P. E. I. FURNITURE WAREROOMS,

WE have pleasure in announcing the removal of our stock to our New Warerooms, opposite our present Factory.

And we desire to express our thanks to our Friends and Patrons for the very liberal patronage they have bestowed upon us for the past two years, and which is so rapidly INCREAS-ING as to induce us to spare no effort to supply them and the public generally with FURNITURE OF THE BEST QUALITY and Correct Designs, believing as in the past that the public will amply reward us for such efforts.

We are satisfied that OUR PRICES ARE RIGHT, as our Sales have been steadily increasing, and this season they have been UNPRECEDENTED—far exceeding our expectations.

USE DIAMOND POTASH.

New and Original Departure in Coal Cooking Stoves COMBINING DURABILITY, HEAT AND ECONOMY.

This Cut represents my Patent Fire King Cooking Stove, with the even, end and lining partially drawn out, as it appears while being cleaned, or when a new lining is being replaced.

THE above Stove I invented and patented in 1876, and at the present time HUN-DREDS ARE IN USE, giving perfect satisfaction. A large number have been in constant use for eight years, and the repairs have been very trifling, in many instances none have been required. This valuable experience should be sufficient evidence of their durability, which is accounted for in the following:—It has, instead of a Lined Fire Box, two heavy Curved Cylinders, which obviate the expense connected with all Square Cooking Stoves of being compelled to renew Linings and Grates, at least once or twice every year. The heat being radiated from the Cylinders to the floor, where most needed, overcomes a serious objection to all kinds of ordinary Coal Cooking Stoves. The Cylinders are situated directly under the cover holes, and a fire may be made in one or both, thus adapting it for use either in winter or summer, with equal satisfaction, besides effecting a great saving to fuel. I have also attached the PATENT TELESCOPIC OVEN to all my Elevated Oven Wood Stoves, such as the Waterloo, Niagara, Star, &c., causing the thousands using them to exclaim—My Stoves are worth TEN DOLLARS MORE than the same kind made by other foundries. The trade and retail purchasers will please bear in mind the fact that although a great advantage is claimed for my own Oven above all others, they cost no more, and being the sole manufacturer and patentee, no other foundry can supply. Enquire for Fawcett's Patent Telescope Oven, and if your dealer has none on hand send direct to the Sackville Stove Foundry.

I am adding several new and handsome Patterns this season, which, with my former large variety of One Hundred Different Patterns and Sizes of Cooking, Parlor, Office and Hall Stoves, also Farmers Boilers, Hollowware, Ploughs, Stove Pipes and Tluware, comprise the most complete assortment offered by any manufacturer in the Lower Provinces.
Terms and prices will be found as favorable as can be obtained elsewhere.

JULY 28, 1885.

Rev. Father Quinn.

We copy the following obituary notice from the Calais Times of July 23rd:—

"Rev. James Quinn, of Milltown, N. B., one of the oldest priests in the Maritime Provinces, died suddenly of heart disease last Saturday night. On Sunday morning the congregation gathered in the church and waited for him beyond the usual hour.
His failing to appear aroused alarm and inquiries were instituted. On entering his room he was found in bed, sleeping his last long sleep. Though 77 years of age he had been so active and looked so robust and healthy that his numerous friends thought he had still many years to spend with them.
Rev. James Quinn was born in Moonoon, County Kilkenny, Ireland, in 1808. He graduated from Waterford College, Ireland, in 1838, and then came to Rustico, P. E.
I., where he was ordained priest by the Right Rev. Dr. McDonald. For many years he labored in St. John, and the first convent built in that city stands to-day a testimonial of his indefatigable energy. From St. John he was removed to Carleton. Afterward he labored in St. Andrews and St. George, until he was appointed to the pastorate in Milltown, N.
B. The funeral ceremony was very solemn and impressive. Rev. Wm. Dollard, a nephew of Father Quinn, was Celebrant.
Rev. Father Walsh, also a nephew, was Deacon; Rev. T. Cassey, Sub Deacon; and Rev. Father Bradley, Master of Ceremonies.
Rev. Father O'Flaherty and Rev. O. M.
Conlon were present in the Sanctuary. An eloquent sermon was delivered by Rev. James Quinn as a Catholic missionary, a temperance worker and a minister of spiritual things. In 1863 he was appointed Vicar General of the Diocese of St. John, which high position he held for four years. He returned to Milltown again in 1867, where he faithfully labored up to last year, when on account of failing health he resigned the pastorate to the present incumbent, Rev. Father Bradley. Father Quinn was one of the earliest temperance workers in New Brunswick—at a time when to advocate total abstinence was almost to fly in the face of civilization —and during his priesthood administered the pledge to some eight thousand persons.
The funeral services were held in the church at Milltown, on Tuesday morning, at 10 o'clock. The church was crowded to excess, not only by his co-religionists, but also by representatives of other denominations, who came to pay their last tribute of respect to the aged prelate. For nearly half a century deceased labored zealously for the salvation of souls and the welfare of the church, ever faithful and vigilant, watching over his flock with a father's care."

The writer of the following became very well acquainted with Rev. Father Quinn during the time when he first labored in the pastorate at Milltown, N.B.
He was honored and respected by both Catholics and Protestants, as he was foremost in all good works. As a temperance worker he was noted, and for this particular advocacy he became endeared to a large part of the Protestant community. He was the Father Mc-Gillivray of that section and period.
The amount of good he accomplished in temperance matters cannot be estimated, and the future generations who will grow up under these teachings will owe much of their relief from the thralldom of intoxicants to Father Quinn.
One incident which came under the observation of the writer may be worth relating. It took place in a bookstore in Calais. The actors were Father Quinn and a Mr. Hogan, a Prince Edward Islander. This Mr. Hogan was a tailor and draper, who had established a nice quiet business at Calais. He had a wife and two or three small children; and was a quiet and respected citizen of very gentlemanly qualities. To the regret of the citizens he took to drink, and proceeded downward until his business was almost nil and he became nearly a physical wreck. He wandered into the bookstore mentioned that afternoon, in a half-dazed manner; with no particular object in view. Father Quinn came in (he was a gentleman of literary tastes) and as his sharp eye rested on Mr.
Hogan, he beckoned him to a farther corner. Only a few of the most emphatic words reached ear of the writer. The whole soul of Father Quinn seemed to be poured out towards the poor man. "His gestures, his aspect, his demeanor of entreaty and command, cannot be described." "You must stop at once" caught the writer's ear.
"I will, Father Quinn," was the reply.
"Then go home and remember!" The poor man shuffled off. His home was only a few hundred yards off. In a week his small place of business began to present a busy appearance. He soon enlarged his business, and from that time on he prospered, and his boys grew to manhood, and a few years ago the writer was in Calais and just across the street, not more than a hundred yards from the bookstore—the scene of the incident—was seen a large clothing establishment bearing the sign in conspicuous characters, "Hogan & Sons." This was the result of that meeting between the priest and parishioner, and the writer may here say that Mr. Hogan assured him that he had never taken strong drinks after.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Our Grit M. P.'s and the Fisheries

Sir,—The Patriot of late is teeming with abuse of Sir John, for his alleged "betrayal of the fishermen." Now, Sir, without venturing any opinion as to the propriety or impropriety of the present fishery arrangement, I wish to draw attention to the fact that the Grit members from the Island had not one word to say against it when the matter was discussed in Parliament. On the 13th of the present month the question was brought before Parliament, but no word of protest was heard from any of our Island Grit representatives. Mr.
Davies could make seventy-seven speeches on the Franchise Bill. He could talk for hours on the question raised by his Grit friends as to whether an Indian was a "person" or not. He could do his share of obstructing the business of the country—with the additional indemnity looming in the distance—by making no less than seven speeches in one night, but when the fishery discussion took place he was not found in his place, having left for home, with his $8,000 law fee, secured some days before. His clients and not his constituents were, as usual, uppermost in his mind, and above all there was the almighty dollar claiming his chief attention. And where were his followers at the time? "You know," some of his admirers say, "that he is a local Grit leader in the Commons," that is to say that he leads Yeo and McIntyre. Well, where were they? it may be reasonably asked. In the House, I suppose, but silent and indifferent, while our fishermen's rights, if the Grits are to be believed, were being "basely surrendered." They were always ready to help on the obstruction which has cost the taxpayers of our Dominion close on to a quarter of a million of dollars; they could vote for their additional $500 each, but what cared they for the fishermen of their native Province, so long as their pockets were well provided for. An opposition is supposed to watch carefully and jealously, the interests of their constituents. Here was a case in which Grits say fishermen have been betrayed. With $1,500 indemnity in full view, Grit members spent 37 days and nights in opposing one of the best measures ever submitted to Parliament—the Franchise Bill. The opposition to it was well-planned and carried out, some of the Grit members doing the sleeping while others did the speaking; and thus precious time was wasted, and all for what? The extra pay and the extra cost of the session generally, is the reply.

It is no use for Grit members to try now to create a feeling against Sir John, on account of the present temporary fishery agreement with the United States Government. They had an opportunity in Parliament of protesting, if they considered that a wrong was being done. But they opened not their mouths when the matter was brought forward. There they sat (I mean Mr. Davies' two followers), as silently and as humbly submissive as when the money was voted to pay them for the time which they had squandered during the Session, at the public expense. And still the Patriot, that political purist, now charges others with negligence and teacherly. Our Grit M. P.'s managed successfully enough when after their extra pay, but the Maritime fishermen's rights might be sacrificed to suit the interests of a few water fishermen of Ontario, and all is right in their estimation, so long as a point can be made against the present Government, and they can pocket the money as extra seasonal pay.

CITIZEN.
July 27, 1885.

Ministering to a Mind Diseased.

A shrewd German, a century ago, recommended to every man overcome with sorrow, to force himself each day to study for a fixed period a language or art, whatever was most pleasing to him. The work for the brain on a totally different side from its grief is stimulating, strengthening.
A political exile, also a German, being sentenced to a long solitary imprisonment, kept madnes at bay by decorating the walls of his cell and by making long lists and sketches of people and places he had known. He recommends a man in grief to pay instant attention to the little pursuits or occupations which usually give him pleasure, and to obstinately devote himself to them until his brain has had time to heal. "If we are denied great joys let us earnestly seek to fill their places by small ones," he advises.
The epicure, after the first crushing blow of agony, unconsciously relishes a discussion of his next meal; an orderly woman bending over the coffin of her child has a feeble comfort in its neat, pure garments.
People of methodical habits should be given occupation which will call forth their genius for organization and system. In short, we should remember that the brain is a material organ as well as the stomach, and, when in danger of disease from the excessive strain upon it of one emotion, a counter irritation from other similar ones is a wholesome and usually successful treatment.
The antidote for mania-a-potie is plain water.
Owing to the failure of Gladstone's voice his throat has been examined by Andrew Clark and Felix Seaman, throat specialists, who pronounce the affection obstinate catarrh of the larynx, and enjoin entire rest. The report alarms the Liberals, as Mr. Gladstone will be unable to take part in the election campaign. Reassuring statements are circulating, however, to the effect that improvement is certain and will perhaps be rapid.
