elsewhere to insure a future for themselves. This is not the case any longer, he said. The present government feels, as do the residents of the Maritimes, that the future is bright. We have the resources, the Minister said, as great as in other parts of Canada, and we also have the human resources comparable to any other area in this country.

Mr. MacLean stated that the Diefenbaker Government has four ministers from the Atlantic Provinces and "I am honored to be part of that representation - honored and humbled to be the first native Islander in the cabinet representing a constituency on P.E.I. in 50 years."

Mr. MacLean stressed that the new government has set a course to do something for the Maritimes, a course that will "lift our sights and heighten our prospects" and will finally result in the fact that we will not have to look beyond our own borders to carve out the

Makes Strong

(Continued from page 1) I do know some of the problems facing the farmers of Prince Edward Island. You can see that the difficulties are infinitely greater. In fairness I should mention that Newfoundland has not a large farming area.

"In Prince Edward Island we have inaugurated a policy of assistance to organizations especially for processing and freezing our farm products. The Province assumed the full responsibility for this program. We endeavoured to get assistance from the Federal Government, but were unsuccessful. To process our products became a vital necessity to the success of agriculture. We can grow the crops as well, if not better, than many other parts of our great country.

Another Holdup

The third machine was successful in getting through to Rustico but on its way back it could not get around the two stalled machines as well as a fourth which had come to the aid but had suffered a broken transmission.

HE-MAN JOB

Snow fighting on the Island is a he-man job. Each of the wing plows carry two men and when around the clock mission is to undertake the off shift man has to snatch a few quick winks in the cab of the plow while his mate carries on.

The Department of Highways has a fairly formidable array of equipment. This includes 12 truck plows, one snowblower (exclusive), three converted snowblowers, 12 track laying tractor plows which are used as "dozers" in the summer time; eight rubber tired tractors with plows; the loader and plow; one grade-aid with plow and 30 motor graders.

NEED HELP TOO

"This is one example of what we are doing for ourselves. The future is encouraging, but we feel that the Federal Government should assume some of the responsibility. They are doing it for wheat in the West, why not for other products in the east? This is a great country. Canada has prospered. In order to keep Canada prosperous no part thereof must lag behind.

N. S. Mother Loses Life Trying To Save Children And Friend

BEAR RIVER, N.S. (CP)—A 25-year-old mother gave her life Thursday trying to save her two children and another woman from their burning home. All four died.

Mrs. Arnold Banks refused to jump through an upstairs window after waking 14-year-old Robert Forrester. He jumped safely and aroused neighbors.

Mrs. Banks, her children Marilyn, 3, and Barbara, 1, and Robert's mother, Mrs. Dorothy Forrester, 46, perished in the flames. "Mrs. Banks woke me up," Robert said, "I tried to get her out the window with me but she wouldn't come. She turned and went back. I never saw her again."

The boy ran next door to Morris Dunn's house and woke him. Mr. Dunn said when he got to the Banks home the fire was so bad he could not enter.

Robert had a cut on his head and burns on his hands but his condition is not considered serious.

The fire started near or in the kitchen on the first floor about 5 a.m. A wind and rain storm was beating down at the time. The 1 1/2 - storey wooden home burned to the ground.

The high wind threatened nearby buildings of the Digby County Exhibition but firemen confined the blaze to the house. FINDS FAMILY GONE

Mr. Banks returned from work to find his family and home gone. He is a night fireman at Cornwall naval base about four miles away.

He said he left home about 11:30 p.m. There was a small fire in the kitchen stove then everything seemed in order.

His wife and their two children were sleeping on the ground floor, Mrs. Forrester and her son on the second floor.

Firemen who found the bodies said Mrs. Banks apparently was overcome before she was able to go downstairs again after waking Robert.

TEST 'SIDE PUMP

Pumping about 500 gallons of water per minute, a capacity test is seen being conducted yesterday on a Summerside Water Department well at the corner of Harvard and East Streets.

This well, originally drilled in 1907, was recently discovered to be limited in its production because of an improper pump connection, and further investigation by the town officials resulted in a reboring of the well from 6 to 10 inches diameter, a decision which resulted from tests conducted last summer when it was found that this well has a water capacity much greater than the pump could deliver.
