

James Cullen. Such being the case, Mr. Cooper's mother, the widow of the deceased Mr. Cullen, would have been entitled to a life interest, to the extent of one third of all the property of which her husband died possessed.

But the facts of the case are not yet fully detailed. We assert that the late Mr. William Cullen died intestate, leaving one son, still living, James Cullen, his heir-at-law.

We think our readers will agree with us, that the more it is considered the more the vaunted filial love, &c., towards his "aged and honored mother," becomes fine by degrees and beautifully less.

Mr. Cooper is very greatly incensed at our having taken, as he says, "liberties with his private affairs." We made no allusion to Mr. C. or his "affairs," public or private, until he first displayed his stupidity and malevolence in opening his columns to the vilest attacks upon the private character of some of his political adversaries.

Who would not smile if such a man there be? Who would not weep if he were J. B. C.?

MR. DOUSE AND THE SELKIRK ESTATE.

The Monitor of the 8th instant contains a letter over the signature of "William Douse," on the subject of the purchase by the Government of the Estate of Lord Selkirk, for which that gentleman is agent.

what does he mean by "cash with no reservations?" We will tell our readers. He means that the Government are to pay him the full price per acre, according to his statement of the quantity, without any reservations on account of deficiencies in the quantity of land, of any partial or total payments of purchase monies for any portions of the estate, or of arrears of rent, or for stampage, &c.

The truth is, that Mr. Douse is unwilling to part with property which has been the nursing mother of his fortunes, and of which he is directly interested in retaining the control, and keeping the accounts from the investigation of others, and from which timber can be easily and rather cheaply obtained for building fleets.

One proof of the exhausted state of the Treasury, adduced by this worthy, is so beautifully characteristic of the feelings he entertains towards the Government, and the high degree of ratiocination by which he arrives at conclusions, that we lay it before our readers as a specimen of logic à la Douse.

However, the Vicar of Bray is recorded as having declared his intention of living and dying in that situation, and any attempt to deprive Mr. Douse of his lordship's shoes must be opposed by all and every means, justifiable or not.

"Whoever shall these shoes displace, Must meet Bombastes face to face."

FEMALE EDUCATION.

The Convent of the Sisters of the Congregation of Notre Dame has just been opened in this City, for the purpose of imparting a finished education to those young ladies whose parents and guardians may think proper to avail themselves of the advantages of such an institution.

Our attention has been called, by correspondents and others, to an article which appeared in the last No. of the Protector, reflecting in grossly offensive language on the establishment of a Convent in this place.
