

Army Not Planning For Large Scale 'Copter Use

CAMP GAGETOWN, N.B. (CP)—Despite the prediction of Maj.-Gen. John Rockingham, 1st Division commander, that helicopter-lifted soldiers will eventually replace paratroops, the army as a whole is not planning along these lines. A senior staff officer said Thursday that the helicopter has many disadvantages and is "not the answer to the general's prayer."

The newest helicopter about to be produced in the United States can carry only 2½ tons or 12 men. And it costs about $450,000.

TO USE A FEW

However, the army does plan to use helicopters to a certain extent, especially for movement of vital supplies from division forward to brigade. But there is no plan that resupply of the entire 1st Division should be carried out by helicopters.

Wednesday night, a navy helicopter working here being the army Exercise Rising Star required 1½ hours and nine trips to carry six tons of ammunition 10 miles. One truck could have accomplished this job in less time, providing traffic was not tied up.

The helicopter is far less vulnerable to air attack than are truck convoys. But it is an easy mark for ground fire. One nick in the rotor can knock it out.

Gen. Rockingham and the army generally are agreed that helicopters may be used to lift troops in short hops across rivers and similar barriers to get at the enemy's rear. They were expertly used in Korea in the evacuation of casualties.

For the movement of supplies at division level, the army is thinking of using conventional planes. They would be relatively cheap and carry a bigger payload than a helicopter.

In an army test about a year ago, the light plane outdid the helicopter. The plane, however, requires a runway.

The army now is training army service corps officers to fly light planes and helicopters in anticipation of the day when it may be flying either or both.

Meanwhile, most army officers do not see any lessening need for big transports to carry paratroops.

SAILED MINTO IN 1898

SAILED MINTO IN 1898

The last surviving member of the crew that brought the S.S. Minto across the Atlantic in 1898 will be a guest of His Honour Major J.D. Stewart at the official opening of Old Home Week, Mr. Wilbert A. Large (above) happens also to be a second cousin of the Mayor but has many other qualifications for recognition locally.

The picture, however, and the 62½ pound tye salmon, which he caught in Discovery Sound off the Campbell River, Vancouver Island, gives some idea of why he likes to live in Victoria, B.C.

Mr. Large recalls that having picked up the Minto from their builders, Gowley's shipyard in Dundee, they had a very rough passage.

age and indeed were reported lost, partly because their newly registered code name was not recognized by ships they sighted.

He remained with the Minto less than two years and then joined the C.N.R., working in Toronto 26 years and retiring eleven years ago. Since then he has lived in Victoria, working with the Victoria Machinery Depot, although not in the past two years. He is attending Old Home Week as the official representative of the Vancouver Island and Victoria Publicity Bureau.

Strike Threatens Toronto Hospitals

TORONTO (CP)—A strike that could cripple five Toronto area hospitals was threatened Thursday by a union representing 2,000 non-professional hospital employees.
Officials of the Building Service Employees Union (AFU-TLC) said they may call a strike early in the fall to protest "sub-standard" wages they say are paid at Toronto General, Toronto Western, Wellesley, Mount Sinai hospitals and Weston Sanatorium. They said wages for union members at the hospitals range from $27.50 to $55 for a 44-hour week.

And at Winnipeg, James Patterson, president of the Manitoba Farmers' Union, said Wednesday that Canada's storage position is poorer than ever before.
"That's our biggest worry at the moment," he said. "It's all very well for Mr. Gardiner to say farmers should have more storage. But he isn't worried because he doesn't have to sell a bushel of wheat."

Polio Incidence Much Lower

OTTAWA (CP)—The incidence of polio in Canada so far this year dropped to less than one-third of the average rate for the 1950-54 period.
The health department announced Thursday that 277 cases of polio were reported to Aug. 6 compared with the five-year average of 848 to that date.
There were 148 cases of paralytic polio compared with an average of 405 for the five years. Polio caused nine deaths to Aug. 6 compared with 30 to the corresponding date last year. No death occurred during the two weeks ended Aug. 6.
Total cases by provinces with 1950-54 average in brackets: Newfoundland 4 (13); Prince Edward Island 3 (5); Nova Scotia 21 (16); New Brunswick 7 (20); Quebec 28 (58); Ontario 62 (279); Manitoba 9 (162); Saskatchewan 18 (89); Alberta, 52 (120); British Columbia 73 (85).
Health officials said that it was too early to say whether the drop in polio was related to the Salk vaccination program.

1954 Wheat Carryover In Canada May Be Record

OTTAWA (CP)—Despite the big slash in Canada's 1954 wheat crop caused by rust, the stockpile carried over from the 1954 crop year may be the largest in history.
The government's first estimate of the carryover will be published today and indications are it will be about 480,000,000 bushels, the third or fourth largest on record.
A stockpile of this magnitude, added to prospects of a better-than-average crop of some 500,000,000 bushels this year, may strain Canada's grain storage facilities.
Agriculture Minister Gardiner, now in Saskatchewan, is reported to have advised farmers to expand farm storage.

Worst Situation Yet

And at Winnipeg, James Patterson, president of the Manitoba Farmers' Union, said Wednesday that Canada's storage position is poorer than ever before.
"That's our biggest worry at the moment," he said. "It's all very well for Mr. Gardiner to say farmers should have more storage. But he isn't worried because he doesn't have to sell a bushel of wheat."

Soviets Report On Research In Cancer Field

GENEVA, (AP) — A Russian doctor told the atoms-for-peace conference Thursday Soviet scientists have found radioactive isotopes of considerable value in "curative application" against certain forms of cancer.
"Their use holds out great possibilities," said the doctor, A. V. Kozlova.
Earlier, Dr. Shields Warren of Boston, Mass., former medical chief of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission, told the conference: "For purposes of therapy thus far, the isotopes have proved somewhat disappointing with fairly narrow fields of application. However, much work remains to be done before their evaluation is complete."
Radioactive cobalt has the advantage of being available in large quantities compared with radium, and also has certain other advantages. Dr. Warren said, but the characteristics of its radiation "are not such as to give significant qualitative advantages over radium or super-voltage x-rays."
FREE MEDICAL SERVICE
The Russian doctor said radioactive isotopes are used in free medical service establishments of the Soviet Union for treating various diseases.
"Their greatest importance, however, has been proved in treating malignant and benign tumors, including some diseases of blood forming organs," Kozlova added. He said there had been "recoveries" in a number of cases of various kinds of cancer, but in only one instance did he say in his prepared report how long the patients had been observed after treatment.
In that instance, the period of observation was only two years, whereas the minimum criterion for cancer "cure" is that the patient be free of symptoms for at least five years after any kind of treatment—surgery, radium, or radioactive isotope.

MONCTON (CP) — Maritime business circles speculated Thursday on the nature of the job awaiting Rand H. Matheson, executive manager of the Maritimes Transportation Commission who resigned Wednesday.
The 48-year-old fiscal wizard's action was disclosed at a meeting of the commission at Amherst. He had headed the body for 21 years and guided its many campaigns for more favorable treatment of Maritime shippers by the nation's carriers.

Old Navy Man In Charge Of Rifle Range

SOUTH MARCH, Ont., (CP) — As the army and air force command Thursday for the Queen's medal, the man in charge of the range was an old navy regular, Commander Ernest Haines.
The competition for the coveted army and navy Queen's medals, worn with uniform by the winning servicemen for life, was part of the week-long 73rd annual Dominion of Canada Rifle Association shoot at the Connaught ranges near here.
"The navy doesn't participate in this shoot—they have their own Queen's medal for big-gun shooting," said Cmdr. Haines. "I act as Connaught camp commander 'mainly because I can meet old shooting friends who come from all parts of Canada.' He once was a well-known rifle shot himself, and made the Canadian Bisley team several times.

Que. Liberal Critical Of Iron Ore Deal

RIMOUSKI, Que., (CP)—Liberal leader Georges Lapalme said Wednesday night a Pittsburgh firm soon will be making $30,000,000 profit annually on iron ore developments in Ungava while paying Quebec "a meagre pittance" of $100,000 a year for mineral rights.
Mr. Lapalme, on a speaking tour of communities on the south shore of the St. Lawrence river, said in three years the Hollinger North Shore Exploration Company, representing Pittsburgh interests, will sell 10,000,000 tons of iron annually at $10 a ton to American firms. He called for the establishment of a smelting industry to retain the profits in Quebec.
Because of an error by Premier Duplessis, he said, "the citizens of the richest province in Canada will continue to be the diggers of holes when they could have derived the big salaries which go to American workers at Pittsburgh and Cleveland."

Amateurs Have Little Luck In Uranium Hunt

GENEVA, (CP) — A Canadian geologist today told the international conference on peaceful uses of atomic energy that amateur prospectors haven't had much luck in finding uranium deposits in Canada.
Dr. A. H. Lang, acting chief of the mineral deposits division of the geological survey of Canada, said the important discoveries have been made by organized teams of geologists and trained prospectors or by competent independent prospectors.
However, Dr. Lang said the possibility of important ore bodies being found by amateurs is not ruled out. There was always a chance that an amateur might find an important deposit.
Dr. Lang's paper was designed to explain to scientists at the historic meeting the technical aspects of uranium prospecting in Canada by ground and aerial surveys.
"More people are searching for uranium in Canada today than for any other metal and uranium mining is assuming a major place in the country's mineral industry," he said.
During the last four years more than 1,000 occurrences of radioactive mineral, mainly pitchblende, had been discovered. However, only a few were of sufficient uranium content to permit them to be mined at an economic cost.
Dr. Lang's remarks were contained in the text of a speech read to the press in advance of delivery.

Iron, without which their economy would be put in danger, but while Quebec gives its body for a song, Venezuela, more practical, reaps $3,500,000 each year in different taxes on iron."

Mr. Lapalme said the question of natural resources will have a great bearing on the economic future of the province.
Mr. Lapalme's tour is taken as a prelude to a general provincial election, expected next summer.
