Nervous

People don't just help they so much need, in Hood's Sarsaparilla. It furnishes the desired strength by purifying, vitalizing and enriching the blood, and thus builds up the nerves, tones the stomach and regulates the whole system. Read this:
"I want to praise Hood's Sarsaparilla. My health ran down, and I had the grip. After that, my heart and nervous system were badly affected, so that I could not do my own work. Our physician gave me some help, but it did not cure. I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. Soon I could do all my own housework. I have taken Hood's Pills with Hood's Sarsaparilla, and they have done me much good. I will not be without them. I have taken 13 bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and through the blessing of God, it has cured me. I worked as hard as ever the past summer, and I am thankful to say I am well. Hood's Pills when taken with Hood's Sarsaparilla help very much."

Cured

Mrs. M. M. Muzzey, Freehold, Penn.
This and many other cures prove that

A CLEVER ANSWER.

Numerous Cases Where One Has Secured Promotion.
A long list might be given of men who have owed their advancement in life to a clever answer given at the right moment. An account of how two of them managed it may be appropriately given just now as London Modern Society. One of Napoleon's veterans, who survived his master many years, was wont to recount with great gloire how he had once picked up the Emperor's cocked hat as a review, when the latter, without noticing that he was a private, said carelessly, "Thank you, my child." "I am a sergeant, sire," instantly inquired the quick-witted soldier. Napoleon, perceiving his mistake, answered, with a smile, "In my quarters, for I see you know how to be prompt." The newly-made officer received his commission next morning.

A somewhat similar anecdote is related of Marshal Suvoroff, who, when receiving a despatch from the hands of a Russian sergeant who had greatly distinguished himself on the Danube, attempted to confuse the messenger by a series of whimsical questions, but found him fully equal to the occasion. "How many fish are there in the sea?" asked Suvoroff. "All that are not caught yet," was the answer. "How far is it to the moon?" "Two of your Excellency's forced marches." "What would you do if you saw your men giving way in battle?" "I would tell them that there was plenty of whisky behind the enemy's line." Baffled at all points, the Marshal ended with, "What is the difference between your colonel and myself?" "My colonel cannot miss a horse, but your Excellency has only to say the word." "I say it now," answered Suvoroff, and a right good officer you will be.

What Worried Him.

Mr. Childs was leaving the Ledger office one night very late when he heard an alarm of fire and an old man came running down the stairs. Mr. Childs asked him his business. "I'm going to report that fire," said the old man. "How long have you been a reporter on this paper?" asked Mr. Childs. "I have been one for twenty years," said the old man. "Well," said Mr. Childs, "you go back to the city editor and tell him I say send somebody to report on the fire." The old man obeyed. He was told afterwards that he had no report for that day again. Mr. Childs had pensioned him. A year or so after that the man who told him the story happened to come to Mr. Childs. Mr. Childs asked him his business. "I'm going to report that fire," said the old man. "How long have you been a reporter on this paper?" asked Mr. Childs. "I have been one for twenty years," said the old man. "Well," said Mr. Childs, "you go back to the city editor and tell him I say send somebody to report on the fire." The old man obeyed. He was told afterwards that he had no report for that day again. Mr. Childs had pensioned him.

The First of these Monthly Competitions will commence January 1st, 1897, and will be continued each month during 1897.

ELEPHANTS IN INDIA.

No One Allowed to Shoot Them Without Special Permission.
Nobody may shoot an elephant, says the London Telegraph, on the Anamulic or Tipperah Hills, or anywhere else throughout India and Ceylon, without special permission, unless it be a "rogue" or plainly dangerous and destructive. The capture of the wild elephant and his careful training are things carried out under an admirable and scientific system, which gives to the administration in all its branches, and to the native courts, a superb staff of massive and faithful servants, the commissariat and artillery elephants.

THE QUEEN OF RUSSIA.

The Queen France got From the Domain of the East.
A more creditable person than Macaulay's typical school boy would probably play ignorance, or deny it, if he were told that there had ever been a Russian Queen of France. The crowd of discovering her belongs to the Vicomte de Caix de Saint Aymour who recently contributed to the Debats an article summarizing the main facts in anticipation of a more elaborate work he is about to bring out on the life of this early Anna of Russia. Henry II. lost his first wife, Mathilde, daughter of the Emperor Henry II. of Germany, in 1044, and as he had no son by her, it became necessary for him to marry again, with a view to assuring the succession. This was a matter of great difficulty, as the Church had taken a pronounced stand against marriage with the prohibited degree, which by sacerdotal arrogances had been expanded to as far as nomenclature as the seventh degree, says the London Graphic.

Henry had, therefore, to look for a field, and when rumor brought him word of the beauty and other qualities of a Russian girl, he determined to marry her, excluding a dowry of gold ingots, of the Russian Princess Anne, daughter of Yaroslav, Grand Duke of Kiev, he straightway sent an embassy to her, and a Russian Queen of France was born. She was married in the Cathedral of Rheims, and thus became the first and only Russian Queen of France. In 1049, she bore her husband three sons before his death, in 1060. Her eldest son, Philip, was the next sovereign of the House of Capet, and his daughter, the Princess, the Orleans family, representing the Bourbon dynasty, can trace their descent.

After the death of Henry II. to whom she had been a loyal consort, the romance of Anne's life may be said to have commenced. She retired during her early widowhood to the Castle of Senlis, where she passed much of her time in hunting. Still in the prime of life—only thirty-six—and of a renowned beauty, she was sought by many admirers, but among them the most favored was the powerful noble Raoul, the great Count of Crepy and Valois, who recognized no authority as superior to his own, and who feared neither the arms of the King, nor the censures of the Church. Unfortunately, he had a wife living named Alienor. This little obstacle did not hinder so powerful and resolute a Prince. Having satisfied himself that Anne reciprocated his affection, he carried her off from Senlis by his capital of Crepy-en-Valois. In this respect he was not without success, as the King, who was then in the prime of life, and who had a wife living named Alienor.
