RANDOM NOTES FROM BOSTON.

Boston, Aug 9—Slowly but surely the truth is beginning to unfold itself in regard to the true situation of the United States in the Philippines; and the celebrated round robin denunciation of General Otis as an utterly incompetent, vain-glorious and unaggressive man, by the foreign correspondents at Manila, seems to have been entirely true. Soldiers of the First Nebraska Regiment, lately returned, give an entirely different statement concerning affairs in the land of Aguinaldo from that published in American papers. They assert to a man that the cabled accounts of engagements in the islands have been unduly censured to suit the personal views of Gen Otis; the real facts have been withheld for fear of exciting the American people; that the regiments have lost hundreds where only scores have been cabled, and that the whole Philippine group are not worth the loss of one single American soldier. Still the President saw fit a few days since to cable General Otis that "he was thoroughly satisfied with his work this far." And report has it that Otis will soon be replaced by General McArthur. At best it cannot be denied that the Administration is in a great muddle concerning the subjugation of the islands. It seems a moral certainty that if at least 50,000 men are not sent to the Philippines at once and the natives conquered by the fall, the combination of rottensness made evident by the Eagan disclosures by Alger of embalmid notoriety, and by Gen. Otis in the Pacific, and others, may certainly militate to the great disadvantage of the McKinley administration in the coming election.

The eyes of the world are on Admiral Dewey as he is slowly sailing homeward to receive the homage and plaudits of his grateful countrymen. To-day he is in Rome seeking an audience with Pope Leo. Thence he calls at London, and then the Olympia sails directly for New York, being due somewhere about the last of September. Out of the many invitations which have been showered by cities, societies, and various bodies, he has seen fit to accept only two thus far, viz: that of New York city, and one from the Alumni of his alma mater, the Norwich University Association of Boston, the latter of course is providing he visits Boston. So you see he has not accepted the hospitality of the Hub thus far, but it is felt he may yet do so. If the hero should accept Boston's invitation he will be here probably the first week in October.

The Prince Edward Island Club had a most enjoyable outing a week or so ago. They went by launch to Squantun, where they enjoyed an excellent shore dinner. After dinner there was music and dancing until a late hour. About fifty members attended. President Dr. Johnson and Secretary Doyle are to be congratulated on the success of the outing.

The Plant steamers are tested to their fullest capacity these days, and you must engage your sailing ahead. But it certainly is not the hot weather in Boston that is responsible for the traffic, if anyone should ask you. There have been but one or two hot days so far. Many of the evenings for the past few weeks would be much more enjoyable with a fall overcoat, and some evenings have been actually chilly.

There is no doubt now about Tea Eyck being champion amateur oarsman of the world, and the way he played with the field in the senior event at the late regatta here proves him to be in a class by himself. He must turn professional if he was to measure blades with men of his calibre. At any rate he has all the earthly amateur glory it is possible for one man to win.

The greatest bicycle events of the year are on in Montreal this week. Among the Massachusetts "pros" entered are Taylor, McDuffee and Nat Butler. Taylor, the colored wonder, holds the world's record of 1.22 2-5, and if some world's championship are not brought to Boston the Major will not be to blame. From Montreal the racers jump to Charles River track in Boston for the big L A W meet here from August 14th to 19th. Wheelmen here are preparing to make the meet the "finest ever," and cyclists will own the town. The N C A riders who have seceded from L A W control, will not be allowed to compete at Montreal according to a late despatch. The L A W people threatened to make trouble if the seceders were allowed to start in the races there.

The P. E. I Magazine is a most attractive little monthly, and is eagerly read by Islanders in Boston. But the New York correspondent in a late issue who put Geo Dixon down as being a native of P. E. I. and a lightweight and complained of Prof. Schurman not being recognized by the American press, as an Islander ought to "come out of it." Dixon is a featherweight and was born in Halifax in the North End and his people are still there. Only a few weeks ago the Globe contained a detailed history of Prof. Schurman during his early days on P. E. I. and up to his appointment to the Philippine Commission.

The recent defeat of the American college athletes by the Englishmen will only serve to make future contests more interesting, and show that Americans will not always have it so easy as they had it two years ago in America when they made the English teams look like cancelled postage stamps, taking every event in the international games and winning the college contests also. Besides, Yale and Harvard do not represent the college athlete of this year. Pennsylvania has two men in Kraenzlin and Tewksbury whom good judges say could alone have beaten Oxford and Cambridge combined.

Easily the best man of his inches from a fistic standpoint that P. E. Island has produced is George Byers, formerly of Charlottetown. He has nearly always taken home the money, never getting worse than a draw. He has been badly managed, and has to give away weight continually. He says he has engagements enough now to last him for some time. He has sparred Sharkey several times, and made a good showing. Byers is a very modest fellow and quite popular.

It is expected that the elevated road will be in operation about one year from now. Boston will be the Mecca for the A. O. H., in June, 1900. Delegates will come from all parts of the Union, Canada and even Australia. St. John, N. B., will send representatives.

Weather decidedly cool.
