CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank those who so generously voted for me in the recent June bride contest. We appreciate this very much. Mr. and Mrs. Eustace Reeves.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Acorn and family of Dundas wish to thank their many friends and neighbours who so kindly assisted them in the disasterous fire which destroyed their home and all their household goods. Assisted by willing hands in a matter of hours they were installed in comfortable quarters on the premises and generously supplied with the many things necessary to carry on. They also wish to express thanks to those who helped in any way in the cutting, hauling, sawing, of lumber. Also the parties who dug our celler, drilled a well, wired temporary quarters, and the collectors in various districts. Words fail to express thanks for the many kindness shown and of the numerous gifts of money, clothing, and furniture which have been received. Mrs. Raymond Acorn, Dundas Centre, P.E.I.

Controversial Rulings On Freedom In The U.S.

By GEORGE KITCHEN

WASHINGTON (CP)—On Monday, June 17, a day now known as "Red Money" in right-wing congressional circles, the Supreme Court of the United States emerged as the champion of the rights of individual Americans, including those of the Communist stripe.

Since then, the nine-man court has been belabored inside Congress and out. It is accused of having gone "power wild" and weakening the internal security of the country while strengthening the capacity of the Communists to pervert American freedoms.

Legislation to circumvent its decisions already has been introduced.

The outcry, which promises to continue for weeks if not months, arises from three rulings which had the effect of warning the government against punishing men purely for their beliefs and associations, even if these be communistic, and criticizng Congress for its limitless, character-assassinating committee investigations.

The decisions, coupled with two others handed down in recent weeks, struck powerful blows for the cause of personal freedom and went many constitutional miles in reversing the notorious postwar inroads on civil liberties in the United States.

CONVICTION REVERSED

Perhaps the most important of the June 17 decisions was the reversal of a contempt of Congress conviction against John T. Watkins, an Illinois labor leader, who had refused before a congressional investigating committee to name former Communist associates on the ground of conscience.

This decision, delivered by Chief Justict Earl Warren, scolded Congress in general and the house un-American activities committee in particular. It is expected to have far-reaching effects in limiting free - wheeling congressional inquiries nto a man's associations and past.

Chief Justice Warren held that congressional committees have "no general authority to expose the private affairs of individuals without justification in terms of the functions of the Congress" and sugggested the operations of the un-American activities committee can "lead to ruthless exposure of private lives in order to gather data that is neither desired by the Congress not useful to it."

The court curtailed the scope of the justice department in prosecuting individuals, under the anti-Communist Smith Act when it freed five California Communists convicted under this act and ordered new trials for nine others.

The ruling was based on technicalities but the court warned the government that in future prosecutions of Communists it must show they did more than just advocate violent overthrow of the U.S. government; they must be shown to have incited people to action.

WRONGFUL DISCHARGE

In the third decision, the court ruled that former State Secretary Dean Acheson had wrongfully discharged John Stewart service, a state department officer who long was a target for the late Senator Joseph McCarthy as a security risk in 1951. The court thus advised the executive branch to go carefully in breaching the constitutional freedoms of its employees.

Violent exception has been taken to another ruling that the FBI must make its pertinent files available to the defence if it calls its informers as prosecution witnesses in criminal cases. Rightwing Republicans held this would give "Communists and other dangerous criminals unlimited access to vital government secrets."

The court held that every defendant has a right to try to impeach the testimony of a witness against him. He might be better able to do that if he could compare what a witness says in court with what he wrote secretly to the government.

In yet another major decision, the court freed Paul M. Sweezy, a socialist editor and writer, who was held in contempt by the New Hampshire attorney - general for refusing to answer questions about his political activities and classroom lectures at the University of New Hampshire.

Chief Justice Warren said the court believed there "unquestionably was an invasion of petitioners' (Sweezy's) libtrties in the areas of academic freedom and political expression — areas in which government should be extremely reticient to tread. . . ."

See Big Boost Possible In N. B. Forest Products Output

FREDERICTON (CP) — A special New Brunswick forest development commission foresees in its report released here Wednesday a possible $75,000,000 increase in value of wood products from New Brunswick forests.

The report says scientific forest supervision and "planning for expansion beyond the level of natures' productivity" might raise wood production to 25 cubic feet per acre annually from the present 15 cubic feet.

The 350-page document is the result of a special commission appointed by the provincial government to study New Brunswick's forest resources.

It says in countries such as Finland and Sweden which have practiced forest management over several decades annual growth has reached the level of 30 or 32 cubic feet with 35 now in sight.
