Larkin And Finnan Keep Prince Co. Jail In Turmoil

SUMMERSIDE BUERAU OF THE GUARDIAN
After one jail break more than a week ago, and an attempted jail break last Friday night, William Larkin and Willard Finnan provided still another way to keep Prince County Jail in turmoil when they set fire to some mattress material and tossed it out into the corridor in front of their cells Sunday afternoon.

The jail and supervised the two prisoners while all other fire hazards were removed from their cells. Yesterday there was nothing in their cells. The cells were without windows, the rear and both side walls were concrete and sheets of steel with just enough room to pass food through covered each cell door. It is thought that Larkin and Finnan will be transferred to Charlottetown today to face charges of breaking, entering, and theft, which occurred in Queens County during their previous jail break several days ago.

Turkey, Poland Fight For UN Council Seat

OTTAWA (CP)—The dog days of summer have lasted well into the fall in the capital.

18-nation economic council, having the support of both the U.S. and Britain in this contest. Kuznetsov's move to delay the ballot was apparently prompted by his wish to avoid arguments that Poland should not be named to two UN councils at almost the same time.

LITTLE EXCITEMENT

There were two byelections last week but no turnover of seats—the Progressive Conservatives retained Hastings—Frontenac and the Liberals Russell—and hardly anybody outside the ridings concerned got excited.

The Young Liberals tried to warm up the political atmosphere last month at their convention here and the Young Conservatives will try to do the same at their Ottawa convention Nov. 30 and Dec. 1.

There will be a general meeting of the Conservative party here Dec. 1 and 2 and of the national advisory council of the Liberal Federation Dec. 7 and 8. CCF Commons Leader Hazen-Argue is on a speaking tour and the next meeting of the CCF council will be held about mid-January just before Parliament opens.

None of these events seems to be creating any great stir and it appears now that a new parliamentary session will be required to heat up the political scene.

Polish diplomats, backed by the United States and Britain, predicted they could still turn the tide and there was furious activity behind the scenes over the issue which involves considerable great-power prestige.

The battle is for Japan's place on the 11-country council. Japan's term, along with those of Canada and Panama, comes to an automatic close at the end of this year after two years of service.

Ceylon was elected easily as Commonwealth representative to succeed Canada and Ecuador had no trouble winning Panama's place as Latin American representative.

NOT TWO-THIRDS
Although Poland led Turkey in each of the 13 ballots held Monday, it was never able to muster the required two-thirds majority in the secret voting in the 82-member general assembly.

On the 13th ballot Poland received 46 votes and Turkey 34, the Communist country falling eight short of the required 54. Israel was absent because of the Yom Kippur holiday and one other delegation abstained. In an earlier ballot Poland came within six votes of victory.

At the opening of the afternoon session, Argentina's Dr. Mario Amadeo said voting had "reached an impasse." He proposed that, following one additional ballot, the assembly proceed to the next item on its agenda—election of members to the economic and social council.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily Kuznetsov was defeated in a proposal that both elections—the security council and the economic council—be postponed.

Poland then was elected to fill one of the six vacancies on the MADRAS, India, AP—Hot political feuding has broken out in Ceylon two weeks after the assassination of Prime Minister Solomon Bandaranaike.

Abruptly ending the brief truce that followed the assassination, opposition members of parliament have decided to try to oust Prime Minister Wijayananda Bandaranaike.

A motion of no confidence, approved by members of all opposition parties, will be offered as soon as parliament assembles Oct. 27.

Many believe Dahanayake will survive the motion. But it appears that the parliamentary session may be among the most bitter in the history of the island, noted for its angry politics.

The decision to offer a no-confidence motion is not generally known in Ceylon because of the press censorship. Censorship is one of the opposition complaints.

DEMANDS DEBATE
The opposition demands a debate on what it says are changes Dahanayake has made in government policies. It also wants the immediate lifting of the state of emergency proclaimed after the assassination.

On taking office, Dahanayake announced he would continue Bandaranaike's policies—neutralist in foreign affairs and indulgent to labor demands on the domestic scene.

TO ACT QUICKLY
"I will realize the importance of the situation and will move with all possible haste," he said. He declined to say where the hearings would open but other sources predicted the first sitting will be in Cape Breton.

Two locals of District 26 of the United Mine Workers (Ind.) held meetings on the problems this weekend. One called for a conference of Cape Breton locals "in order to obtain the widest possible opinion from the miners regarding the crisis."

Dog Days Last Until Autumn

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—The dog days of summer have lasted well into the fall in the capital.

Since the last session of Parliament ended July 18, there have been no major political developments here to take the public's attention away from the heat of August or the fall return of favorite television programs.

There is a preoccupation here with tight money but this subject, generally speaking, has not apparently impinged on the public consciousness to any great extent though it has probably infuriated the person trying unsuccessfully to get a bank loan.

The political party leaders have been making speeches here and there across the country but in this period mid-way between

40 BUSHELS APPLES AT 40 YEARS

A 40-year-old apple tree which this year produced 40 bushels of top quality McIntosh apples is the pride of Percy Smallwood who has operated a fruit farm between North River Road and the shore line for the past 17 years. The ancient tree has a spread of 36 feet and over the weekend five pickers were employed stripping the fruit for packaging. Mr. Smallwood is proud of this particular tree as he never before had a tree so old bear so much fruit. In his orchard which he started in 1913 there are 15 acres, most of it fruit trees, mainly apples and plums. Mr. Smallwood is proud of the Island-type apple which he believes is one of the best on the market. In addition to the MacIntosh he also grows Cortlands, Red Delicious, and the Hume which he describes as a branch of the MacIntosh family.

2 New Council Members Inducted At Alberton

ALBERTON BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN
Alberton Town Council was brought up to full strength last night when two new members were sworn in by Mayor Currie just before the regular meeting of the council. They are Douglas Rix, who assumes the committee formerly held by Don Campbell, and Justin McAllduff who replaces Clayton Travers.

Other councillors, all of whom were present are, Albert Clarke, Roy Leard, Gerald Rooney and Richard Jeffery Jr. Mayor Currie welcomed the new members and hoped they would enjoy their work on the council.

Bills amounting to $421.04 were approved and ordered paid. A bill amounting to $72, for transporting prisoners to Summerside was discussed and it was decided that all court cases would be handled by the town magistrate in future. The amount included one trip to Charlottetown.

Regarding a request for an assistant for the retail vendor on Saturdays and the day before public holidays the council was advised by the P.E.I. Temperance

Industrial Cape Breton Is Tinged With Gloom

SYDNEY (CP)—Industrial Cape Breton—the tough-luck coal country with more than a century of economic ups and downs behind it—was tinged with gloom on Thanksgiving Day as the mining men faced perhaps their greatest crisis.

About 3,000 of the island's 7,000 coal miners held fears they were spending their last Thanksgiving Day as coalminers. By this time next year, some of the mines—producing a product with a dwindling sales appeal—may not be operating.

Word of the coal industry's latest crisis reached the coalfields Friday, just before the miners knocked off for the holiday weekend.

From an emergency meeting in Halifax came news that Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, major coal operator in Nova Scotia, plans to close three Cape Breton mines unless new markets can be found.

SOME PROMISES
The coal miners were promised by Premier Stanfield, whose government has been beset by crisis after crisis in the sick coal industry since taking power in 1956, that mine closures would come only as a last result. In the meantime, the federal government would be asked for more assistance.

Delegates to the meeting from Cape Breton coal towns asked that any closures be withheld until after a one-man royal commission into the coal problems is completed.

Mr. Justice Ivan C. Rand, appointed by Prime Minister Diefenbaker last week to inquire into the problems, said Monday every effort will be made for an early start on the investigation.

Mr. Justice Rand told the Cape Breton Post in a telephone interview from his home in London, Ont., he would require several weeks of preliminary studies before hearings begin.

TO ACT QUICKLY
"I will realize the importance of the situation and will move with all possible haste," he said. He declined to say where the hearings would open but other sources predicted the first sitting will be in Cape Breton.

Two locals of District 26 of the United Mine Workers (Ind.) held meetings on the problems this weekend. One called for a conference of Cape Breton locals "in order to obtain the widest possible opinion from the miners regarding the crisis."
