THOUGHTS FOR OUR TIME

BY HIS EMINENCE CARDINAL MCGUIGAN

TWO ROADS CAN LEAD TO SPIRITUAL SUCCESS BY CARDINAL MCGUIGAN

The history of the world holds up for our contemplation the stories of many some seem to have been destined to renown because of ancestry, inheritance or birth, many, too, have had to lift themselves by dint of untiring effort and prudent strategy to the heights of fame. For both these classes success is seen to have depended on the good use of opportunity.

The history of salvation tells a similar tale. The list of recognized saints—which is surely only a small proportion of the blessed—is a fair indication of the varied types of people who have won the crown of glory. Of these "stucces" in the spiritual order, people who have been successful in the business of good living, there would appear again to be two classes.

First come those who seemed called from the very beginning of their lives, like St. John the Baptist, then there are the wanderers, those who received the call of Christ somewhat late in life. Of these latter the great St. Augustine is an outstanding example.

All Christians, however, are not

DEATH NOTICE

MRS. JOSEPH W. BURNS

News of the recent death of Mrs. Joseph W. Burns Pinehurst, Mass., (formerly Addie B. Williams of the Graham's Road, N. London, was received by her nephew Mr. James C. Williams of Charlottetown.

Mrs. Burns was a twin, her sister died in 1955, they were as acquired the facility or virtue. Lastly he will find great help in his pursuit of holiness if he studies and imitates vast army of men and women—the saints of God—who have succeeded in the business of good living.

We Christians have the consolation of having been "called to be saints" (1 Corinthians, 1, 2). We may have received the invitation from infancy, or it may have come later in life. With due knowledge, courageous action and God's help we will be one day successful in this spiritual order and dwell as saints in heaven for all eternity.
