

To Return to Far East

Reverend Cornelius Pineau, S.J., who has been enjoying Canadian climate for some months since his return from China, received a cable from his Superior recently, telling him to leave May 1, from San Francisco, for his new mission field in the Philippines.

Strange But True

By F. H. MacArthur

A very singular incident occurred at the funeral of a French nobleman. At the moment the procession appeared on the entrance steps of Blenheim palace a white dove flew down from one of the towers of the palace onto the lawn in front of the coffin.

Here are some remarkable feats of memory. The Iliad, with its 15,000 lines was passed down through a number of generations, before it was even written. Yet that is a mere nothing compared with the transmission of the vedas.

many thousands of words in their heads. They learn it as their ancestors learnt it thousands of years ago, from the lips of teachers, so that the vedic succession should never be broken.

Going back to my own school days I can recall how we were taught to fix in our memories, historical names, dates, and events — English kings, American presidents, and so on.

We owe more to poor children than we think. Columbus was a poor boy, often went to work hungry. Luther sang ballads in the streets, to get the money for an education.

Of course you've heard about the superstition of the "First Foot." The first to come into the house in the New Year must be a dark-skinned man, or ill luck awaits the family.

Thirteen out of every 100 rooftops in London, England have aerials but no TV sets in the homes.

The keeping up with the Jones or climbing the social prestige ladder is quite a laughing matter.

Persons who think its a crime to serve our soldier boys beer in countries where the water is unfit to drink will be glad to hear that scientifically distilled water can now be purchased for 10 cents a can.

The beautiful stained glass window in the memorial tower of the Calvary Baptist Church in Toronto is entirely made up of fragments of glass from bombed cathedrals in Europe.

The Bombay state government taboos all liquor parties by British and American consulates, when Indians are present.

The Smiths of Cornwall own a very intelligent dog that goes by the name of Sparkie.

Mrs. Smith had been missing some of her baby chicks each night from the barn where they were sheltered and gave Sparkie the job of night watchman.

"You're a bad, naughty dog," she scolded. "Why did you not stay on duty last night?"

"Sparkie knew he was in wrong with his mistress and for the greater part of the day went about, his tail drooping between his legs.

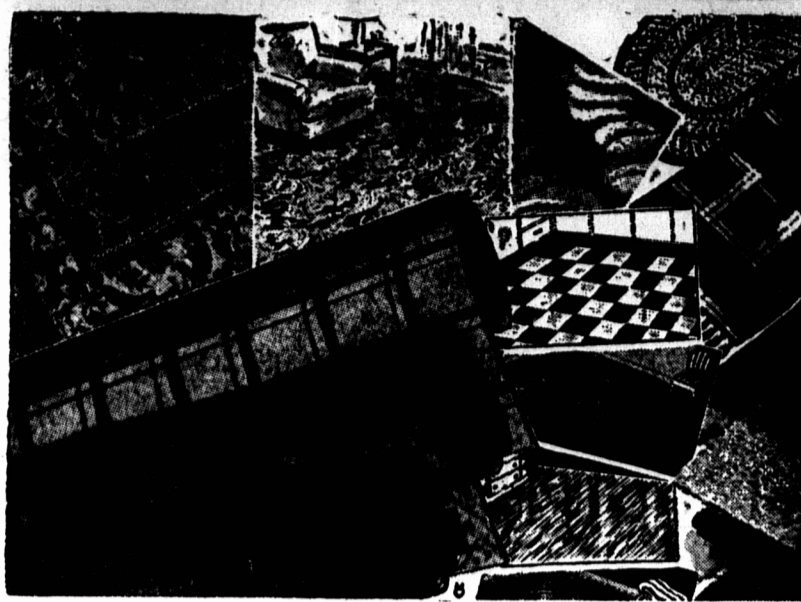

The next night he was told to stand again, and try and catch the chicken thief.

When the Smiths awoke next morning they were met at the kitchen door by a much elated dog.

Inquiry disclosed the fact that a large cat lay in the yard with its back broken and a dead chicken dangling from its mouth.

The four-footed penitent had caught the thief and killed it as a peace offering to his mistress. Strange but true.
