Sympathy Is Expressed In Commons For Indians

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP) — Sympathy for Canada's native Indians, some living on monthly food rations worth $10.45, was expressed in the Commons Thursday.

Frank Howard (CCF-Skeena) led an indignant attack on the complacent approach adopted by non-Indian Canadians toward the country's first inhabitants.

Citizenship Minister Fairclough assured Mr. Howard she is "just as gravely concerned as he is" about the Indian problem. It must be remembered that the $18 monthly allowance was for food only, and most Indians were able to supplement their diet by fishing and hunting.

Mrs. Fairclough explained that the food rations, priced at Indian reservations and totalling about $10.45 a month, are gradually being replaced by cash sums of $18 a month for adults.

NIGGARDLY SUM
Mr. Howard said this is "niggardly" and wouldn't be enough if it were "tripled or quadrupled."

He recommended establishment of a royal commission on Indian affairs to make a broad study of conditions and investigate policies of the Indian affairs branch, which comes under the citizenship department.

In other action, the Commons gave final approval to construction of a $1,050,000 bridge spanning the Lubec Channel, linking New Brunswick's Campobello Island and the state of Maine, and heard announcements on increased federal aid to universities and plans for accelerating Canadian shipments of Colombo Plan goods to hard-pressed India.

TOLL-FREE BRIDGE
Works Minister Green said cost of the bridge will be split 30-50 between Maine and New Brunswick, with the federal government contributing two-thirds of the province's share for construction of the bridge and approaches. William Benidickson (L-Kenora-Rainy River), noting that the bridge is to be toll-free, said that everywhere else in Canada international bridges are built by private companies and tolls are charged.

Mr. Benidickson added that bridges were built at St. Croix, St. Leonard, St. Stephen and Edmundston, all in New Brunswick. All were constructed with federal aid provided through votes or bills.

"Is there any reason why all the precedents happen to be in the province of New Brunswick?" Mr. Green said there are few provinces in Canada which have international bridges.

"What about Ontario with its hundreds of miles of international boundary?" asked Mr. Benidickson.

"Poor old Ontario has a hard time, I admit, but we are spending quite a lot of money in Ontario, too," replied Mr. Green.

Sunday School Convention Held For S'Side-Kensington

"Worship" and "Teaching in the Church School" were discussion topics at the Annual Sunday School Teachers Convention of the Summerside-Kensington District of the M. R. E. C. held at Central Lot 16, on August 19th.

Opening worship was conducted by Mr. Eric Grant, student minister of Princetown United Church, Malpeque. He chose "Worship" as his theme, and set a high standard for the convention to follow throughout the program.

Delegates were welcomed by the president, Mr. Robert Carruthers, and a brief discussion of the subject of Leadership Training was held. The financial report, presented by the treasurer Mrs. Louis Cairns, showed that $106.00 had been sent to the M. R. E. C. towards the work of Christian Education in 1957 - this sum was $32.00 less than the allocation for the district, but was an increase over the amount sent previously. Appreciation was expressed to all Sunday Schools for their co-operation.

Mr. R. A. Profit, discussion leader, introduced the topics for the day, and called upon Mr. Eric Grant to speak on the first subject, "Worship." Mr. Grant stated that worship is the chief means of inspiring and motivating Christian conduct. Train children in the practice of worship and make prayer and praise a natural, meaningful experience. The essential subject of Christian worship is God and God alone.

FINDINGS
Delegates were divided into discussion groups and after the allotted time, returned to report their findings on such topics as: "The order of the Worship Service," "Prayer," "Scripture," and "Music in Worship."

At five o'clock a welcome voice was heard announcing that tea was ready, and delegates did full justice to the refreshments passed around by Lot 16 teachers.

The convention reconvened at 7.30 and delegates were shown colored slides portraying a teenage group's version of a few familiar Bible stories. Evening Worship had as its theme "Teaching," and was conducted by Travellers' Rest Teachers, Mrs. John Marchbank, Mrs. D. Schurman and Mrs. D. Walker. Rev. L. M. Murray taught those present a couple of new hymns suitable for use in Sunday School, then introduced the evening discussion topic.

"Teaching," he said, "is more than gathering a bunch of children and talking to them. It is teaching by influence, and after discussing their problems reported on the following topics: 'How can we teach our children to know and love God?' 'How can we teach them to serve God and grow more Christ-like?' 'How can we help a child to understand himself and others?' 'How can we help a child understand his world?' Interest ran high and many helpful suggestions were brought in.

In summarizing the day's program of discussion and findings, Mr. Profit, stated worship must be well-planned and reverently conducted in a quiet atmosphere; that the call to Worship, preceded by quiet music should lead the thoughts of the worshippers to God. Scripture should be read slowly and with feeling in order that what is read may be visualized. Prayer would be greatly enriched by the personal participation of all. Prayer is communion with God and we should wait, and listen for God to speak to us.

ONE SCALE
In all our work of Sunday School and teaching, one thing stands out - it is no good to have one scale of values which fits in with the modern world, and another scale for Sundays. A Sunday School teacher must come before his or her class with a clear conscience. We cannot be one thing one time and another thing another time - we must be on one side or the other. We must experience God, in order to be able to impart knowledge of Him to others. The most important thing in the world is the teaching of the young. The ideal situation is for parents to take their children to Sunday School, and to stay and take part in the service.

Special music was rendered by Lot 16 C. G. I. T. Solos were sung by Miss Edith Betton, and Miss Joan McFadden, who were joined by the group in the choruses.

Courtesies Committee, composed of Mrs. Wallace Reeves, Mrs. John Marchbank and Mrs. E. Chamption, tendered the following resolutions:

RESOLUTIONS
We wish to express the appreciation of the convention to the leader, Mr. R. A. Profit, and his assistants Rev. L. M. Murray and Mr. Eric Grant; to the Minister and session of this church for the use of the building; to Lot 16 C. G. I. T. for special music of the evening; to the Ladies for providing tea; to officers and teachers who planned and worked to make this convention a success; We trust our meeting together to-day will inspire us to greater endeavor as we hold forth the Word of Life throughout the ensuing year.

OFFICERS
The Nominating Committee, composed of Mr. Harry Brown, Mrs. John Johnston, Mr. Fred Doughart, Presented the new list of officers, which was accepted as follows: President: Mr. Robert Carruthers; Secretary: Mrs. R. Louis Cairns. Executive Committee: Free-town, R. A. Profit; Kensington, Mr. Verdin Paynter; Lot 16, Mrs. William Millar; Long River, Mrs. Andrew Johnston; Malpeque, Mrs. Ernest Bryanton; Margate, Mrs. Reg. Dennis; New London, Mrs. Louis McLeod; Travellers' Rest, Mrs. John Marchbank; North Bedeque, Mrs. Eric McMurdo; Summerfield, Mrs. Fernon Mayne; Summerside Baptist, Mrs. W.G. Ellis; Summerside Christian, Mrs. James Essery; Summerside Trinity United, Mr. John Scott.

Following a closing prayer by Rev. L. M. Murray the delegates disbursed to their homes - all feeling it had been worth while, and that it was good to have been there.

THIS OLD TREE
Above the rubble where the smithy stood, Woodpeckers desecrate the honoured wood; The spreading chestnut tree denies its age, That time demands an unrelenting wage. It warms each day, to pulse beats of the past, And to the role in which its lot was cast; It hears again the anvil's tinkled note, The sighing of the bellows' lusty throat, And sees the children, home from school, before The wonderment inside the open door.

The smithy and the forge, though but debris, Live on beneath the bark of this old tree. Succeeding bud, succeeding twig has awoken, The sun awakes and set upon the green. Beneath which lies the smith, with the man of might Who, with content, faced to the calm of night. The little Church, forgotten, weathered, still, Molders alone upon the gentle hill. An aging figure nears the storied stand, To touch in fondness, with a reverent hand, The well beloved bark; to mark once more Where youth had stood before an open door; To feel the breath of each loved memory Engrained within the heart of this old tree.
