and at the same time had given information which led to the arrest of Lucien Gagnon.

But Gagnon skipped bail and it was decided Villeneuve should get Belair the Sept-11 job under an assumed name so he could be available as a material witness against Gagnon. The latter had succeeded in preventing Belair from giving testimony against him at the preliminary hearing.

Mr. Pickersgill said he has been assured everything was done not only with the knowledge and approval of Quebec provincial police and of Noel Dorion, senior crown prosecutor in Quebec, but also in some cases at the instigation of police. In view of this, he said, Mr. Dufresne's charges that a writ warrant further investigation of post office officials.

Opposition leader Drew, in questioning Mr. Pickersgill after the minister made his statement, described it as a "rather ingenious explanation of some remarkably irregular practices."

General Satisfaction At Results Of Big Four Meet

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer
GENEVA (CP)—British and European opinion reflects general satisfaction with the results of the Big Four conference.

And the man who conceived the idea of a meeting at the "summit" five years ago, Sir Winston Churchill, was reported "much gratified" by the news from Geneva.

Newspaper editorials welcome the four-power declaration as a promising start to a more hopeful phase in international relations. One French-language Swiss paper, The Journal de Geneve, says the mood of diplomacy has changed but the essential problems remain.

In London, The Sunday Times says one of the clear conclusions of the six-day, four-power negotiations at the Palais des Nations is that "the likelihood of a Third World War has diminished to vanishing point."

EISENHOWER DOMINATES

The Observer, another London paper, takes a generally hopeful line but in its main editorial regrets that the West apparently did not make known its essential political objectives.

Its point is that Russia brought on the cold war not by words but by its actions, and Allied leaders should make clear that while the West will not resort to force to redress the balance, it does not accept the subjugation of eastern Europe by Russia.

Mad Hatter

PARIS (AP)—A Frenchman has found a new way to serve up spaghetti and dried orange peel. He makes hats out of them. The spaghetti, cooked and curled on a tulle base, looks like heavy lace. And the orange peel, glued on like shingles, might be a rough straw.

Achille, who likes to be called the Mad Hatter of Paris, has got the new season's hat shows off to a scrawling start with the spaghetti bonnet. The orange peel number, besides smelling like a fruitcake, drips raisin-sized diamonds over one eye.

More serious Parisian hat houses are going in for everything and-ern, from Siamese topknot hats to Japanese pagodas and Chinese footstool. Vivid velvet numbers run the color range of a peacock's tail.

The Oriental influence apparently results from the popularity of a Chinese ballet company which recently visited Paris.
