reoccupying on his farm near Pretoria, South Africa, after a long illness, sent a cable to Prime Minister St. Laurent, expressing sympathy at the death of his "dear friend."

"I learn with deep regret of the death of Mackenzie King," said the cable from the veteran political leader and former Prime Minister of South Africa.

"He was indeed a Canadian of world significance whose many and great services to his own Dominion and to the Commonwealth and to the world will be increasingly appreciated as we gain perspective in the history of our time."

"But those who knew him most intimately will above all mourn, as I do, the passing of a dear friend and very valiant comrade. You extend to his family and friends my deepest sympathy."

Other Commonwealth Tributes: Tributes from various Commonwealth centres included: Pretoria—Prime Minister Malan said few statements in overseas countries throughout their public careers have stood higher in the estimation of South Africans than Mackenzie King.

"The reason is not far to seek. Without prejudice to his ready co-operation in wider international circles, he was above everything else a Canadian, intent on the growth of full Canadian nationhood."

Mackenzie King's contacts with South Africa were more or less confined to Imperial conferences, notably that of 1926 where the foundation was laid of the Commonwealth as it exists today, namely a free association of independent nations," he said.

Wellington, N. Z.—Prime Minister Sidney Holland: "New Zealand joins with Canada in mourning the loss of one of its most distinguished men... whose long record of service to his own country and Empire will always be remembered with respect and gratitude."

New Zealand's Opposition leader, Peter Fraser, a close personal friend of Mackenzie King who was associated with him on several Commonwealth conferences, said: "He was the most kindly man and most generous in his friendship."

and discouragements. He also had much success. I think the greatest triumph was leading the Government from 1935 to 1939 in peace time, through the war years, 1939 to 1945, and after the war to 1949. This I believe shows that he had wisdom in guiding the affairs of state in a way that was acceptable to the majority of the people of Canada.

"The Canadian people will cherish his memory for his wise counsel in guiding the destinies of the nation during the years he was Prime Minister. Historians will place his name among Canada's great statesmen of the past, and one of the world's great statesmen of his day."

Mr. J. Watson MacNaught, M.P., death of W. L. Mackenzie King, Canada has lost her most distinguished son.

"It is a matter of much regret that he had not been spared a few more years in which to enjoy his well earned rest, to write his eagerly awaited memoirs. "Mackenzie King has been the subject of fierce controversy ever since he entered public life almost fifty years ago. It was only in recent years that the bitterness of this controversy had somewhat subsided, and it will be for measure that always pursued to assess his contribution to Canada and to the world. We are too near the events to impartially view his part in them."

"Mackenzie King will be remembered for the man, great contributions he made to the social and political life of Canada. I think, however, that his most outstanding achievement was the great contribution he made to national unity. He realized all too well that Canada was a difficult country to govern. He saw clearly the issue that would promote the utmost goodwill and harmony."

"Mackenzie King was a man of intense loyalties. In my last conversation with him he recalled with much warmth the many friendships he had made in Prince Edward Island when he represented Prince County in the House of Commons from 1919-1921. "I am sure that all the people of Prince Edward Island, regardless of what political party they belong to, will mourn the passing of this great Canadian."

Mr. J. Lester Douglas, M.P.: "Mr. King's service and loyalty to the Canadian people was unsurpassed. His death is a great shock. For Canada, it marks the end of a period which historians will certainly describe as the Mackenzie King era."

"For a generation after 1921, the personality of Mr. King dominated every aspect of our public life in public affairs. The first was to achieve complete national autonomy for Canada without destroying our historic associations; the second was to strengthen the unity of the nation by scrupulous respect for the rights and the traditions of all elements of our population and by the development of a genuine and wide common homeland, our common history and our common citizenship; and the third was to give all Canadians a genuine sense of equality of opportunity by the promotion of social justice."

Mr. W. Chester S. McLure, M.P.: "It was with great regret that I learned of the passing on Saturday of the Rt. Hon. Mr. King, whom I had known for many years and whom, as Prime Minister and leader of the Government, I always found to be most courteous and obliging. The heavy responsibilities which were carried by him until his retirement from office, no doubt determined his health. He had the satisfaction, however, of having rounded out a career in public life which is unequalled in Canada, or indeed in the British Commonwealth."

Mr. King's astuteness as a political leader has become almost legendary, but in addition he was a man of very warm human sympathies. He was in every sense a gentleman of the old school, kind, and tolerant towards others, and severe on himself in which he lived and the high personal standards he maintained."

Mr. Thomas Kitcham, M. P.: "I am deeply grieved to learn of the passing of our former Liberal leader and world statesman, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King. His record in public life has been an inspiration to his party followers, and an example to every citizen. He was at the helm of state during some of the most momentous years in our history, and the national unity we enjoy today is due in no small measure to the patience and conscientiousness with which he discharged his onerous duties."

Mr. R. E. Bell, K.C., M.L.A., Leader of the Opposition: "The citizens of this Province in mourning the sudden passing of a great leader and a great Canadian. "The tremendous mental and physical strain on a man in public life and as a leader of a great country during periods of extreme seriousness, have taken their toll. It is to be lamented that one who toiled so tirelessly and with such intense energy in the interests of his country, should not have been spared to enjoy years of freedom from the grave responsibilities so often carried by Mr. King. May his sacrifice on behalf of Canada be an example to posterity."

Hon. Dr. W. J. P. MacMillan, M.L.A., former Premier and Leader of the Opposition: "Throughout Canada and the Christian world there is sincere sorrow and deep regret at the death of the Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King. It seems only a short time since he laid down the duties and responsibilities of Prime Minister of Canada. Doubtless the enormous burden of work and worry, during the War of 1939-45, and the toll of his strength and resistance, and his health too weak to fight a dread disease."

"History will give a high place in its Honour Roll to this exceptionally gifted man. He had the great distinction of being a Prime Minister of England as well as in the British Empire. No one can doubt his great love for Canada and his deep devotion to duty. From the time he became leader of the Liberal Party in Canada until he resigned the position, he proved himself an able and sagacious leader, and a clever politician. He had in my judgment, no equal. As an orator he had few equals and his speeches were never tiresome but always most inspiring. He had only one love, "Canada," and to his country he gave his loyal and faithful service. Thus passed a great statesman and leader."

Mr. and Mrs. Richard B. Ross, Wollaston, Mass., have arrived in Charlottetown where they will spend two weeks visiting relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon MacEwen and Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey MacPhail, York Point, have returned home after spending the weekend in Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Completed Special Course in Health At Anne Arbor

Dr. Kenneth I. E. Macleod (above) of the Provincial Health Department, has returned from attending a special course at the School of Public Health, University of Michigan, Anne Arbor, where he qualified with the degree of Master of Public Health. He left here last September to take the course.

Twenty-seven countries were represented at the school, including students from India, China and South American countries as well as Canada and the United States. The students elected Dr. Macleod as class president for the year. The democratic manner in which the school was conducted was illustrated by the fact that before leaving, Dr. Macleod was asked by the dean of the faculty, Dr. Henry Vaughan, to head a committee to criticize the course. The report of the committee was handed to Dr. Vaughan just prior to Dr. Macleod's departure and he acted upon it.

Dr. Macleod, who has returned to duty with the Provincial Department of Health, some time ago completed a biography of General Sir Hector Macdonald which is being published serially in a North of Scotland weekly newspaper. Sir Hector, a son of a Scottish crofter who rose from the ranks to the highest position in the British army, commanded the Highland Brigade in the Boer War.

Prime Minister Issues Statement

OTTAWA, July 23 (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said today the death of Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King marked the end of a period which historians "will certainly describe as the Mackenzie King era."

The text of Mr. St. Laurent's tribute follows: "Although his friends have been aware of the serious state of Mr. Mackenzie King's health in recent weeks, his death is a great shock. For Canada, it marks the end of a period which historians will certainly describe as the Mackenzie King era."

"For a generation after 1921, the personality of Mr. King dominated every aspect of our public life in public affairs. The first was to achieve complete national autonomy for Canada without destroying our historic associations; the second was to strengthen the unity of the nation by scrupulous respect for the rights and the traditions of all elements of our population and by the development of a genuine and wide common homeland, our common history and our common citizenship; and the third was to give all Canadians a genuine sense of equality of opportunity by the promotion of social justice."

"To achieve these aims, and to maintain what was achieved, Mackenzie King realized that ensuring peace in the world was essential, and he never ceased to work for peace and to direct all our external policies to that end. "But it was the direction of our country's affairs throughout the most terrible war in human history, which was his greatest achievement. Yet his closest associates can testify that, even in country during periods of extreme seriousness, have taken their toll. It is to be lamented that one who toiled so tirelessly and with such intense energy in the interests of his country, should not have been spared to enjoy years of freedom from the grave responsibilities so often carried by Mr. King. May his sacrifice on behalf of Canada be an example to posterity."

McCready Memorial Windows Unveiled At Service In The Kirk

In a most impressive service in the Kirk of St. James yesterday morning the McCready Memorial Windows were unveiled and solemnly dedicated "to the glory of God and in loving memory of John E. Blakeney McCready, 1838-1930 and his wife, Louise Bennett McCready, 1863-1943."

The ceremony was performed by Mr. J. R. Burnett, successor to Mr. J. E. B. McCready in the editorship of The Guardian and a lifelong friend of the family. The prayers of dedication were offered by the minister, the Rev. T. H. B. Somers, in the presence of a large congregation which included many friends of those whose memory was honoured by these gifts. The service included the singing of a favourite hymn of Mrs. McCready's, "When On My Day of Life the Night is Falling" and the hymn of commemoration, "Forever with the Lord." Miss E. Lillian McCready church organist, directed the music.

The memorial, the gift of the McCready Estate, is of striking appearance, chaste in design, rich in appeal and symbolism and constitutes the final panels in an overall scheme for the south wall of the church. They are companion pieces and contain the separate figures of Moses and Isaiah, representatives of the Law and Prophets of the Old Testament, balancing the windows to the right which depict St. Peter and St. Paul, representatives of the New Testament. The War Memorial windows unveiled last November and the Good Shepherd windows above them complete the plan of the ten panels.

Vision Essential

The sermon was delivered by the Minister from the words, "After this I looked, and behold a door was opened in heaven." (Revelation 4: 1).

"Now the vision of the invisible is essential to sorely tried men and women," Mr. Somers said. "The writer of the Epistle to the Hebrews reminds us that it was the only thing that kept Moses to his task, as he trudged to the wilderness day by day, in the sacrifice of an ungrateful people. It is the chief requisite amid sin and sorrow, which Aeschylus calls the old, old story, and in which a man can do little for himself, and his friends can do even less until they invoke the reality and authority of a higher, if unseen, realm. It is the basic necessity in the search for justice for, let it be admitted, this world does not invariably give evidence that things are always fairly apportioned to all and, unless there is another the darkest days of war, he never lost faith in the future and he never lost sight of his fundamental aims upon public life. "I shall not attempt to forecast his place in Canadian history but I am confident no other man will have a larger place or higher claims on the gratitude of his fellow citizens."

"For me personally, Mr. King's death is a great sorrow and an irreparable loss. From the day I entered public life, his wisdom and counsel were always available and more re-assuring than to have one's own conclusions confirmed out of his vast knowledge and experience."

"Today the government of our country has lost its wisest, counsellor and the people of Canada their greatest public servant."

Tribute From N. S. Premier

The life of the late Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King had a "significance almost unique in Canadian history," Premier Angus L. Macdonald of Nova Scotia, vacationing at Cavendish, P. E. I., said last night.

The Premier's tribute follows: "I have been away from news sources for some days and I had not heard of any change in Mr. King's condition of health. The news of his death, which reached me at noon today, came therefore, with startling suddenness, even though I knew that for the past year his health had not been good. "His long public career, and the importance of the many events, in which he played so leading a part, gave to his life a significance almost unique in Canadian history. "I think that all Canadians, regardless of party or controversy, will experience a feeling of loss as they read of the passing of one who for 50 years held so many high public offices, including the greatest within the gift of the Canadian people."
